HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY ACT 2008

MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))

STOP PRESS:

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 amends the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 and the Surrogacy Arrangements Act 1985 and makes provision about the persons who in certain circumstances are to be treated in law as the parents of a child. The 2008 Act received the royal assent on 13 November 2008 and ss 61-64, 67-69 came into force on that date. The following provisions came into force on 1 October 2009: (1) ss 1-7, 9-13, 16-18, 20, 22, 23, 26 (in part), 27-29, 31, 32, 54 (for certain purposes), 55, 59, 60, Schs 1-3, 5 and various repeals in Sch 8; and (2) so far as not already in force, ss 8, 14, 15, 19, 21, 24, 25 (in part) and Sch 7: SI 2009/2232. The remaining provisions come into force on a day or days to be appointed.

Part 1 (ss 1-32) Amendments of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990

Part 1 amends the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 1, the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 applies to all live human embryos regardless of the manner of their creation, and to all live human gametes. The 2008 Act s 2 clarifies that any reference to 'nuclear DNA' includes DNA in both the nucleus and pronucleus of an embryo. Under s 3, embryos created by artificial gametes or genetically modified gametes may not be placed in a woman for the purpose of reproductive cloning. Human admixed embryos, which contain both human and animal DNA, are brought within the regulation of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 by the 2008 Act s 4. Section 5 gives effect to Sch 1, which makes changes to the conditions for disqualification for appointment to the chair, deputy chair and membership of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority. By virtue of s 6, the Authority has the additional general functions of maintaining a statement of general principles and promoting compliance with the requirements imposed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 and with the code of practice under s 25. The Authority must carry out its functions effectively, efficiently and economically, and have regard to the principles of best regulatory practice in doing so: 2008 Act s 7. The Authority is entitled under s 8 to make arrangements with a government department, a public authority or the holder of a public office for the carrying out of any of its functions. The Authority may also provide assistance to any other public authority in the United Kingdom: s 9. The Authority is permitted by s 10 to delegate its functions.

Section 11 gives effect to Sch 2, which alters the purposes for which research licences relating to embryo testing may be granted. Under s 12, no money or other benefit may be given or received for the supply of human admixed embryos. Schedule 3, which is given effect by s 13, makes provision relating to consent to store or use embryos or gametes to create an embryo in vitro. It is a condition of a licence for treatment that embryos that are known to have an abnormality, including a gender-related abnormality, are not to be preferred to embryos not known to have such an abnormality: s 14, Sch 4. The maximum statutory storage limit for embryos is brought into line with the ten-year limit applicable to the storage of gametes by s 15. Section 16 removes the requirement for a licence application to be in a particular form and for an initial and an additional fee to be paid. The definition of 'nominal licensee' is repealed by s 17. Under s 18, the Authority may revoke or vary any licence on application by the person responsible or the licence holder. Section 19 makes minor changes to the procedures for notifying licensing decisions to interested parties. A licence may not be suspended for longer than three months, although this period may be renewed: s 20. The Authority is obliged by s 21 to maintain one or more appeals committees.

Section 22 makes provision concerning the directions that may be given in respect of human admixed embryos. By virtue of s 23, the code of practice under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 25 must contain information about the giving of a suitable opportunity to receive proper counselling and the provision of such relevant information as is proper. The 2008 Act s 24 alters the rules regarding the information that must be kept on the register of information and the information on the register to which a donor-conceived person is entitled to have access. Provision is made by s 25 regarding the information that may be disclosed by the Authority. Section 26 confers a regulation-making power to enable eggs and/or embryos with altered mitochondrial DNA to be classified as permitted eggs or embryos so that they can be implanted in a woman. The circumstances in which the Authority is entitled to charge a fee under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 are prescribed by s the 2008 Act 27. It is not unlawful for a member or employee of the Authority to be in possession of embryos, gametes or human admixed embryos in the course of his employment: s 28, Sch 5. Section 29 adjusts the rules regarding offences and penalties under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 to take account of the prohibition on the creation and use of human admixed embryos. The making of regulations under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 is dealt with by the 2008 Act s 30. Under ss 31, 32, the Secretary of State is empowered to make amendments to legislation consequent on changes made to the definitions of the terms 'embryo', 'gametes' and 'human admixed embryo'.

Part 2 (ss 33-58) Parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction

Section 33 re-enacts the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 27, and defines a person's mother as the woman who carries a child following assisted reproduction, unless the child is subsequently adopted or parenthood is transferred through a parental order. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 34, ss 35-47 apply, in the case of a child who is being or has been carried by a woman as a result of the placing in her of an embryo or of sperm and eggs or her artificial insemination, to determine who is to be treated as the other parent of the child. Where a child is conceived by a married woman as a result of treatment with donor sperm, her husband is to be treated as the child's father unless it is shown that he did not consent to his wife's treatment: s 35. Under ss 36, 37, an unmarried man is to be regarded as the father of a donor-conceived child if he is treated together with the mother in a licensed clinic in the United Kingdom and both parties have given notice of their consent to him being treated as the father. Section 38 provides that, where a person is to be treated as the father of a child by virtue of s 35 or 36, no other person is to be treated as the father of the child. Where a man's sperm, or an embryo created with his sperm, is used after his death, the man may be treated as the child's father for the purposes of birth registration if various specified conditions are met: s 39. Section 40 makes equivalent provision for the case where donated sperm has been used. The situations in which a man is not to be treated as being a child's father despite his sperm being used are prescribed by s 41.

By virtue of s 42, female civil partners are to be treated in the same way as married persons in relation to determining the parenthood of children born via artificial insemination. Sections 43 and 44 make provision about same-sex female couples who are not civil partners which corresponds to provision made about opposite-sex unmarried couples by ss 36 and 37. There are various circumstances in which ss 42 and 43 do not affect who is to be considered the parent of a child: s 45. Provision is made by s 46 concerning the registration of a deceased same-sex partner as a child's parent in the register of births in certain circumstances. Where a woman has not carried a child, s 47 makes it clear that she is to be treated as a parent of the child only if the provisions relating to parenthood of the mother's partner apply or she has adopted the child. Under s 48, where a person is to be treated by virtue of ss 33-47 as the mother, father or parent of a child, or as not being the parent of the child, this status applies for all legal purposes. Section 49 specifies the meaning of references to parties to a marriage, s 50 specifies the meaning of references to a civil partnership, and s 51 specifies the meaning of 'a relevant register of births'. The period during which a woman may elect for her deceased partner to be treated as her child's parent for the purposes of birth registration may be extended with the consent of the relevant Registrar General: s 52. Section 53 deals with interpretation. The categories of couples who can apply for a parental order where a child has been conceived using the gametes of at least one of the couple and has been carried by a surrogate mother are extended by s 54. Section 55 makes supplementary provision in relation to parental orders. Section 56 gives effect to Sch 6, which makes various amendments relating to parenthood in cases involving assisted reproduction. Section 57 repeals certain provisions and makes transitional provision, and s 58 deals with the interpretation of terms used in Pt 2.

Part 3 (ss 59-69) Miscellaneous and General

The Surrogacy Arrangements Act 1985 is amended by the 2008 Act s 59 to enable bodies that operate on a not-for-profit basis to receive payment for providing some surrogacy services. Section 60 amends the Environmental Protection Act 1990 by excluding human admixed embryos and human embryos as defined by the Environmental Protection Act 1990 from the definition of 'genetically modified organisms'. The 2008 Act ss 61, 62 and 64 make provision concerning the making of orders, and s 63 deals with interpretation. Section 65 gives effect to Sch 7, which makes minor and consequential amendments, and s 66 gives effect to Sch 8, which makes various repeals and revocations. Section 67 deals with extent, s 68 with commencement, and s 69 specifies the short title.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION/1. The Medical Act 1983.

1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE

(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION

1. The Medical Act 1983.

The principal statute providing for the regulation of the medical profession is the Medical Act 1983<sup>1</sup>.

The Medical Act 1983 provides for the continued existence of the General Medical Council and of branch councils of the General Medical Council<sup>2</sup>; it contains provisions regulating the medical education and registration of persons qualifying as medical practitioners in the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup> and elsewhere in the European Union, and the registration of persons qualifying overseas<sup>4</sup>; it defines the privileges of registered practitioners<sup>5</sup>; it contains wide powers in connection with the disciplinary control of the profession and the fitness of practitioners to practise medicine<sup>6</sup>; and it regulates the keeping of registers of the medical profession and the procedure for registration as a medical practitioner<sup>7</sup>. The general government of the medical profession is vested by the Act in the General Medical Council, but the Council is in many respects subject to control by the Privy Council<sup>8</sup> and is also subject to the oversight of the Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals<sup>9</sup>.

Nothing in the Medical Act 1983 extends, or may be construed to extend, to prejudice or in any way to affect the lawful occupation, trade or business of chemists, druggists<sup>10</sup> and dentists<sup>11</sup>, or the rights, privileges or employment of duly licensed apothecaries<sup>12</sup> in Northern Ireland, so far as they extend to selling, compounding or dispensing medicines<sup>13</sup>.

A number of other statutes and statutory instruments contain provision relevant to the practice of medicine<sup>14</sup>.

1 The Medical Act 1983 came into force on 26 October 1983: s 57(2). The Act extends to Northern Ireland: s 57(3). The Medical Act 1983 consolidated the Medical Acts 1956 to 1978. As to the repeal of the former enactments see the Medical Act 1983 s 56(2), (3), Sch 7. For transitional provisions and savings see s 56(1), Sch 6. Where anything done under or for the purposes of any enactment repealed by the Medical Act 1983 would otherwise cease to have effect, it has effect as if it had been done under or for the purposes of the corresponding provision of that Act: Sch 6 para 2. Anything continued in force by the Medical Act 1956 s 57(3) (repealed) continues in force and, so far as it could have been made, given or done under the Medical Act 1983, has effect as if it had been so made, given or done: Sch 6 para 3. The provisions of the Interpretation Act 1978 ss 15-17 (repealing enactments) nevertheless apply: see the Medical Act 1983 s 56(1). As to the repeal of an Act or enactment see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1296 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION/2. Scheme of medical legislation.

2. Scheme of medical legislation.

The law does not forbid in general terms the practice of medicine or surgery by unqualified persons<sup>1</sup>. The medical legislation makes provision, however, for the registration of persons who possess certain medical qualifications<sup>2</sup>, and a person who practises medicine or surgery without being so registered is under considerable disabilities as compared with a registered practitioner. Thus he is forbidden to use any title or description implying that he is a registered practitioner or is recognised by law as a physician or surgeon or apothecary<sup>3</sup>; he is not entitled to recover in a court of law his charges for medical attendance or advice<sup>4</sup>; he may not hold appointments which are closed except to registered practitioners<sup>5</sup>; he is not entitled to possess or supply controlled drugs<sup>6</sup>; and he cannot give valid statutory certificates<sup>7</sup>. On the other hand a person can only become a registered practitioner by acquiring a recognised qualification<sup>8</sup>, and, once registered, he is subject to a strict disciplinary system in regard to his fitness to practise<sup>9</sup>, and his registration is liable to be suspended or made subject to conditions if he is considered unfit to practise on grounds of physical or mental health<sup>10</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION/5. Ministerial control and duties.

5. Ministerial control and duties.

Much of the legislation and subordinate legislation concerned with the practice of medicine and the organisation and control of the national health service enacted up to 1968 contained references to the Minister of Health, whose office was established by the Ministry of Health Act 1919. In 1968 all functions of the Minister of Health were transferred to the Secretary of State for Social Services<sup>1</sup>, and the Ministry of Health was dissolved<sup>2</sup>. Most of the functions of the Secretary of State for Social Services relating to Wales were transferred to the Secretary of State for Wales in 1969<sup>3</sup>.

The Department of Health was established in 1988, and functions of the Secretary of State for Social Services relating to health and personal social services were transferred to the Secretary of State for Health<sup>4</sup>. In Wales certain functions of the Secretary of State relating to medical practice<sup>5</sup> have been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales<sup>6</sup>.

1 See the Secretary of State for Social Services Order 1968, SI 1968/1699, made pursuant to the Ministers of the Crown (Transfer of Functions) Act 1946 s 3 (repealed). For any reference to the Minister of Health in any enactment or instrument made or passed before this order came into operation there was to be substituted a reference to the Secretary of State: Secretary of State for Social Services Order 1968, SI 1968/1699, art 5(4)(a). ## 7. Medical services under the national health service.

Each primary care trust in relation to England and each local health board in relation to Wales<sup>1</sup> must, to the extent that it considers necessary to meet all reasonable requirements, exercise its powers so as to provide primary medical services<sup>2</sup> within its area, or secure their provision within its area<sup>3</sup>. A primary care trust or local health board may, in addition to any other power conferred on it, provide primary medical services itself, whether within or outside its area<sup>4</sup>, and make such arrangements for their provision, whether within or outside its area, as it thinks fit, and may in particular make contractual arrangements with any person<sup>5</sup>. It is the duty of each primary care trust and of each health authority<sup>6</sup>, in accordance with regulations<sup>7</sup>, to administer the arrangements made in pursuance of the National Health Service Act 1977 for the provision of primary medical services for its area<sup>8</sup>, and to perform such management and other functions relating to those services as may be prescribed<sup>9</sup>.

A primary care trust or local health board may enter into a general medical services contract under which primary medical services are provided<sup>10</sup>. A general medical services contract may, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed<sup>11</sup>, be entered into with: a medical practitioner<sup>12</sup>; two or more individuals practising in partnership of whom at least one partner is a medical practitioner and where specified conditions are satisfied in respect of the remaining partners<sup>13</sup>; or a company limited by shares where at least one share in the company is legally and beneficially owned by a medical practitioner and specified conditions are satisfied in respect of any share which is not so owned<sup>14</sup>. Subject as provided<sup>15</sup>, a general medical services contract may make such provision as may be agreed between the trust or board and the contractor or contractors<sup>16</sup> in relation to the services to be provided under the contract, remuneration under the contract, and any other matters<sup>17</sup>. A general medical services contract must require the contractor or contractors to provide, for his or their patients, primary medical services of such descriptions as may be prescribed<sup>18</sup>. Provision is also made as to contract payments<sup>19</sup>, the prescription of drugs<sup>20</sup>, required terms<sup>21</sup>, disputes and enforcement<sup>22</sup>, and the provision of assistance and support by a trust or board<sup>23</sup>. Regulations may provide that a health care professional<sup>24</sup> of a prescribed description may not perform any primary medical service for which a primary care trust or local health board is responsible<sup>25</sup> unless he is included in a list maintained under the regulations by a trust or board<sup>26</sup>.

A strategic health authority<sup>27</sup> or a health authority may make one or more agreements with respect to its area under which primary medical services are provided otherwise than by the authority<sup>28</sup>. Such an agreement may be made only with one or more of the specified persons<sup>29</sup>, including a medical practitioner who meets the prescribed conditions<sup>30</sup>. The Secretary of State may by order make provision for any rights and liabilities arising under any such agreement to be transferred from strategic health authorities to primary care trusts and from primary care trusts to strategic health authorities<sup>31</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION/8. Other controls on medical practice.

8. Other controls on medical practice.

Other legislation<sup>1</sup> relating to the control of the practice of medicine includes the Anatomy Act 1984, which has for its object the provision of a supply of human bodies for anatomical examination and the prevention of crime committed to obtain bodies for that purpose<sup>2</sup>; the Human Tissue Act 1961, which makes provision with respect to the use of bodies or specified parts of the bodies of deceased persons for therapeutic purposes and purposes of medical education and research<sup>3</sup>; the Human Organ Transplants Act 1989, which creates offences relating to the supply for payment of organs for transplant, and to the removal of an organ from a living person who is not genetically related to the person into whom it is to be transplanted<sup>4</sup>. As from a day to be appointed all three of these Acts are repealed by the Human Tissue Act 2004 which introduces a new regime to regulate the areas covered by them and creates the Human Tissue Authority<sup>5</sup>.

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 introduced controls relating to human embryos and their subsequent development<sup>6</sup>, while the Human Reproductive Cloning Act 2001 seeks to prevent human reproductive cloning by prohibiting the placing in a woman of a human embryo created otherwise than by fertilisation<sup>7</sup>. The Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 restates and amends the law relating to female genital mutilation<sup>8</sup>.

The Medical Research Council is a non-statutory body, incorporated by Royal Charter<sup>9</sup> with effect from 1 April 1920, whose principal function is the promotion of research on all aspects of health and disease<sup>10</sup>, but the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup> has been given certain statutory powers and duties in relation to the Council<sup>12</sup>, and legislation has transferred some of the Council's functions to other statutory bodies<sup>13</sup>. The National Biological Standards Board<sup>14</sup> performs functions specified by the Secretary of State<sup>15</sup> in relation to the establishment of standards for biological substances<sup>16</sup>, and in relation to the provision of standard preparations and the testing of such substances<sup>17</sup>. The Health Protection Agency<sup>18</sup> has responsibilities relating to the protection of the community against infectious disease and other dangers to health<sup>19</sup> and the prevention of the spread of infectious disease<sup>20</sup>, and it also has certain functions in relation to risks connected with radiation<sup>21</sup>.

It promotes research by financing research at the National Institute for Medical Research and at universities and hospitals, and appoints or administers a large number of research bodies. It makes an annual report. See further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 43; NATIONAL CULTURAL HERITAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 967 et seq.

11 As to the Secretary of State generally see PARA 5 ante. The Secretary of State in this case is the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry: see the Transfer of Functions (Science) Order 1995, SI 1995/2985, art 3(2)(d).

12 See the Science and Technology Act 1965 s 1(1)(a); and NATIONAL CULTURAL HERITAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 967 et seq.

13 Responsibility for the radiological protection service was transferred to the Radiological Protection Board: see the Radiological Protection Act 1970 s 1(3)(a) (repealed). See the text and note 21 infra; and FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1389 et seq.

The Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970 imposes on the Secretary of State a duty to collate and present evidence to the Medical Research Council on the need for an institute for hearing research to co-ordinate and promote research on hearing and assistance to the deaf and hard of hearing: see s 24. So far as it is exercisable in relation to Wales this function has been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2(1), Sch 1. The Institute of Hearing Research has been created as a unit within the Medical Research Council. As to the dispensing of hearing aids see PARA 867 et seq post.

14 The National Biological Standards Board is a body corporate: see the Biological Standards Act 1975 s 1(1). As to bodies corporate see COMPANIES; CORPORATIONS. Provision is made with regard to: (1) the composition of the Board, and its proceedings and staff (s 2(1), (2), (5), Schedule); (2) occupation of land by the Board (s 2(3)); (3) exemption of the Board from income and corporation tax (s 2(4)); (4) defrayment of expenses, application of funds, and accounts (s 4). If any person discloses any information obtained by him in the course of and by virtue of his membership of or employment by the Board and relating to a manufacturing process or trade secret, he is, unless the disclosure is made in the performance of the duties of his office or employment, guilty of an offence: s 5(1). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum and on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both: s 5(2) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2)). The 'prescribed sum' means £5,000 or such sum as is for the time being substituted in this definition by order under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 143(1) (as substituted): see s 32(9) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(2)); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

15 In this case the Secretary of State acts jointly with the head of the Department of Health and Social Services for Northern Ireland, referred to together as 'the ministers': see the Biological Standards Act 1975 s 8. The Board must in the performance of its functions comply with any directions given to it by the ministers: s 1(3).

16 'Biological substances' are substances the purity or potency of which, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, cannot be adequately tested by chemical means: ibid s 8.

17 Ibid s 1(2). The functions of the Board are: (1) to devise and draw up standards for the purity and potency of biological substances, to design appropriate test procedures and to advise on these matters; (2) to provide or to arrange for the provision of laboratory facilities for the testing of biological substances, to carry out such testing, to examine records of manufacture and quality control of biological substances and to report on the results of such testing or examination; (3) to prepare, approve, hold and distribute standard preparations of biological substances; (4) to collaborate with the World Health Organisation, the European Pharmacopoeia Commission and other international organisations or bodies in relation to the establishment of standards for, the provision of standard preparations of, and the testing of biological substances; (5) to carry out or arrange for the carrying out of research in connection with the functions referred to in heads (1)-(4) above; and (6) to do all other things incidental or conducive to the discharge of the above functions: National Biological Standards Board (Functions) Order 1976, SI 1976/917, art 2.

18 See the Health Protection Agency Act 2004 s 1, Sch 1. These provisions came into force on 1 April 2005: see s 12(1); and the Health Protection Agency Act 2004 (Commencement) Order 2005, SI 2005/121, art 2. As to the Health Protection Agency see further HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 213 et seq.

19 See ibid s 2(1)(a); and HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 224. The Agency also has such other functions in relation to health as the Secretary of State after consultation with the National Assembly for Wales directs, or as the National Assembly after consultation with the Secretary of State directs: see s 2(2). As to the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

20 See ibid s 2(1)(b); and HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 224. See note 19 supra.

21 See ibid s 3; and HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 225. These functions include such of the functions which are exercisable by the National Radiological Protection Board at the date of commencement of s 3 as are specified in a direction given by the appropriate authority: see s 3(2). See also note 13 supra. The appropriate authority is generally the Secretary of State or, in relation to any function which is exercisable in relation to Wales by the National Assembly for Wales acting alone, the National Assembly for Wales: see s 6. As to radiation protection see also PARA 10 post.

It is unlawful<sup>1</sup> for any person concerned with the provision, whether for payment or not, of professional services to the public or a section of the public to discriminate on the grounds of sex or race<sup>2</sup> against a person who seeks to obtain or use those services by: (1) refusing or deliberately omitting to provide him with them<sup>3</sup>; or (2) refusing or deliberately omitting to provide him with facilities of the same quality, in the same manner and on the same terms as are normal in relation to other members of the public or other members of that section of the public<sup>4</sup>. It is also unlawful for a provider of professional services, whether for payment or not, to the public or a section of the public to discriminate against a disabled person<sup>5</sup>: (a) in refusing to provide, or deliberately not providing, to the disabled person any service which he provides, or is prepared to provide; (b) in failing to comply with any duty imposed on him to make adjustments so as to make his services accessible to disabled persons<sup>6</sup>, where the effect of that failure is to make it impossible or unreasonably difficult for the disabled person to make use of any such service; (c) in the standard of service which he provides to the disabled person or the manner in which he provides it to him; or (d) in the terms on which he provides a service to the disabled person<sup>7</sup>.

10. Other statutory provisions relevant to medical practice.

The restrictions imposed by the Medicines Act 1968<sup>1</sup> on the manufacture of and dealings in medicinal products do not apply to doctors in certain circumstances<sup>2</sup>. Doctors are also exempted, except in certain circumstances, from the restrictions imposed by that Act<sup>3</sup> on the sale or supply of medicinal products<sup>4</sup>. Sales to doctors for the purposes of their profession are exempted from the restrictions contained in the Poisons Act 1972<sup>5</sup> against the sales of certain non-medicinal poisons<sup>6</sup>. Doctors are exempted in certain circumstances from the provisions of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 and of regulations under that Act restricting dealings in controlled drugs<sup>7</sup>. Certain of the provisions of the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 are excluded in relation to the appointment and dismissal of medical practitioners and disciplinary proceedings concerning medical practitioners<sup>8</sup>.

Supplies of services (and supplies of goods in certain cases) in connection with the treatment of health are exempt from value added tax<sup>9</sup>, and the supply of drugs, medicines and aids for the handicapped is, for the most part, zero-rated for the purposes of that tax<sup>10</sup>. If a medical practitioner has more than one place of employment he may in certain circumstances deduct from his income taxable under Schedule E the expenses of travelling from his home to and from a hospital on emergency calls<sup>11</sup>.

Radiation protection is governed by regulations which lay down basic safety standards for the health protection of the general public and workers against the dangers of ionising radiations<sup>12</sup>. Regulations also make provision in respect of the exposure of individuals to ionising radiation in connection with medical diagnosis or treatment; occupational health surveillance; health screening programmes; medical or biomedical, diagnostic or therapeutic research programmes; or as part of medico-legal procedures<sup>13</sup>.

10 Other statutory provisions relevant to medical practice

NOTE 8--SI 1975/1023 further amended: SI 2005/617, SI 2005/1082, SI 2005/2011, SI 2007/289, SI 2007/2149, SI 2008/3259, SI 2009/1182, SI 2009/1818.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(1) REGULATION OF THE PROFESSION/11. Termination of agreement with the Republic of Ireland.

11. Termination of agreement with the Republic of Ireland.

After the establishment of the Irish Free State (now the Republic of Ireland) and Northern Ireland, an agreement was made between Great Britain and those countries as to the registration and control of medical practitioners<sup>1</sup> and the agreement was made part of the law of each of those countries<sup>2</sup>. Upon the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup> and the Republic of Ireland becoming members of the European Community the agreement was no longer required, and provision was accordingly made for its termination<sup>4</sup>.

In consequence of or in connection with the termination of the agreement on 30 April 1979, Her Majesty by Order in Council effected specified repeals or modifications in the Medical and Dentists Acts Amendment Act 1927 and in the Medical Acts 1956 to 1978 which are now incorporated in the Medical Act 1983<sup>5</sup>. A person, other than a national of a member state of the European Community, registered or entitled to be registered under the Medical Act 1956 immediately before 30 April 1979 in right of a qualification awarded in the Republic of Ireland did not cease to be so entitled by reason only of any such repeal or modification<sup>6</sup>, and a person who, before 30 April 1985, was awarded a qualification in the Republic of Ireland which, but for any such repeal, would have entitled him to be provisionally registered under the Medical Act 1956<sup>7</sup> and, on satisfying the requirements of that Act as to experience<sup>8</sup>, to be fully registered<sup>9</sup> was, on appropriate application, eligible for such provisional registration and subsequently for such full registration as if the relevant provisions<sup>10</sup> applied to his qualifications and as if the statutory provision as to a registrable qualification granted by a university or other body in the Republic of Ireland<sup>11</sup> remained in force<sup>12</sup>.

An application for registration or provisional registration by a person to whom these provisions<sup>13</sup> applied had to be made to the registrar of the General Medical Council; and, if it was for provisional registration, had to be made not later than 30 April 1986 and, if for full registration, not later than 30 April 1987<sup>14</sup>.

The members of the General Medical Council elected under the Medical Act 1956 by fully registered persons resident in Ireland<sup>15</sup>, and members appointed under the provisions of that Act by universities or other bodies in Ireland<sup>16</sup>, did not, by reason only of any such repeal or modification, cease to be such members<sup>17</sup>, but the present constitution of the General Medical Council does not include provision for members representing the Republic of Ireland<sup>18</sup>.

1 The agreement is set out in the Medical and Dentists Acts Amendment Act 1927 Schedule Pt I (repealed). A corresponding agreement relating to dentists is set out in Schedule Pt II (repealed). As to the dental profession see PARA 385 et seq post.

12. Effect of EC legislation on medical practice.

In order to make it easier for persons to take up and pursue activities as self-employed persons, the Council of the European Communities must issue directives for the mutual recognition of diplomas, certificates and other evidence of formal qualifications<sup>1</sup>. In the case of the medical profession, allied professions, and the pharmaceutical profession, the progressive abolition of restrictions is dependent upon co-ordination of the conditions for their exercise in the various member states<sup>2</sup>. A directive<sup>3</sup> has been issued to facilitate the free movement of doctors and the mutual recognition of their diplomas, certificates and other evidence of formal qualifications. The Medical Act 1983<sup>4</sup> and related statutory instruments<sup>5</sup> implement these provisions.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(2) THE GENERAL MEDICAL COUNCIL/(i) Constitution, Members and Officers/13. Constitution, functions and powers of the General Medical Council.

(2) THE GENERAL MEDICAL COUNCIL

(i) Constitution, Members and Officers

13. Constitution, functions and powers of the General Medical Council.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> is a body corporate having the functions assigned to it by the Medical Act 1983<sup>2</sup>. It is within its capacity as a corporation to do such things and enter into such transactions as are in its opinion incidental to or conducive to the performance of its functions, including the borrowing of money<sup>3</sup>. The main objective of the Council in exercising its functions is to protect, promote and maintain the health and safety of the public<sup>4</sup>. In exercising its functions, the Council must co-operate wherever appropriate and reasonably practicable with public authorities or other bodies or persons concerned with: (1) the employment, whether or not under a contract of service, of registered medical practitioners<sup>5</sup>; (2) the education of medical practitioners, prospective medical practitioners or other health care professionals<sup>6</sup>; (3) the regulation of other health or social care professions<sup>7</sup>; or (4) the regulation of health services<sup>8</sup>. For the purposes of ensuring that registered medical practitioners and the public are informed about the Council and the exercise by it of its functions, the Council must publish or provide in such manner as it thinks fit information about the Council and the exercise of its functions<sup>9</sup>.

The Council's powers include that of providing, in such manner as it thinks fit, advice for members of the medical profession on standards of professional conduct, standards of professional performance, or medical ethics<sup>10</sup>. For the purpose of enabling the Council to compile or assist in the compilation of statistics relating to medical practice and practitioners it may from time to time issue to persons registered under the Medical Act 1983, other than visiting EEA practitioners<sup>11</sup>, requests for information on matters which in its opinion are relevant for that purpose<sup>12</sup>.

The Council consists<sup>13</sup> of elected members<sup>14</sup>, appointed members<sup>15</sup>, and nominated members<sup>16</sup>. There must be not more than 35 members<sup>17</sup>, and the numbers of elected members, appointed members and nominated members must be such that the number of the elected members exceeds the number of the appointed and nominated members<sup>18</sup>. The quorum of the Council is 25<sup>19</sup>. A person is not qualified to be a member of the Council if he has attained the age of 70 years<sup>20</sup>.

1 The Council was first established under the name 'The General Council of Medical Education and Registration of the United Kingdom' by the Medical Act (1858) s 3 (repealed), and was incorporated under the same name by the Medical Council Act 1862 s 1 (repealed). Its name was changed to the 'General Medical Council' pursuant to the Medical Act 1950 ss 13, 36(1) (repealed). The Council is now established under the Medical Act 1983 s 1, Sch 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(2) THE GENERAL MEDICAL COUNCIL/(i) Constitution, Members and Officers/20. Suspension or removal of members from office.

20. Suspension or removal of members from office.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> must by rules make provision for the suspension or removal from office of a member by the Council in such circumstances as may be specified in the rules<sup>2</sup>. Such rules must provide for an elected member<sup>3</sup> or an appointed member<sup>4</sup> to be removed from office if he ceases to be registered<sup>5</sup> or, as from a day to be appointed, if he ceases to hold a licence to practise<sup>6</sup>. Standing orders of the Council must make provision for the procedure by which a member may be suspended or removed from office<sup>7</sup>.

A member<sup>8</sup> must be removed from office<sup>9</sup> if:

- 1 (1) he has been convicted of a criminal offence in the British Islands<sup>10</sup> or has been convicted of an offence elsewhere which, if committed in England or Wales, would constitute a criminal offence, and in either case has had passed on him a sentence of imprisonment, whether suspended or not, for a period of not less than three months without the option of a fine and which has not been quashed on appeal<sup>11</sup>;
- 2 (2) he has been removed from the office of charity trustee or trustee for a charity by an order made by the Charity Commissioners or the High Court on the grounds of any misconduct or mismanagement in the administration of the charity for which he was responsible or to which he was privy, or which he by his conduct contributed to or facilitated<sup>12</sup>; or, in Scotland, he has been removed from being concerned in the management or control of any body<sup>13</sup>;
- 3 (3) his attendance at meetings of the Council or Council committees falls below a minimum level as set out in standing orders of the Council and the Council is satisfied that this is not for reasonable cause<sup>14</sup>;
- 4 (4) the Council is satisfied that he has become incapable of performing his duties by reason of his physical or mental health<sup>15</sup>;
- 5 (5) he has been subject to an investigation or proceedings concerning his professional conduct by any licensing body<sup>16</sup> anywhere in the world where the final outcome<sup>17</sup> was adverse, and the Council is satisfied that the licensing body's findings were such that it would be unsuitable for the member to continue to hold office<sup>18</sup>; or
- 6 (6) the Council is satisfied that his continued membership is liable to undermine confidence in the regulation of the medical profession<sup>19</sup>.

A member may be suspended from office whilst the Council considers whether to remove him from office under head (1), (2), (4), (5) or (6) above<sup>20</sup>. The Council must notify the member of a decision to remove or suspend him from office<sup>21</sup>, and a decision to remove or suspend a member from office takes effect when written notice<sup>22</sup> of the decision has been served upon the member<sup>23</sup>.

A period of suspension must not exceed six months<sup>24</sup>. The Council may at any time review a suspension, and it must review a suspension after three months if so requested by the member<sup>25</sup>. Where the Council reviews a suspension, it may revoke the suspension, in which case it ceases to have effect<sup>26</sup>, or suspend the member from office for a further period of not more than six months from the expiry of the current period of suspension<sup>27</sup>.

Where a medical member<sup>28</sup> ceases to be a registered medical practitioner<sup>29</sup>, or his registration is suspended by virtue of a direction made under the Medical Act 1983<sup>30</sup>, he must be removed from office with effect from the date when he ceased to be registered or his registration was suspended<sup>31</sup>.

A person must not be restored to membership of the Council if: (a) his term of office has come to an end<sup>32</sup>; or (b) immediately after the suspension comes to an end his name is erased from the register<sup>33</sup> or he is suspended under the Medical Act 1983<sup>34</sup>.

(3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION

(i) The Registers

A. THE MEDICAL REGISTERS

34. The medical registers and lists.

The registrar of the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> must keep two registers of medical practitioners registered under the Medical Act 1983 containing the names of those registered and the qualifications<sup>2</sup> they are entitled to have registered under the Act<sup>3</sup>. The two registers referred to are:

- 9 (1) the register of medical practitioners, consisting of three lists, namely<sup>4</sup>: (a) the principal list<sup>5</sup>; (b) the visiting overseas doctors list<sup>6</sup>; and (c) the visiting EEA practitioners list<sup>7</sup>; and
- 10 (2) the register of medical practitioners with limited registration<sup>8</sup>.

Medical practitioners must be registered as fully registered<sup>9</sup> medical practitioners or provisionally or with limited registration<sup>10</sup> and in the appropriate list of the register of medical practitioners or in the register of medical practitioners with limited registration<sup>11</sup>.

The register of medical practitioners must include<sup>12</sup>: (a) in the principal list, the names of persons entitled to be registered under the general provisions relating to registration and provisional registration<sup>13</sup>, or directed to be registered<sup>14</sup>; (b) in the visiting overseas doctors list, the names of persons from time to time directed to be registered<sup>15</sup>; and (c) in the visiting EEA practitioners list, the names of persons entitled to be registered from time to time<sup>16</sup>. The register of medical practitioners with limited registration must include the names of persons granted limited registration<sup>17</sup>. Each register must also include the addresses and dates of registration of the persons registered in it, such of their qualifications as they are entitled to have registered<sup>18</sup> and such other particulars, if any, of those persons as may be prescribed<sup>19</sup> for that register<sup>20</sup>.

It is the duty of the registrar to keep the registers correct in accordance with the provisions of the Medical Act 1983 and regulations made by the General Medical Council, to erase the names of persons who have died<sup>21</sup>, and from time to time to make the necessary alterations in the addresses, qualifications and other registered particulars of registered persons<sup>22</sup>. The registrar may, by letter addressed to any person registered in either register at his address on the register, inquire whether he has changed his address and, if no answer is received to the inquiry within six months<sup>23</sup> from the posting of the letter, may erase from the register any entry relating to that person<sup>24</sup>.

35. Power to make regulations with respect to the registers.

Subject to the provisions of the Medical Act 1983, the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> may make regulations with respect to the form and keeping of the registers<sup>2</sup> and the making of entries, alterations and corrections in them<sup>3</sup>. Such regulations may provide for the registers to be kept either by making entries in bound books or by recording the matters in question in any other manner, and if either register is not kept by making entries in bound books, adequate precautions must be taken for guarding against, and facilitating the discovery of, falsification<sup>4</sup>. Different regulations may be made in relation to the register of medical practitioners and the register of medical practitioners with limited registration<sup>5</sup>.

The regulations may make provision with respect to the restoration to the registers or a particular list in the register of medical practitioners in which he was registered of the name of any person whose name has been erased from it<sup>6</sup>. Such regulations may include provision: (1) for authorising the registrar<sup>7</sup>, notwithstanding anything in the Act, to refuse to restore to the register<sup>8</sup> or a particular list in it the name of any such person unless he furnishes to the registrar such evidence of his identity and good character as may be prescribed<sup>9</sup>; and (2) for securing that, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, such a person's name is not so restored unless the General Medical Council or a committee of the Council so direct after making such investigation into his fitness to practise as it thinks fit<sup>10</sup>, the practitioner's licence to practise is restored in accordance with the regulations<sup>11</sup>, or both such conditions are met<sup>12</sup>. Such regulations<sup>13</sup> do not have effect until approved by order of the Privy Council<sup>14</sup>.

(A) THE SPECIALIST REGISTER

(a) The Register required under the European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995

39. The specialist register.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> must keep and publish a register of specialists<sup>2</sup>. The register must contain<sup>3</sup> the names of persons who hold a certificate of completion of specialist training<sup>4</sup> awarded by the specialist training authority<sup>5</sup>, and other eligible specialists<sup>6</sup>. A person is entitled to have his name included in the specialist register if he applies to the registrar<sup>7</sup> for the purpose, paying any fee<sup>8</sup> determined by the Council, and satisfies the registrar of his entitlement<sup>9</sup> and that he is a registered medical practitioner<sup>10</sup>. The specialist register must indicate: (1) the specialty in respect of which each person's name is included in the register<sup>11</sup>; and (2) where the specialist training authority is satisfied that he has particular expertise in a field within that specialty and he so requests in his application or subsequently, the name or a description of that field<sup>12</sup>. The Council must tell anyone who asks it, and pays any fee determined by the Council, whether or not a particular person's name is included in the register, and must do so in writing<sup>13</sup> if required, stating the date on which that person's name was entered in the register, the information included in the register<sup>14</sup> and any registration number identifying the entry<sup>15</sup>.

A person may not take up appointment to any post as consultant in the national health service<sup>16</sup> in a medical specialty<sup>17</sup> other than general practice, or any more specialised field within such a specialty, unless his name is included in the specialist register<sup>18</sup>.

The Council and the specialist training authority may each set those fees at levels such that (taken together) the fees also cover the cost of such of its overheads as are reasonably attributable to the performance of all of its functions under or by virtue of the order; but the fees must not include any element of profit: art 5(2) (prospectively revoked). The fee charged by the Council or the specialist training authority for any particular service must not include more than a reasonable proportion of the total cost of its overheads referred to in art 5(2) (prospectively revoked): art 5(3) (prospectively revoked). Article 5 (prospectively revoked) does not prevent the Council, where it has power to do so, from setting any other fee which it has power to charge at a level designed to include costs referred to in art 5 (prospectively revoked); but any costs recovered that way cannot also be recovered by way of fees under art 5 (prospectively revoked): art 5(4) (prospectively revoked).

THE SPECIALIST REGISTER AND THE GENERAL PRACTITIONER REGISTER/(A) The Specialist Register/(a) The Register required under the European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995/40. Exempt persons.

40. Exempt persons.

In the case of an exempt person<sup>1</sup>, the registrar<sup>2</sup> must, within the specified period<sup>3</sup>, give the applicant notice: (1) of the decision on the application<sup>4</sup>; and (2) where the decision is that the registrar is not satisfied<sup>5</sup>, of the reasons for the decision<sup>6</sup> and the applicant's right to appeal<sup>7</sup>. Where an exempt person must satisfy the specialist training authority as to certain matters<sup>8</sup> before the registrar is able to give a decision<sup>9</sup>, the authority must deal expeditiously with the matters before it to enable the registrar to give notice under heads (1) and (2) above within the specified period<sup>10</sup>. Failure to notify an applicant who is an exempt person of a decision within the specified period is treated as a decision from which the applicant may appeal<sup>11</sup>. If the registrar decides in respect of an exempt person that he is not satisfied in relation to an application<sup>12</sup>, the applicant may appeal against the decision to a registration appeals panel<sup>13</sup>.

1 'Exempt person' means a person who: (1) is a national of an EEA state who is exercising an enforceable Community right; or (2) is not a national of an EEA state, but is, by virtue of a right conferred by EC Council Regulation 1612/68 on freedom of movement for workers (OJ L257, 19.10.1968, p 2) art 11 or any other enforceable Community right, entitled to be treated, for the purposes of access to the medical profession, no less favourably than a national of such a state: European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208, art 8A(7) (art 8A added by SI 2003/3148; prospectively revoked). As from a day to be appointed, the European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208 (as amended) is revoked by the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250 (as amended): see arts 1(2), (3), 31(5), Sch 10 Pt 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the provisions intended to replace the European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208 (as amended) see PARAS 45-48, 53-56 post.

'National', in relation to an EEA state, means the same as it does for the purposes of the Community Treaties but does not include a person who by virtue of the Treaty of Accession Protocol No 3 (Channel Islands and Isle of Man) art 2 is not to benefit from Community provisions relating to the free movement of persons and services; 'EEA state' means a state which is a contracting party to the EEA Agreement or Switzerland; 'EEA Agreement' means the agreement on the European Economic Area signed at Oporto on 2 May 1992 as adjusted by the Protocol signed at Brussels on 17 March 1993 and as amended by Decisions of the EEA Joint Committee Nos 7/94 of 21 March 1994, 190/1999 of 17 December 1999, 89/2000 of 27 October 2000, 84/2002 of 25 June 2002, and by the agreement on the participation of the Czech Republic, the Republic of Estonia, the Republic of Cyprus, the Republic of Latvia, the Republic of Lithuania, the Republic of Hungary, the Republic of Malta, the Republic of Poland, the Republic of Slovenia and the Slovak Republic signed at Luxembourg on 14 October 2003; and 'EEA' means the European Economic Area, which is to be read as including Switzerland: European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208, art 2(2) (definitions amended by SI 2003/3148, and SI 2004/1947; prospectively revoked). For the meaning of 'the Community Treaties' see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1; and the European Communities Act 1972 s 1(2). As to the meaning of 'enforceable Community right' see the Interpretation Act 1978 Sch 1; and the European Communities Act 1972 s 2(1).

2 For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 note 1 ante.

3 'The specified period' means:

3 (1) the period of three months: (a) beginning with the date on which the registrar receives the application together with full supporting documentation (European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208, art 8A(3)(a)(i) (as added (see note 1 supra); prospectively revoked); or (b) if earlier, in a case mentioned in art 8A(4) (as added; prospectively revoked) (see the text to notes 8-10 infra), beginning with the date on which the specialist training authority receives all the documents enabling it to determine whether the applicant is an eligible specialist (art 8A(3)(a)(ii) (as so added; prospectively revoked); or

- 4 (2) such longer period as is permitted by art 15 of the Directive (art 8A(3)(b) (as so added; prospectively revoked).

The European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208, art 8A(3) (as added; prospectively revoked) is not yet in force in so far as it relates to art 8A(1)(b)(ii), (2) (as added; prospectively revoked) (see the text to notes 7, 11 infra): see the European Qualifications (Health Care Professions) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3148, art 1(1)(a)(ii).

In calculating the period of three months referred to in the European Specialist Medical Qualifications Order 1995, SI 1995/3208, art 8A(3) (as added; prospectively revoked), the period beginning with the date on which the specialist training authority gives the applicant notice under art 9(5) (prospectively revoked) (see PARA 41 text to notes 18-19 post) and ending with the date on which the registrar receives all the documents enabling him to be satisfied of the applicant's entitlement to have his name included in the specialist register in accordance with art 8(3) (prospectively revoked) (see PARA 39 text to notes 7-10 ante) is disregarded: art 8A(5) (as added (see note 1 supra); prospectively revoked).

39-56 The specialist register ... Access to the registers; certificates as to registration

Day now appointed in respect of provisions of the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250: London Gazette, 26 August 2005.

45. The specialist register.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. The General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> must keep a register of specialists, known as the 'specialist register'<sup>3</sup>. The specialist register must contain the names of persons who hold a certificate of completion of training<sup>4</sup> in a listed specialty<sup>5</sup> awarded by the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>6</sup>, and other eligible specialists<sup>7</sup>. A person is entitled to have his name included in the specialist register if he applies to the registrar of the General Medical Council for the purpose, paying any fee<sup>8</sup> specified by the Council in rules, and if he satisfies the registrar<sup>9</sup> of his entitlement<sup>10</sup>, and that he is a registered medical practitioner<sup>11</sup>. The specialist register must indicate the specialty in respect of which each person's name is included in the register<sup>12</sup>, and where the Board is satisfied that he has a particular expertise in a field within that specialty and he so requests in his application or subsequently, the name or a description of that field<sup>13</sup>.

A person may not take up appointment to any post as a consultant in the national health service<sup>14</sup> in a specialty, or any more specialised field within such a specialty, unless his name is included in the specialist register<sup>15</sup>.

1 The General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250, art 13 is to come into force on a day to be specified by the Secretary of State and notified in the London, Edinburgh and Belfast Gazettes: see art 1(2), (3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been specified. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

2 As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante.

3 General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250, art 13(1). 'Specialist register' means the register maintained by the Council pursuant to art 13(1): art 2, Sch 1.

4 For the meaning of 'certificate of completion of training' see PARA 87 note 2 post.

5 As to the listed specialties see the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250, art 13(2)(a), Sch 3.

6 Ibid art 13(2)(a). As to the Board see PARA 71 post.

7 le as specified in ibid art 14 (see PARA 46 post): art 13(2)(b).

The Board and the Council may each charge reasonable fees to cover the cost of providing services in the course of the performance of any of its functions under or by virtue of the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250 (as amended): art 24(1). Article 24 is to come into force on a day to be specified by the Secretary of State and notified in the London, Edinburgh and Belfast Gazettes: see art 1(2), (3). Article 24(5) came into force on 22 October 2003 so far as it relates to the Board, as did art 24(1)-(4) for the purpose of making rules under art 24(5). At the date at which this volume states the law no day had been specified for the commencement of art 24 for remaining purposes. The Board and the Council may each set those fees at levels such that the fees also cover the cost of such of its overheads as are reasonably attributable to the performance of its functions under or by virtue of the order, but the fees must not include any element of profit: art 24(2). The fee charged by the Board or the Council for any particular service must not include more than a reasonable proportion of the total cost of its overheads referred to in art 24(2): art 24(3). This article does not prevent the Council, where it has power to do so, from setting any other fee which it has power to charge at a level designated to include costs referred to in art 24, but any costs recovered that way cannot also be recovered by way of fees under art 24: art 24(4). If the Board or the Council charges any fee in accordance with art 24(1), it must specify the amount of the fee in rules: art 24(5). As to the making of rules by the Board see PARA 92 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such rules had been made.

10 le by virtue of ibid art 13(2) (see the text to notes 4-7 supra): art 13(3)(a).

11 Ibid art 13(3)(b). In the case of an oral and maxillo-facial surgeon, he must satisfy the registrar that he is also a registered dentist: art 13(3)(b). For the meaning of 'registered medical practitioner' see PARA 4 ante. For the meaning of 'registered dentist' see PARA 433 note 7 post; definition applied by Sch 1.

For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 3 ante.

14 'Consultant in the national health service' means a consultant other than a locum consultant (but including an honorary consultant) employed for the purposes of providing any service as part of the national health service; and 'national health service' means the health services established in pursuance of the National Health Service Act 1946: General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250, Sch 1. As to the national health service see HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 1 et seq.

48. Transitional arrangements.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. The registrar of the General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> must ensure that all specialists whose names are included in the old specialist register<sup>3</sup> immediately before the relevant date<sup>4</sup> are, on the relevant date, transferred to the specialist register<sup>5</sup>. Any application made to the Council for inclusion in the old specialist register that is made before, but is not finally dealt with by, the relevant date must be determined: (1) in accordance with the relevant provisions<sup>6</sup>, but if the application is successful the applicant's name must be included in the specialist register instead of the old specialist register<sup>7</sup>; and (2) within the time limit specified<sup>8</sup>, the time period beginning with the date on which the Council received the application for inclusion in the old specialist register together with full supporting documentation<sup>9</sup>. Any appeal against the Council's decision to refuse such an application<sup>10</sup> must be dealt with in accordance with the relevant provisions<sup>11</sup>, and if that appeal is successful the applicant's name must be included in the specialist register<sup>12</sup>.

Where a person has applied to the specialist training authority<sup>13</sup> in respect of eligibility for entry to the specialist register<sup>14</sup> before the relevant date but the application has not been determined by that date, the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>15</sup> must determine that application<sup>16</sup> and any appeal against a decision of the Board is to be made and determined in accordance with the relevant provisions<sup>17</sup>, but this does not prevent such a person from withdrawing any application he has made to the specialist training authority and making a new application to the Board<sup>18</sup>.

Where a person's name has, before the relevant date, been removed from the old specialist register<sup>19</sup> and, on or after the relevant date, it comes to the notice of the registrar of the General Medical Council that such a person is a registered medical practitioner<sup>20</sup>, the registrar must, if requested to do so by that person, include that person's name in the specialist register and send him notice of having done so<sup>21</sup>. Where a person's name has, before the relevant date, been removed from the old specialist register<sup>22</sup> and, on or after the relevant date, it comes to the notice of the registrar that such a person is no longer subject to suspension<sup>23</sup>, the registrar must, if he is satisfied that that person is a registered medical practitioner or, in the case of an oral and maxillo-facial surgeon, a registered medical practitioner and a registered dentist, include that person's name in the specialist register and send him notice of having done so<sup>24</sup>. Where a person's name has been removed from the old specialist register<sup>25</sup> before the relevant date, the relevant notice has been served on that person<sup>26</sup> and that person, on or after the relevant date, appeals against that removal within any relevant time limits<sup>27</sup>, if that appeal is successful that person's name must be included in the specialist register<sup>28</sup>.

Where an appeal is made<sup>29</sup> against a decision of the specialist training authority before the relevant date but it has not been determined by that date, the appeal must be determined in accordance with the relevant provisions<sup>30</sup>. In determining any application made to the Board by a person to whom the specialist training authority has, before the relevant date, given written<sup>31</sup> advice in relation to his training, the Board must take that advice into account in determining that person's application<sup>32</sup>.

Save in excepted cases<sup>6</sup>, the registrar must notify an applicant of such matters within the period of three months beginning with the date on which the registrar receives the application with full supporting documentation<sup>7</sup>, or any period of additional time which is permitted<sup>8</sup>.

The excepted cases are those where a person has applied to the Council for inclusion in either of the registers and he has previously had to satisfy the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>9</sup> that he is an eligible general practitioner<sup>10</sup> or an eligible specialist<sup>11</sup>. In relation to such cases, the Board must<sup>12</sup>: (a) upon receiving an application with full supporting documentation<sup>13</sup> deal expeditiously with that application<sup>14</sup>; and (b) co-operate with the Council, and the Council must co-operate with the Board, to ensure that an applicant who has made such an application to the Board is able to apply to the Council for inclusion in either of the registers<sup>15</sup> and obtain a decision from the Council within the specified time<sup>16</sup>.

If a person applies to the registrar of the General Medical Council in order to have his name included in the general practitioner register or the specialist register and he satisfies the registrar that he is a registered medical practitioner<sup>17</sup>, but his application for inclusion in either of the registers is unsuccessful because he fails to satisfy the registrar that he is an eligible general practitioner or eligible specialist<sup>18</sup>, the decision of the registrar is to be treated as an appealable decision<sup>19</sup>.

B. THE MEDICAL ROYAL COLLEGES

64. The medical Royal Colleges.

At the beginning of the twentieth century there were two Royal Colleges in England and Wales, the Royal College of Physicians<sup>1</sup> and the Royal College of Surgeons<sup>2</sup>. During the course of the century a number of new colleges developed and there now exist: the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists<sup>3</sup>; the Royal College of General Practitioners<sup>4</sup>; the Royal College of Pathologists<sup>5</sup>; the Royal College of Psychiatrists<sup>6</sup>; the Royal College of Radiologists<sup>7</sup>; the Royal College of Anaesthetists<sup>8</sup>; the Royal College of Ophthalmologists<sup>9</sup>; and the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health<sup>10</sup>.

As incorporated bodies the Royal Colleges may sue and be sued in their own names<sup>11</sup>. Their general purposes are to uphold professional standards, to oversee specialist medical education and grant specialist qualifications<sup>12</sup>, and to sponsor and encourage medical research. They all belong to the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges whose objectives are to co-ordinate the work of the medical Royal Colleges and Faculties<sup>13</sup>.

1 The Royal College of Physicians was founded as a college by charter dated 3 September 1518: 10 Hen 8.

2 The Royal College of Surgeons of England, offspring of much older bodies, dates in its present form from a charter of 1843.

3 The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists was established in 1929 as an incorporated company limited by guarantee, and received its Royal Charter in 1947.

4 The Royal College of General Practitioners received its Royal Charter in 1952.

5 The Royal College of Pathologists received its Royal Charter in 1970.

6 The Royal College of Psychiatrists has existed in various forms since 1841, receiving its Royal Charter to become the 'Royal Medico Psychological Association' in 1926, and receiving a supplemental charter to become the 'Royal College of Psychiatrists' in 1971.

7 The Royal College of Radiologists received its Royal Charter in 1975.

8 The Royal College of Anaesthetists received its Royal Charter in 1992.

9 The Royal College of Ophthalmologists received its Royal Charter in 1988. The College was formed from the Ophthalmological Society of the United Kingdom (founded in 1880) and the Faculty of Ophthalmologists (founded in 1946).

10 The Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health received its Royal Charter in 1996.

11 As to incorporation by Royal Charter see CORPORATIONS vol 9(2) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 1104, 1128 et seq.

12 By an agreement made in February 1883 between the Royal College of Physicians and the Royal College of Surgeons, a joint examination board has been established, and a candidate who passes the final examination conducted by this board is entitled to receive the licence of the Royal College of Physicians and the diploma of membership of the Royal College of Surgeons.

13 Membership of the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges includes the Scottish and Irish Royal Colleges.

SPECIALIST AND POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING/65. The competent authorities.

C. SPECIALIST AND POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING

65. The competent authorities.

In relation to specialist medical qualifications, there are two competent authorities in the United Kingdom<sup>1</sup> for the purposes of meeting European Union obligations relating to the training of specialist doctors and mutual recognition of their qualifications<sup>2</sup>. The competent authority for the purposes of the recognition and registration of specialist medical qualifications is the General Medical Council<sup>3</sup>. The competent authority for the purposes of specialist medical training and the issue of certificates of completion of specialist training<sup>4</sup> and certain other certificates is the specialist training authority<sup>5</sup>. Accordingly, in relation to specialist medical qualifications:

- 52 (1) the General Medical Council, as respects the United Kingdom, performs the functions of the host member state<sup>6</sup> relating to the confirmation of authenticity of foreign diplomas and confirmation that a person has fulfilled the required training requirements<sup>7</sup>;
- 53 (2) the specialist training authority, as respects the United Kingdom, has the functions of a competent authority in relation to:
  - 29 43. (a) the issue of certificates relating to training in the United Kingdom in certain specialties<sup>8</sup>;
  44. (b) the requirement to assess content and duration of training, to take account of professional experience, and to communicate what additional training is required in the United Kingdom<sup>9</sup>;
  45. (c) the issue of certificates to specialists whose qualifications were awarded in the United Kingdom or who have practised their specialty in the United Kingdom<sup>10</sup>;
  46. (d) the issue of certificates of fulfilment of training requirements in respect of qualifications which do not conform with the specified designations<sup>11</sup>; and
  47. (e) the function of confirming authenticity of certificates of completion of specialist training and of confirming that a person has fulfilled the training requirements<sup>12</sup>; and
- 30 54 (3) the specialist training authority, as respects the United Kingdom, performs the functions of a member state in respect of:
  - 31 48. (a) the requirement to fulfil domestic requirements for specialist training in certain specialties<sup>13</sup>;
  49. (b) the requirement to take into account additional training already undertaken and professional experience already acquired<sup>14</sup>;
  50. (c) the requirement to give a decision within four months of receipt of an application together with full supporting documentation<sup>15</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>16</sup> may give directions to the General Medical Council and to the specialist training authority in connection with their functions<sup>17</sup> and it is the duty of the body to whom the directions are given to comply with them<sup>18</sup>. Such directions may be as to matters of administration only<sup>19</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(ii) Medical Education and Standards of Proficiency/C. SPECIALIST AND POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING/74. Membership of the Board.

74. Membership of the Board.

The Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>1</sup> consists of 25 members, who are<sup>2</sup> either: (1) members whose names are included in the register of medical practitioners<sup>3</sup>, known as 'medical members'<sup>4</sup>; or (2) members who are not and never have been registered medical practitioners<sup>5</sup> and do not hold any qualification that is registrable under the Medical Act 1983, known as 'lay members'<sup>6</sup>. The number of medical members must exceed by at least one the number of lay members<sup>7</sup>. The specified bodies<sup>8</sup> each appoint one medical member and one lay member to the Board<sup>9</sup>, and the Secretary of State appoints the remaining members<sup>10</sup>. The Secretary of State must ensure that of the members he appoints at least one member is appointed from amongst persons who have been nominated by the General Medical Council<sup>11</sup>, and at least six medical members are appointed from amongst registered medical practitioners who have been nominated by a body that appears to him to represent the medical Royal Colleges in the United Kingdom<sup>12</sup>. The Secretary of State must, prior to appointing any such member, make a request in writing to the General Medical Council or the representative body for a list of names of persons that the General Medical Council or the representative body wishes to nominate, specifying in that request the number of nominations required<sup>13</sup> and the date by which those nominations are required<sup>14</sup>. An appointing authority must consult such persons as it considers appropriate before appointing any member<sup>15</sup>, and appoint members from among persons who have such qualifications, interests and experience as, in the opinion of that authority, will be of value to the Board in the performance of its functions<sup>16</sup>.

Each member's term of office is for a period of three years<sup>17</sup>. A person may be removed from office as a Board member in such circumstances as may be provided for by the Board in rules<sup>18</sup>, and every member must retire from the Board on reaching the age of 70<sup>19</sup>. A member may resign at any time by giving notice in writing<sup>20</sup> to the Board and to the appointing authority that appointed him<sup>21</sup>. No person is prevented from being appointed merely because he has previously been a member of the Board<sup>22</sup>. Where a member ceases to be a member, the appointing authority that appointed him must appoint a member to replace him<sup>23</sup>, but if the unexpired term<sup>24</sup> is less than 12 months the vacancy need not be filled if the Board consents<sup>25</sup>.

The Board<sup>1</sup> must, as soon as is reasonably practicable, make a determination that a member<sup>2</sup> is unsuitable to continue his membership of the Board once it is satisfied that that member, during his tenure of office as a member is subject to specified events<sup>3</sup>.

The Board may make a determination that a member is unsuitable to continue his membership of the Board if it is satisfied that that member has failed to attend three consecutive meetings of the Board<sup>4</sup>, or has committed a serious breach of the code of conduct<sup>5</sup> or, in its reasonable opinion, that his continued membership presents a real risk that confidence in the work of the Board may be undermined<sup>6</sup>. However, the Board must not make such a determination unless the chair has given the member a reasonable opportunity to make written<sup>7</sup> representations to the chair<sup>8</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed the Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>1</sup> may, if it thinks fit, appoint a panel of persons, called a 'visiting panel', to visit any hospital, institution, general practitioner<sup>2</sup> or other person by whom, where or under whose direction or management any postgraduate medical education or training leading to the award of a certificate of completion of training<sup>3</sup> is, or is proposed to be given<sup>4</sup>, or any sub-specialty training is, or is proposed to be given<sup>5</sup>. A visiting panel must include at least one person who is not and never has been a registered medical practitioner<sup>6</sup> and who does not hold any qualification that is registrable under the Medical Act 1983<sup>7</sup>. Where a visiting panel visits any hospital, institution, general practitioner or other person in the exercise of its functions, it is the duty of the panel to prepare a report to the Board on the visit<sup>8</sup>. The Board must, following a request by any person, make available such reports<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the requirements of these provisions, the Board must make rules<sup>10</sup> in relation to visiting panels and such rules must include provision as to: (1) the composition of visiting panels<sup>11</sup>; (2) the areas or matters to be covered by a report to the Board<sup>12</sup>; (3) the frequency with which visiting panels must visit the persons or bodies specified<sup>13</sup>; (4) the manner in which such visits are to be conducted<sup>14</sup>; (5) the payment of allowances to persons appointed to visiting panels, including the payment of allowances to employers of persons appointed to visiting panels for the purposes of enabling visitors to perform their functions as visitors<sup>15</sup>; and (6) the reimbursement of such expenses as persons appointed to visiting panels may reasonably have incurred in the course of the panel carrying out its functions<sup>16</sup>.

Any hospital, institution, general practitioner or other person that may be visited by a visiting panel must, whenever required to do so by the Board, give to the Board such information as the Board may reasonably require in connection with the exercise of its functions<sup>17</sup>. The matters with respect to which the Board may require information include the standards and requirements which must be met by persons pursuing postgraduate medical education and training leading to the award of a certificate of completion of training<sup>18</sup>, and the procedures for managing that education or training<sup>19</sup>. Where such a person or body fails to comply with any reasonable request for information made by the Board, the Board may on that ground alone, after having warned that person or body that this sanction may be imposed, direct that the postgraduate medical education or training to which that information relates is no longer approved, or from a specified date will be no longer approved<sup>20</sup>.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(ii) Medical Education and Standards of Proficiency/C. SPECIALIST AND POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING/87. Certificates of completion of training.

87. Certificates of completion of training.

The Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>1</sup> must award a certificate of completion of training<sup>2</sup> to any person who applies to the Board for that purpose, and who pays any fee specified in rules made by the Board<sup>3</sup>, if the Board is satisfied that he has satisfactorily completed education and training, approved by the Board<sup>4</sup>. A certificate of completion of training may be awarded only to a registered medical practitioner<sup>5</sup>, and only to a person who has been appointed to a course of training intended to lead to the award of a certificate of completion of training and has successfully completed that course of training<sup>6</sup>. The Board may only award a certificate of completion of training in general practice, or in a listed specialty<sup>7</sup>. A certificate of completion of training must state:

- 71 (1) the date on which it was awarded<sup>8</sup>;
- 72 (2) that it was awarded in general practice, or, where applicable, in which specialty it was awarded<sup>9</sup>;
- 73 (3) the name of its holder<sup>10</sup>;
- 74 (4) his primary medical qualifications and where those qualifications were awarded<sup>11</sup>; and
- 75 (5) his registration number in the register of medical practitioners<sup>12</sup>.

A certificate of completion of training must be signed by the chair of the Board<sup>13</sup> or by such other persons as the chair has nominated for this purpose<sup>14</sup>.

For the purposes of compliance with European Union obligations<sup>15</sup>, the vocational training certificate<sup>16</sup> issued in the United Kingdom<sup>17</sup> is the certificate of completion of training in general practice<sup>18</sup>. Similarly, for such purposes<sup>19</sup>, the diploma, certificate or other evidence of formal qualifications in specialised medicine in the United Kingdom is the certificate of completion of training awarded in a listed specialty<sup>20</sup>.

Where the Board is satisfied that a certificate of completion of training has been fraudulently procured or incorrectly awarded, it must direct that the certificate of completion of training be withdrawn<sup>21</sup> and notify the General Medical Council that it has withdrawn that person's certificate of completion of training<sup>22</sup>.

At the date at which this volume states the law no day had been specified for the commencement of art 8 for remaining purposes. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

The Board must make rules as to the procedure to be followed in relation to and by persons wishing to apply to the Board for a certificate of completion of training, including rules as to the evidence it requires in support of such an application: art 8(8). At the date at which this volume states the law no such rules had been made.

6 Ibid art 8(3). However, nothing in art 8 prevents the Board from awarding a certificate of completion of training to a person when exercising its competent authority functions under the Directive art 8 as set out in the General and Specialist Medical Practice (Education, Training and Qualifications) Order 2003, SI 2003/1250, art 20(3)(a) (see PARA 88 text to notes 18-24 post): art 8(4). In relation to specialist qualifications there are two competent authorities in the United Kingdom<sup>12</sup>. In addition to the other functions conferred upon it<sup>16</sup>, the General Medical Council performs the function, in the event of justified doubts, of requiring the competent authority of another member state that has awarded a diploma, certificate or other evidence of formal qualification to confirm its authenticity and to confirm that the holder of the diploma, certificate or other evidence of formal qualification has fulfilled the minimum training requirements<sup>17</sup>. In addition to the other functions conferred upon it<sup>18</sup>, the Board performs the following functions of a member state or its competent authorities or bodies:

60. (c) of communicating its decision to the person concerned within four months of the date on which that person submits his application for a certificate of completion of training, together with full supporting documentation<sup>23</sup>; and
61. (d) the function of awarding certificates of completion of training to EEA nationals<sup>24</sup>;

40

- 77 (2) where required to do so by another EEA state, the function<sup>25</sup> of issuing certificates to specialists holding a specialist qualification that does not satisfy all the minimum training requirements<sup>26</sup> and that was awarded following training begun before the relevant date<sup>27</sup> where either:

41

62. (a) that qualification was awarded by the United Kingdom<sup>28</sup>; or
63. (b) the person holding that qualification has subsequently become established in the United Kingdom<sup>29</sup>, SPECIALIST AND POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING/89. Appeals against a decision of the Board.

89. Appeals against a decision of the Board.

The Postgraduate Medical Education and Training Board (the 'Board')<sup>1</sup> must secure that a person falling within heads (1) to (11) below has the right of appeal against the decision, act or omission specified in the relevant head to a panel of independent persons, called 'an appeal panel', which must be convened by the Board as soon as practicable<sup>2</sup>. The persons to whom this provision applies are:

- 81 (1) any hospital, institution or other person who satisfies an appeal panel that it or he has a substantial interest in a decision relating to the approval of education and training leading to the award of a certificate of completion of training<sup>3</sup> where the Board has<sup>4</sup>:
- 43
64. (a) refused to approve that education and training other than by virtue of a restriction imposed by rules<sup>5</sup>;

- 91 (11) a person to whom the Board refuses to award a certificate of acquired rights<sup>21</sup>.

Having considered an appeal, an appeal panel may dismiss the appeal<sup>22</sup>, allow the appeal and quash the decision appealed against<sup>23</sup>, substitute for the decision appealed against any other decision that the Board could have made<sup>24</sup>, or remit the case to the Board to be disposed of in accordance with the directions of the appeal panel<sup>25</sup>. However, where an appeal is made under head (6), (8) or (10) above, an appeal panel may, having considered the appeal, dismiss the appeal<sup>26</sup>, or allow the appeal and direct the Board to take a decision within a specified time<sup>27</sup>, or make any decision that the Board could have made<sup>28</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/ (iii) Qualifications and Experience required for Registration/95. Experience required for full registration.

95. Experience required for full registration.

After passing a qualifying examination<sup>1</sup>, a person must satisfy certain requirements as to experience before he is entitled to be registered as a fully registered<sup>2</sup> medical practitioner under the statutory provisions relating to registration of holders of primary United Kingdom qualifications<sup>3</sup>. The requirements are that he must have been engaged for the prescribed period<sup>4</sup> in employment in a resident medical capacity<sup>5</sup> in one or more approved<sup>6</sup> hospitals<sup>7</sup>, approved institutions<sup>8</sup> or approved medical practices<sup>9</sup> and have obtained an appropriate certificate<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to qualifying examinations see PARA 94 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'fully registered' see PARA 3 ante.

3 See the Medical Act 1983 s 10(1), (2) (s 10(1) amended by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 15(1)). For the meaning of 'primary United Kingdom qualification' see PARA 93 ante. As to the statutory provisions for registration of such persons see the Medical Act 1983 s 3 (as substituted); and PARA 99 post.

4 For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations of the education committee: ibid s 11(4). In making regulations under s 10(2), the education committee must have regard to the requirements of Directive 93/16 art 23 and such regulations do not have effect until approved by order of the Privy Council: Medical Act 1983 s 11(5) (substituted by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 7, Sch 2 para 3; and amended by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(6)). For the meaning of 'Directive 93/16' see PARA 57 note 9 ante; and as to the requirements of art 23 see PARA 57 text to notes 11-18 ante. The Privy Council may approve regulations of the education committee made under the Medical Act 1983 s 10(2) either as submitted to it or with such modifications as appear to it requisite; but where the Privy Council proposes to approve any such regulations subject to modifications it must notify to the education committee the modifications it proposes to make and consider any observations of the committee on the proposed modifications: s 11(6). The power of the Privy Council to make such orders is exercisable by statutory instrument: see s 51(1). No such order may be made unless a draft has been laid before Parliament and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 51(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no order had been made under s 11(5), but by virtue of s 56(1), Sch 6 paras 3, 14 and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the Medical Act 1950 (Period of Employment as House Officers) Regulations Approval Order of Council 1952, SI 1952/2050, which prescribes a period of 12 months, has effect as if made under the Medical Act 1983 ss 10, 11 (as amended). As to the laying of documents before Parliament see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 941.

5 References to 'employment in a resident medical capacity' are to be construed as references to employment in the practice of any branch of medicine prescribed for the purposes of the Medical Act 1983 s 10 where: (1) in the case of an approved hospital or an approved institution, the person employed is resident in the hospital or institution where he is employed or conveniently near to it and is by the terms of his employment required to be so resident (s 11(1), (3)(a)); or (2) in the case of an approved medical practice, the person employed satisfies such conditions as to residence as may be prescribed (s 11(3)(b) (amended by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(3)(a); and the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(3)(b)). For the purposes of the Medical Act 1983 s 11(3)(b) (as amended) and in the definition of 'medical practice' (see note 9 infra), 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 11(4) (definition amended by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(4)(b)). Such regulations made by the Secretary of State must be made by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see the Medical Act 1983 s 11(7) (added by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(7)). As to the regulations that have been made see the Medical Act 1983 (Approved Medical Practices and Conditions of Residence) and National Health Service (General Medical Services) (Amendment) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1664 (amended by SI 2000/3040; SI 2004/696; SI 2004/865; SI 2004/1016). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

6 'Approved' means approved for the time being by any university or other body specified in the Medical Act 1983 s 4(3) (see PARA 93 text to notes 1-5 ante) as providing experience required by one or more prescribed patterns of experience: s 11(4). For the meaning of 'prescribed pattern of experience' see PARA 57 note 8 ante.

7 Ibid s 10(2)(a) (s 10(2)(a)-(c) substituted by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(2)).

8 Medical Act 1983 s 10(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 7 supra). 'Institution' includes a health centre if, and only if, it is a centre provided under the National Health Service Act 1977 ss 2, 3; Medical Act 1983 s 12(1). Employment in such a centre is not treated as employment for the purposes of ss 10, 11 (as amended) unless it is either: (1) employment by a fully registered medical practitioner in the provision of primary medical services under the National Health Service Act 1977 Pt I (ss 1-28Y) (as amended) (Medical Act 1983 s 12(2)(a) (amended by the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 s 184, Sch 11 paras 47, 49)); or (2) employment in the provision of the services of specialists or other services provided for out-patients in a health centre provided as mentioned in the Medical Act 1983 s 12(1) (s 12(2)(b)). The education committee may by regulations provide that the period of employment in a health centre which may be reckoned towards the completion of any of the periods mentioned in s 10(3)(a) (see PARA 96 text to note 5 post) must not exceed such period as may be specified in the regulations: s 12(3). In making such regulations, the education committee must have regard to the requirements of Directive 93/16 art 23; Medical Act 1983 s 12(4) (added by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 7, Sch 2 para 4). Regulations made by the education committee under the Medical Act 1983 s 12(3) are not statutory instruments and are not recorded in this work.

9 Ibid s 10(2)(c) (as substituted: see note 7 supra). 'Medical practice' means a prescribed description of practice in which one or more medical practitioners perform primary medical services under the National Health Service Act 1977 Pt I (as amended) (see HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 263); Medical Act 1983 s 11(4) (definition added by the National Health Service (Primary Care) Act 1997 s 35(4)(a); and amended by the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 s 184, Sch 11 paras 47, 48(a)). See also note 5 supra.

10 Medical Act 1983 s 10(2). As to such certificates see PARA 96 post. For alternative requirements as to experience see PARA 97 post.

A person who is subject to a disqualifying decision<sup>1</sup> in an EEA state<sup>2</sup> in which he is or has been established in medical practice is not entitled to be registered<sup>3</sup> for so long as the decision remains in force in relation to him<sup>4</sup>. If a person has been registered and it is subsequently shown to the satisfaction of the registrar<sup>5</sup> that he was subject to a disqualifying decision in force at the time of registration, and that the decision remains in force, the registrar must remove the person's name from the register<sup>6</sup>. Such a decision not to register a person or to remove a person's name from the register, is an appealable registration decision<sup>7</sup>.

If a person has been registered as a fully registered<sup>8</sup> medical practitioner at a time when a disqualifying decision was in force in respect of him, and he has been so registered for a period of not less than one month throughout which the decision had effect, a fitness to practise panel<sup>9</sup> may direct that his registration be suspended for such period, not exceeding the length of the first-mentioned period, as the panel think fit, and the period of suspension begins on a date to be specified in the panel's direction<sup>10</sup>.

1 'A disqualifying decision' in respect of a person is a decision, made by responsible authorities of the EEA state (see note 2 infra) in which he was established in medical practice or in which he acquired a primary United Kingdom or primary European qualification, and:

- 19 (1) expressed to be made on the grounds that he has committed a criminal offence or on grounds related to his professional conduct, professional performance or physical or mental health (Medical Act 1983 s 44(2)(a) (s 44 substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2,13)); and
- 20 (2) having in that state the effect either that he is no longer registered or otherwise officially recognised as a medical practitioner, or that he is prohibited from practising medicine there (Medical Act 1983 s 44(2)(b) (as so substituted)).

For the meaning of 'primary United Kingdom qualification' see PARA 93 ante. For the meaning of 'primary European qualification' see PARA 98 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'EEA state' see PARA 3 note 2 ante.

3 Ie by virtue of the Medical Act 1983 s 3(1)(b) (as substituted): see PARA 99 text to notes 4-6 ante.

4 Ibid s 44(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). Where on or after the date on which a person was registered a disqualifying decision relating to him comes into force, the provisions relating to the power to order immediate suspension and the provisions relating to disciplinary proceedings apply, with any necessary modifications, as if it had been found that he had been convicted of the criminal offence referred to in the disqualifying decision, or that his professional conduct, professional performance or physical or mental health had been such as is imputed to him by that decision, as the case may be: s 44(6) (as so substituted). As to the provisions relating to the power to order immediate suspension and to disciplinary proceedings see PARA 138 et seq post.

5 For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 note 1 ante.

6 Medical Act 1983 s 44(3) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante. Where the registrar receives information that a practitioner, registered by virtue of s 3(1)(b) (as substituted) (see PARA 99 text to note 6 ante) for a period of not less than one month, is subject to a disqualifying decision which decision has been in force throughout the period he has been registered, the registrar may refer the matter for consideration by a fitness to practise panel: General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) (Disqualifying Decisions and Determinations by Regulatory Bodies) Procedure Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2607, r 3, 3(a). For the meaning of 'practitioner' see PARA 182 note 1 post. As to the consideration of such matters by a fitness to practise panel see PARA 182 post.

7     le for the purposes of the Medical Act 1983 s 34B, Sch 3A (both as added) (see PARA 126 post): s 44(4). Section 44(4) is to come into force on a day to be appointed: see the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, art 1(2), (3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the transitional provisions in force until the Medical Act 1984 s 44 is brought into force see the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002 (Transitional Provision) Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2610.

TEXT AND NOTES--Medical Act 1983 s 15A amended: SI 2007/3101.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(iv) Registration of United Kingdom and EEA Practitioners/103A. Temporary registration with regard to emergencies involving loss of human life or human illness etc.

103A. Temporary registration with regard to emergencies involving loss of human life or human illness etc.

If the Secretary of State advises the registrar that an emergency has occurred, is occurring or is about to occur and that action ought to be considered under this provision, the registrar may register (1) a person as a fully registered medical practitioner, if the registrar considers that the person is a fit, proper and suitably experienced person to be registered as a fully registered medical practitioner with regard to the emergency; or (2) the persons comprising a specified group of persons as fully registered medical practitioners, if the registrar considers that the group is comprised of persons who are of a type who may reasonably be considered fit, proper and suitably experienced persons to be registered as fully registered medical practitioners with regard to the emergency: Medical Act 1983 s 18A(1) (s 18A added by SI 2008/1774). For these purposes 'emergency' means an emergency of the type described in the Civil Contingencies Act 2004 s 19(1)(a) (meaning of 'emergency'), read with s 19(2)(a), (b) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS): Medical Act 1983 s 18A(9). For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 NOTE 1. The registrar may register by virtue of head (2) all of the persons comprising a specified group of persons without first identifying each person in the group: s 18A(2). The registration of a person under this provision is subject to such conditions as the registrar may specify, and the registrar may at any time vary the conditions to which a person's registration under this provision is subject (including by adding to the conditions or revoking any conditions): s 18A(3). The registration of any person registered under this provision by virtue of head (2) as one of a specified group may be subject to the same conditions as the registration of other members of the group, or it may be subject to different conditions: s 18A(4). A person's registration under this provision ceases to have effect if revoked by the registrar, which (a) the registrar must do if the Secretary of State advises the registrar that the circumstances that led the Secretary of State to advise the registrar as mentioned in s 18A(1) no longer exist; (b) the registrar may do for any other reason at any time, including where the registrar has grounds for suspecting that the person's fitness to practise may be impaired: s 18A(5). The registration of a person registered by virtue of head (2) as one of a specified group may be revoked without revoking the registration of the other members of the group, or it may be revoked by virtue of a decision to revoke the registration of all the members of the group: s 18A(6). Part 5 (ss 35-44D), apart from ss 35, 35A(1), (4)-(8), 35B(2), (3), do not apply to persons registered under s 18A: s 18A(7). If a person breaches any condition to which the person's registration under this provision is subject, anything done by the person in breach of that condition is to be treated as not being done by a registered medical practitioner: s 18A(8).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(v) Registration of Overseas Practitioners/109. Limited registration of overseas practitioners.

109. Limited registration of overseas practitioners.

If a person satisfies the registrar<sup>1</sup>:

- 103 (1) that he has been selected for employment in the British Islands<sup>2</sup> of a description approved by the General Medical Council<sup>3</sup>;
- 104 (2) that he holds, has held, or has passed the examination necessary for obtaining some acceptable overseas qualification<sup>4</sup> or qualifications<sup>5</sup>;
- 105 (3) that he has the necessary knowledge of English<sup>6</sup> or is an exempt person<sup>7</sup>;
- 106 (4) that he is of good character<sup>8</sup>; and
- 107 (5) that he has the knowledge and skill, and has acquired the experience, which is necessary for practice as a medical practitioner with limited registration and which is appropriate in his case<sup>9</sup>, then he is entitled, if the Council thinks fit to give the necessary direction, to be registered as a medical practitioner with limited registration<sup>10</sup>.

The limits of a person's limited registration are defined in the direction by virtue of which he is registered, which must specify a period, not exceeding his permitted period<sup>11</sup>, as the period for which his limited registration is to have effect<sup>12</sup>, and the particular employment or the descriptions of employment for the purposes of which he is registered<sup>13</sup>; and, unless the specified employment terminates<sup>14</sup> or the limited registration is erased<sup>15</sup>, that person's registration has effect for the period and for the purposes of the particular employment or the descriptions of employment specified in the direction<sup>16</sup>.

A person registered with limited registration is entitled, on being so registered, to have the acceptable overseas qualification or qualifications held by him registered<sup>17</sup>, and he is to be treated as a fully registered medical practitioner<sup>18</sup> in relation to:

- 108 (a) any employment in which he is engaged during the currency of his registration, being the particular employment or employment of a description for the purposes of which he is registered<sup>19</sup>;
- 109 (b) things done or omitted in the course of that employment<sup>20</sup>; and
- 110 (c) any other thing incidental to his work in that employment which, by virtue of any enactment, may not lawfully or validly be done except by a fully registered medical practitioner<sup>21</sup>, but in relation to other matters he is to be treated as not so registered<sup>22</sup>. He must not, however, while engaged in the particular employment or in employment of a description for the purposes of which he is registered, work otherwise than under the supervision of a person who is registered as a fully registered medical practitioner<sup>23</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'British Islands' see PARA 20 note 10 ante.

3 Medical Act 1983 s 22(1)(a) (s 22(1)(a) substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 6(1), (6)(a)). As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante.

4 'Acceptable overseas qualification' means any qualification granted outside the United Kingdom and for the time being accepted by the Council for the purposes of the Medical Act 1983 s 22 (as amended) as furnishing a sufficient guarantee of the possession of the knowledge and skill requisite for the practice of medicine under the supervision of a person who is registered as a fully registered medical practitioner: ss 22(4), 55(1). For the meaning of 'qualification' see PARA 34 note 2 ante. For the meaning of 'fully registered' see PARA 3 ante.

5 Ibid s 22(1)(b).

6 For the meaning of 'the necessary knowledge of English' see PARA 105 note 7 ante. The Council may provide facilities for testing the knowledge of English of such applicants for registration: ibid s 1(4), Sch 1 para 11 (amended by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 9(3)).

7 Medical Act 1983 s 22(1)(c) (amended by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 6(5); and the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, art 6(6)(b)). In determining an application by an exempt person for registration, the Council must take into account: (1) if the applicant holds, has held or has passed the examination necessary for obtaining a qualification granted outside the European Economic Area which has been accepted by another EEA state as qualifying him to practise as a medical practitioner in that state, the acceptance of the qualification (Medical Act 1983 s 22(1A)(a) (s 22(1A) added by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 6(6); and substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 6(1), (6)(c))); and (2) all medical qualifications, knowledge or experience, wherever acquired, which are relevant to the determination of his application (Medical Act 1983 s 22(1A)(b) (as so added and substituted)). For the meaning of 'exempt person' see PARA 104 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'EEA state' see PARA 3 note 2 ante.

Medical training may comprise training received even mainly in a third country, ie outside the EEA, provided that the competent authority of the member state awarding the qualification is in a position to validate the training and to conclude on that basis that it duly serves to meet the specified requirements for the training of doctors; and where a member state has issued a certificate stating that a qualification has been awarded following training in accordance with the specified requirements, or has confirmed the authenticity of a qualification and the fact that the holder of the qualification has completed all the requisite training requirements, another member state is bound by that certificate or authentication, although, in the event of new factors coming to light which give rise to serious doubts as to the authenticity of the qualification or as to whether it complies with the applicable rules, it is permissible for the latter member state to re-open the matter of verification with the authorities of the member state awarding the relevant qualification: Case-110/1 Tennah-Durez v Conseil National de l'Ordre des Medecins [2003] All ER (EC) 850, [2004] 1 CMLR 417, ECJ. As to the specified requirements for education and training see PARA 57 ante.

8 Medical Act 1983 s 22(1)(d).

9 Ibid s 22(1)(e). What knowledge and skill, and what experience, is necessary for practice as a medical practitioner with limited registration is to be determined by the Council in relation to each branch of medicine and to practise therein in the descriptions of employment for the purposes of which persons apply for limited registration: s 23(2). For the purposes of s 22(1)(e), the knowledge and skill, and the experience, which is appropriate in the case of an applicant means the knowledge and skill, or the experience, determined by the Council which appears to the registrar to be appropriate to the particular employment or the descriptions of employment for which the applicant desires to be registered: s 23(3). In the case of any particular application for limited registration, the Council may give to the registrar a direction determining what knowledge and skill, or what experience, determined by the Council for these purposes, is appropriate in the case of the applicant having regard to the particular employment or descriptions of employment for the purposes of which the applicant desires to have, or the Council considers it may grant, limited registration: s 23(4). In the case of any applicant or applicants of any description, the Council may give to the registrar a direction exempting that applicant or those applicants from compliance with s 22(1)(e) as to knowledge and skill, or experience, or both: s 23(5).

10 Ibid s 22(1). 'Limited registration' means registration under s 22 (as amended) limited in accordance with s 22(5) (see the text to notes 11-16 infra) in respect of the period for which and the employment for the purposes of which it has effect: ss 22(2), 55(1). An applicant for limited registration must specify in his application the particular employment or the descriptions of employment for the purposes of which he desires to be registered and must give such other particulars as the Council may require: s 23(1). On registering a person with limited registration, the registrar must issue to him an appropriate registration certificate: see s 33, Sch 3 para 5(2); and PARA 38 ante. As to appeals against a decision not to direct that a person should be registered or registered for a further period, or defining the limits of a person's registration, see PARA 126 post.

11 No person may have limited registration for a period, or for periods which amount in the aggregate to a period, exceeding five years (ibid s 22(3)); and the 'permitted period', in relation to an applicant for limited registration, means: (1) if he has not previously been registered with limited registration, five years (ss 22(3)(a), 55(1)); or (2) if he has previously been so registered, the amount by which five years exceeds the periods or aggregate of periods for which he has been so registered (ss 22(3)(b), 55(1)).

12 Ibid s 22(5)(a).

13 Ibid s 22(5)(b). Where a direction specifies a particular employment as the employment for the purposes of which a person has limited registration and that employment terminates before the end of the specified period, the limited registration ceases to have effect when that employment terminates: s 22(6).

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> may, on an application containing such particulars as it may require being made to it by a person who is registered with limited registration<sup>2</sup>, direct that his name be erased from the register<sup>3</sup> on his own application on such day as it may specify in the direction; but the Council must disregard the fact that a person's name has been so erased in deciding whether or not to grant him limited registration for a further period<sup>4</sup>.

If, having regard to his performance in a relevant employment<sup>5</sup>, it appears to the Council that a person registered with limited registration does not in fact possess the appropriate knowledge and skill<sup>6</sup>, the Council may, if it thinks fit, direct that his name be erased from the register<sup>7</sup>. However, no person's name may be so erased from the register unless the registrar<sup>8</sup> has served on him a notification of the grounds on which the Council is considering exercising its powers to erase his name<sup>9</sup>, and the Council has afforded him an opportunity of making representations to it in the matter<sup>10</sup>.

115. Evidence of entitlement to qualifications.

A person applying for full or provisional registration<sup>1</sup> or for registration of primary United Kingdom or primary European qualifications<sup>2</sup> must produce or send to the appropriate registrar<sup>3</sup> the document conferring or evidencing the qualification<sup>4</sup> by virtue of which the application is made, together with a statement of the applicant's name and address and such other particulars, if any, as may be required for registration<sup>5</sup>. However, any university or other body entitled to grant primary United Kingdom qualifications for these purposes<sup>6</sup> may, from time to time, send to the registrar<sup>7</sup> or the registrar of a branch council lists, certified under the body's seal, of the persons who have been granted qualifications by it stating the qualifications and addresses of the persons included in the list; and a registrar may treat any such list sent to him as sufficient evidence of the entitlement of any person mentioned in it to the qualification which he is stated in it to have been granted<sup>8</sup>.

A registrar may not register any qualification, whether on first registration of a person or by way of addition, unless he is satisfied that the person claiming the qualification is entitled to it<sup>9</sup>. If, however, a registrar determines that he is not so satisfied, the person in question may appeal to the General Medical Council<sup>10</sup>.

116. Effect of disqualification or conviction on registration.

Without prejudice to regulations made with respect to the register<sup>1</sup>, the registrar<sup>2</sup> may, notwithstanding anything in the Medical Act 1983, refuse to register any person under any provision of the Act<sup>3</sup>, who: (1) has, in the British Islands<sup>4</sup>, been convicted of, or cautioned for, a criminal offence or convicted elsewhere of an offence which, if committed in England and Wales, would constitute a criminal offence<sup>5</sup>; or (2) has been the subject of a determination by a body in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup> responsible under any enactment<sup>7</sup> for the regulation of a health or social care profession to the effect that his fitness to practise as a member of that profession is impaired, or a determination by a regulatory body<sup>8</sup> elsewhere to the same effect<sup>9</sup>. If a person has been registered by virtue of any provision of the Act and it is subsequently shown to the satisfaction of the registrar that he is a person to whom head (1) or head (2) above applies<sup>10</sup>, and he had not informed the registrar of that fact at the time of registration<sup>11</sup>, the registrar may remove that person's name from the register<sup>12</sup>. ### 117. Regulations as to registration fees.

Subject to the provisions of the Medical Act 1983, the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> may make regulations with respect to the charging of fees in connection with the making of entries in the register of medical practitioners<sup>2</sup>, and in particular: (1) prescribing a fee to be charged on the entry<sup>3</sup> of a name or qualification in the register<sup>4</sup> or on the restoration of any entry to the register<sup>5</sup>; (2) prescribing a fee to be charged in respect of the retention in the register of the name of a person in any year subsequent to the year beginning with the date on which he was first registered<sup>6</sup>; (3) authorising the registrar<sup>7</sup>, notwithstanding anything in the Act, to refuse to make any entry in, or restore any entry to, the register or a particular list in it until a fee prescribed by such regulations has been paid<sup>8</sup>. The regulations may provide for the charging of different fees in different cases and may provide that fees are not be chargeable in prescribed cases<sup>9</sup>. However, the regulations may not provide for any fee to be chargeable in respect of anything done in pursuance of a direction relating to restoration to the register<sup>10</sup>, and no fee is to be charged in relation to registration as a visiting EEA practitioner<sup>11</sup>.

Where, on an application in that behalf by any person, a direction is given: (a) that he be registered with limited registration<sup>12</sup>, or for his name to be erased from the register of medical practitioners with limited registration<sup>13</sup>, the Council may include a direction that the right to registration or erasure conferred thereby is subject to the payment by him of such fee as may be specified in the direction<sup>14</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vi) Entry, Alteration and Removal of Names and Qualifications/118. Registration fees.

118. Registration fees.

The registrar<sup>1</sup> must not make any entry in the register<sup>2</sup> until the prescribed registration fee, if any, has been paid<sup>3</sup>.

Any fully registered<sup>4</sup> person who is not exempted<sup>5</sup> is liable to pay an annual retention fee in respect of the retention of his name in the register in any year subsequent to the year beginning with the date on which he first obtained full registration<sup>6</sup>. Similarly any provisionally registered<sup>7</sup> person who is not exempted is liable to pay an annual retention fee in respect of the retention of his name in the register in any year subsequent to a period of two years beginning with the date on which he first obtained provisional registration<sup>8</sup>. The registrar must cause a notice to be sent not less than seven days before the due date<sup>9</sup> to each fully or provisionally registered person who is liable to pay an annual retention fee<sup>10</sup>. On receipt of an annual retention fee from any registered person the registrar must issue to that person a certificate confirming the continuation of his registration<sup>11</sup>.

Where a person is liable to pay an annual retention fee and is in arrears of payment of the fee due from him for more than 28 days, the registrar must send him notice<sup>12</sup> warning that if the outstanding amount is not paid within 28 days of the date of the notice his name may be erased from the register.<sup>13</sup> Where a person is liable to pay an annual retention fee or has been granted a discount or a refund<sup>14</sup>, and a notice or notices have been sent to him as required<sup>15</sup>, a period of 28 days has elapsed from the date of the notice<sup>16</sup>, and the outstanding amount has not been received by the General Medical Council<sup>17</sup>, the registrar may erase his name from the register<sup>18</sup>.

Unless the registration committee<sup>19</sup> or the president of the General Medical Council directs otherwise, the registrar must refuse to restore to the principal list<sup>20</sup> the name of any person whose name has been erased from it<sup>21</sup> until that person pays a restoration fee<sup>22</sup> and the retention fee, if any, which, if his name had not been so erased, would be due from him in respect of the current year<sup>23</sup>. The fee payable by a person whose name is to be restored to the register where it has previously been voluntarily erased<sup>24</sup> is the amount of the retention fee, if any, which, if his name had not been so erased, would be due from him in respect of the current year<sup>25</sup>; and the registrar may refuse to restore to the register any such person until that fee has been paid<sup>26</sup>.

Where there is tendered in payment of any fee chargeable under these provisions a cheque or other instrument which is dishonoured on presentation or where a person gives a bank authority to his bank to pay any such fee and such bank authority has not been complied with, whether or not by direction of the person giving the bank authority, then the registrar may, after giving due notice, erase any entry made, varied, restored or retained in the register in reliance on that instrument or bank authority notwithstanding any certificate issued in respect of such entry on the assumption that the fee had been paid<sup>27</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante.

3 General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 4(1). The fee for making an entry in the register is: (1) on provisional registration under the Medical Act 1983 s 15 (see PARA 102 ante), £100; (2) on provisional registration under s 21 (see PARA 108 ante), £100; (3) on full registration under s 3 (see PARA 99 ante): (a) in the case of a person who is or has at any time been provisionally registered, £170; (b) in the case of any other person, £170, except in the case of a person who is already fully registered, when no fee is payable; (4) on full registration under s 19 (see PARA 104 ante): (a) in the case of a person who is or has at any time been provisionally registered, £170; (b) in the case of any other person, £170; (5) on full registration under s 21A (as added) (see PARA 105 ante), £290; (6) on full registration by virtue of s 25 (see PARA 111 ante), £170; (7) on registration under s 27 (see PARA 106 ante), £170: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 4(2) (substituted by SI 2000/2141; and amended by SI 2003/1074). Where a person has made an application for registration under the Medical Act 1983 ss 3, 19, 21, 21A, 25, 27 which has been refused, and has paid a fee under the General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 4(2)(c)-(g) (see heads (3)-(7) supra; it should be noted that there is no reg 4(2)(g)), the registrar must refund to him the amount of the fee less a scrutiny charge of £100: reg 7(2) (reg 7 added by SI 2004/3409; substituted by SI 2005/399). See also the text to note 27 infra.

Where the registrar is satisfied that a person's gross annual income in the current year or in the forthcoming registration year will be less than £19,700 he must grant to that person a refund or discount of one half of any fee which has been paid or would otherwise be payable by that person under the General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 4 or 5 (see the text to notes 4-8 infra) in respect of the current year or the forthcoming registration year as appropriate: reg 7(1) (reg 7 added by SI 2004/3409; substituted by SI 2005/399). 'The forthcoming registration year' means, in relation to a person registered with full or limited registration, the period of 12 months commencing on the next anniversary of that person's date of full or limited registration or, if the person has not previously held full or limited registration, on the date of his being granted full or limited registration: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 2(1) (definition added by SI 2004/3409). If it appears to the registrar that a registered medical practitioner who has been granted such a refund or a discount: (i) has earned or will earn more than £19,700 in the registration year in respect of which the refund or discount was granted (General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 7A(1)(a) (reg 7A added by SI 2005/399)); (ii) has made a false declaration of his gross annual income (General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 7A(1)(b) (as so added)); (iii) has supplied incorrect information in connection with his application for a refund or a discount (reg 7A(1)(c) (as so added)); or (iv) has following a request in writing by the registrar refused or failed to supply evidence of his gross annual income in the registration year in respect of which the refund or discount was granted (reg 7A(1)(d) (as so added)); the registrar must as soon as practicable write to the registered medical practitioner at his registered address: (A) stating the matters which appear to raise a question that the registered medical practitioner has received a discount or refund to which he is not entitled (reg 7A(2)(a) (as so added)); (B) providing him with copies of any documents received by the General Medical Council in support thereof (reg 7A(2)(b) (as so added)); and (C) inviting him to make written representations as to why he is or was entitled to the discount or refund, or pay the balance of the fee owing (reg 7A(2)(c) (as so added)); in either case within the period of 14 days from the date of posting of the letter (reg 7A(2) (as so added)). On receipt of any written representations from the registered medical practitioner or on the expiry of 14 days from the date of posting of his letter, the registrar may send the practitioner notice that if the outstanding amount is not paid within 28 days of the date of the notice his name may be erased from the register: reg 7A(3) (as so added)). For the meaning of 'registered medical practitioner' see PARA 4 ante. There is no refund or discount of any fees due under or by virtue of the General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, in respect of any registration year commencing before 1 January 2005: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) (Amendment) Regulations) Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/3409, reg 4.

4 For the meaning of 'fully registered' see PARA 3 ante.

5 Any registered person who has reached the age of 65 years is, on application to the registrar, exempt from the payment of annual retention fees: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 8.

6 Ibid reg 5(1) (reg 5(1), (2) amended by SI 1997/1884). Any person who is required to pay an annual retention fee becomes liable to pay it in full on each anniversary of the date on which he was first fully registered, or provisionally registered, except that where he has lodged with the registrar a duly completed and valid bank authority consisting of a variable direct debit, that person may elect to pay the annual retention fee by four equal payments at the beginning of each quarter during the current year. This provision applies to a person first registered on 29 February as if he had been registered on 1 March: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 5(3), (4) (reg 5(3) substituted, 5(4) added by SI 2005/399). The annual retention fee is £290: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 6. See also notes 3 supra, 27 infra. Where the name of a medical practitioner is erased from the register by virtue of regulations made under the Medical Act 1983 s 31A (as added) (voluntary removal from the register: see PARA 121 post) during the first, second or third quarter of his registration year, the registrar must refund to him 75%, 50% or 25% respectively as the case may be of the annual retention fee for his current registration year: General Medical Council (Registration (Fees) Regulations) Order of Council 1986, SI 1986/149, reg 7(3) (as added and substituted: see note 3 supra).

120. Restoration procedure where fitness to practise issues arise.

Where the registrar<sup>1</sup> refers a restoration application<sup>2</sup> to the case examiners<sup>3</sup>, he must write to the applicant<sup>4</sup> as soon as is reasonably practicable informing him that his application is to be considered by the case examiners<sup>5</sup>, enclosing a copy of any information received by the registrar<sup>6</sup>, and inviting the applicant to make written representations within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter<sup>7</sup>. The case examiners must consider any such representations received from the applicant<sup>8</sup> and any information received by the registrar<sup>9</sup>, and may unanimously grant the restoration application and restore the applicant's name to the register<sup>10</sup>, reject the restoration application<sup>11</sup>, or refer the matter for consideration by a fitness to practise panel<sup>12</sup>. The case examiners must inform the registrar of their decision<sup>13</sup>.

If the case examiners fail to agree as to the disposal of a restoration application, the registrar must refer the application for determination by the investigation committee<sup>14</sup>, and the committee must determine the application as soon as is reasonably practicable<sup>15</sup>. Upon consideration of a restoration application, the committee may grant the restoration application and restore the applicant's name to the register<sup>16</sup>, reject the restoration application<sup>17</sup>, or refer the matter for consideration by a fitness to practise panel<sup>18</sup>. The committee must inform the registrar of its decision<sup>19</sup>.

Where the case examiners or the committee decide to refer a restoration application for consideration by a fitness to practise panel, the registrar must, as soon as reasonably practicable, write to the applicant notifying him of that decision together with the reasons for it<sup>20</sup> and stating that the application will proceed before a fitness to practise panel unless he notifies the registrar in writing within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter that he wishes to withdraw his application<sup>21</sup>. Where the applicant does not so withdraw his application, a fitness to practise panel must consider the application<sup>22</sup>. If a panel decides to reject a restoration application, then the applicant may not make a further restoration application until the expiry of a period of 12 months from the date of the panel's decision<sup>23</sup> or such other period as the panel may specify<sup>24</sup>.

Where the case examiners, the investigation committee or a fitness to practise panel decide to grant a restoration application, then they must inform the registrar who must, as soon as reasonably practicable, restore the applicant's name to the register and notify him in writing that his name has been restored<sup>25</sup>. Where the case examiners, the investigation committee or a fitness to practise panel decide to reject a restoration application, then they must inform the registrar who must, as soon as reasonably practicable, notify the applicant of the decision to reject the restoration application<sup>26</sup>, the reasons for that decision<sup>27</sup> and the period within which he may not make a further restoration application<sup>28</sup>.

125. Restoration procedure where fitness to practise issues arise.

Where the registrar<sup>1</sup> refers a restoration application to the case examiners<sup>2</sup>, he must write to the applicant<sup>3</sup> as soon as is reasonably practicable: (1) informing the applicant that his application is to be considered by the case examiners<sup>4</sup>; (2) enclosing a copy of any information received by him<sup>5</sup>; and (3) inviting the applicant to make written<sup>6</sup> representations within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter<sup>7</sup>. The case examiners must consider any such representations received from the applicant<sup>8</sup> and any such information received by the registrar or information resulting from any investigations carried out by him<sup>9</sup>, and may unanimously grant the restoration application and restore the applicant's name to the register<sup>10</sup>, reject the restoration application<sup>11</sup>, or refer the matter for consideration by a fitness to practise panel<sup>12</sup>. The case examiners must inform the registrar of their decision<sup>13</sup>.

If the case examiners fail to agree as to the disposal of a restoration application, the registrar must refer the application for determination by the investigation committee<sup>14</sup>, and the committee must determine the application as soon as is reasonably practicable<sup>15</sup>. Upon consideration of a restoration application, the committee may grant the restoration application and restore the applicant's name to the register<sup>16</sup>, reject the restoration application<sup>17</sup>, or refer the matter for consideration by a fitness to practise panel<sup>18</sup>. The committee must inform the registrar of its decision<sup>19</sup>.

Where the case examiners or the committee decide to refer a restoration application for consideration by a fitness to practise panel, the registrar must, as soon as reasonably practicable, write to the applicant notifying him of that decision together with the reasons for it<sup>20</sup> and stating that the application will proceed before a panel unless he notifies the registrar in writing within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter that he wishes to withdraw his application<sup>21</sup>.

If a fitness to practise panel decides to reject a restoration application, then the applicant may not make a further restoration application until the expiry of a period of 12 months from the date of the panel's decision<sup>22</sup> or such other period as the panel may specify<sup>23</sup>.

Where the case examiners, the committee or a fitness to practise panel decide to grant a restoration application, then they must inform the registrar who must, as soon as reasonably practicable, restore the applicant's name to the register<sup>24</sup> and notify him in writing that his name has been restored<sup>25</sup>. Where the case examiners, the committee or a fitness to practise panel decide to reject a restoration application, then they must inform the registrar who must, as soon as reasonably practicable, notify the applicant of the decision to reject the restoration application<sup>26</sup>, the reasons for that decision<sup>27</sup>, and the applicable period relating to his making a further restoration application<sup>28</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Registration Appeals/127. Notice of appealable registration decisions.

127. Notice of appealable registration decisions.

Where an appealable registration decision<sup>1</sup> is made, the person making the decision<sup>2</sup> must give the person concerned<sup>3</sup> notice of: (1) the decision<sup>4</sup>; (2) the reasons for the decision<sup>5</sup>; and (3) the person's right to appeal<sup>6</sup>.

Failure to notify an applicant of a decision made in respect of certain applications for registration<sup>7</sup> within the requisite period<sup>8</sup> is treated as a decision from which the applicant may appeal under these provisions<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to appealable registration decisions see PARA 126 ante.

2 'Person making the decision' means: (1) in relation to a decision on an application made under the Medical Act 1983 Sch 3 para 2 (see PARA 114 text to notes 5-8 ante), the appropriate registrar as defined in Sch 3 para 2(3); (2) in relation to a decision under ss 18, 44, 44A (as added) (see PARAS 100-101, 116 ante) the registrar; and (3) in any other case, the General Medical Council: s 34B, Sch 3A para 1 (s 34B, Sch 3A added by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 8(1), (2)). As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante.

3 Medical Act 1983 Sch 3A para 3(1)(a) (as added: see note 2 supra).

4 'Person concerned' means the person in respect of whom an appealable registration decision is made or, as the case may be, an applicant to whom ibid Sch 3A para 3(2) (as added) (see the text to notes 7-9 infra) applies: Sch 3A para 1 (as added: see note 2 supra).

5 Ibid Sch 3A para 3(1)(b) (as added: see note 2 supra).

6 Ibid Sch 3A para 3(1)(c) (as added: see note 2 supra). As to such appeals see PARA 128 post.

Any notice required to be given under Sch 3A paras 3, 4(9) (as added) (see PARA 128 post) to the person concerned may be given by delivering it to him; by leaving it at his proper address; by sending it by a registered post service; or by sending it by a postal service which provides for the delivery of the notice by post to be recorded: Sch 3A para 6(1)(a)-(d) (as added: see note 2 supra). For the purposes of these provisions and those of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (see PARA 20 note 22 ante) in its application to the Medical Act 1983 Sch 3A para 6 (as added), the proper address of the person concerned is the address which is shown in the register as his address, or which would have been so shown if he were registered; or if the specified conditions are satisfied, his last known address: Sch 3A para 6(2) (as so added). The specified conditions are that: (1) the last known address of the person concerned differs from the address shown in the register, or which would have been so shown if he were registered; and (2) it appears to the body or person giving the notice that a letter sent to the person concerned at his last known address is more likely to reach him: Sch 3A para 6(3)(a), (b) (as so added). For these purposes, the giving of a notice effected by sending it by post is deemed to have been effected at the time when the letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post, and so much of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 as relates to the time when service is deemed to have been effected does not apply to a notice sent by post: Medical Act 1983 Sch 3A para 6(4) (as so added). For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante.

TEXT AND NOTES 1-6--Medical Act 1983 Sch 3A paras 1-3 amended: SI 2007/3101.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Registration Appeals/128. Appeals from appealable registration decisions.

128. Appeals from appealable registration decisions.

A person in respect of whom an appealable registration decision<sup>1</sup> has been made may appeal against the decision to a registration appeals panel<sup>2</sup>. An appeal must be made by giving notice of appeal to the registrar<sup>3</sup> before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which notice of the decision was given<sup>4</sup> to the person concerned<sup>5</sup>.

Where a decision to erase or remove a medical practitioner from the register<sup>6</sup> is an appealable registration decision, the decision must not be carried into effect until the time for bringing any appeal against the decision has expired without an appeal being brought<sup>7</sup>, or, where an appeal is brought, until the date on which the appeal is finally disposed of or abandoned or fails by reason of its non-prosecution<sup>8</sup>.

In disposing of an appeal, a registration appeals panel<sup>9</sup> may determine to: (1) dismiss the appeal<sup>10</sup>; (2) allow the appeal and quash the decision appealed against<sup>11</sup>; (3) substitute for the decision appealed against any other decision which could have been made by the person making the decision<sup>12</sup>; (4) remit the case to the person making the decision to dispose of in accordance with the directions of the panel<sup>13</sup>. A panel may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit<sup>14</sup>. A panel must, as soon as reasonably practicable, give the person concerned and the person making the decision notice of the panel's determination on an appeal and of the reasons for that determination<sup>15</sup>; and if that determination is not a determination to allow the appeal, it must give the person concerned notice of his right of appeal<sup>16</sup>.

Any rules made under the Medical Act 1983 Sch 3B para 3 (see PARA 135 post) apply in relation to such an appeal as they apply in relation to an appeal under s 29F (prospectively added) (see PARA 134 post): Sch 3A para 4(6) (as so added). As to the constitution of registration appeals panels see PARAS 138-140 post. As to registration appeals panels as statutory committees see PARA 26 ante.

3 Ibid Sch 3A para 4(2) (as added: see note 2 supra). Where any notice required by Sch 3A para 3(1) (as added) (see PARA 127 ante) to be given to the person concerned is given by sending it to him by post, and the registrar is satisfied, on the application of that person, that he did not receive the notice within the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the person making the decision gave the decision to which the notice relates, the registrar may, if he thinks fit, by authorisation in writing extend the time for giving notice of appeal: Sch 3A para 7 (as so added). For the meaning of 'the registrar' see PARA 23 note 1 ante.

4 I.e. under ibid Sch 3A para 3(1) (as added): see PARA 127 ante. In the case of an appeal by virtue of Sch 3A para 3(2) (as added) (see PARA 127 ante), notice of appeal must be given before the end of the period of 28 days following the end of the requisite period: Sch 3A para 4(4) (as added: see note 2 supra).

5 Ibid Sch 3A para 4(3) (as added: see note 2 supra). This provision is subject to any extension of time under Sch 3A para 7 (as added) (see note 3 supra): Sch 3A para 4(3) (as so added). For the meaning of 'person concerned' see PARA 127 note 4 ante.

Where a registration appeals panel determines an appeal<sup>1</sup> and the panel's determination is any determination other than a determination to allow the appeal and quash the decision appealed against<sup>2</sup>, the person concerned<sup>3</sup> may, before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which notice of the determination was given to him<sup>4</sup>, appeal against the determination to the county court<sup>5</sup>. Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(viii) Licence to Practise and Revalidation/130. Regulations and guidance.

(viii) Licence to Practise and Revalidation

130. Regulations and guidance.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. The General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> must make regulations with respect to licences to practise<sup>3</sup>. Such regulations must include provision for or in connection with each of the following matters<sup>4</sup>: (1) grant of a licence to practise<sup>5</sup>; (2) refusal of a licence to practise<sup>6</sup>; (3) withdrawal of a licence to practise<sup>7</sup>; and (4) revalidation<sup>8</sup> of a medical practitioner of a prescribed description as a condition of his continuing to hold a licence to practise<sup>9</sup>. Such regulations may make different provision for different purposes, cases or circumstances<sup>10</sup>, and may provide for the charging of a fee to a medical practitioner in respect of the cost of his revalidation<sup>11</sup>, or the consideration of any application made by him for restoration of a licence to practise<sup>12</sup>. Before making such regulations, the Council must consult those bodies of persons representing medical practitioners, or medical practitioners of any description, as appear to it requisite to be consulted<sup>13</sup>.

The Council may publish guidance for medical practitioners relating to the information and documents to be provided, and any other requirements to be satisfied for the purposes of revalidation<sup>14</sup>, or for securing restoration of a licence to practise<sup>15</sup>. In preparing any such guidance in relation to revalidation, the Council must take into account such similarities as there may be between any information or documents to be provided, or any other requirements to be satisfied for the purposes of revalidation<sup>16</sup>, and for the purposes of any scheme for the appraisal of medical practitioners which applies within the health service<sup>17</sup>.

1 The Medical Act 1983 Pt IIIA (ss 29A-29J) is added by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 10. The first regulations made under s 29A (prospectively added) must provide, except in prescribed cases or circumstances, that persons who on the date on which any provision of those regulations comes into force are registered under the Medical Act 1983 with full or limited registration, must be granted a licence to practise: Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, art 16(2), Sch 2 para 38. ### 131. Grant, refusal, withdrawal and restoration of licence.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Regulations made by the General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> must provide for a licence to practise<sup>3</sup> to be granted to a medical practitioner: (1) on first registration under the Medical Act 1983 as a medical practitioner with either full registration or limited registration<sup>4</sup>; (2) on being provisionally registered<sup>5</sup>; and (3) in such other cases or circumstances as may be prescribed<sup>6</sup>. Such regulations must also provide for the withdrawal of a licence to practise from a medical practitioner: (a) where the practitioner has failed to comply with prescribed requirements<sup>7</sup>; (b) where the licence to practise was fraudulently procured or otherwise incorrectly granted<sup>8</sup>; (c) where the medical practitioner requests that the licence to practise be withdrawn<sup>9</sup>; and (d) in such other cases or circumstances as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>. Such regulations must also make provision as to the procedure to be followed in connection with the grant, the refusal, or the withdrawal of a licence to practise by a licensing authority<sup>11</sup>, and for and in connection with authorising or requiring a licensing authority, in such cases or circumstances as may be prescribed, to restore a licence to practise to a medical practitioner whose licence to practise has been withdrawn<sup>12</sup>.

A decision to withdraw a licence to practise from a medical practitioner may not be carried into effect until the time for bringing any appeal against the decision has expired without an appeal being brought, or, where an appeal is brought, until the date on which the appeal is finally disposed of or abandoned or fails by reason of its non-prosecution: s 29F(3) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra).

- 17 Medical Act 1983 ss 29B(4), 29D(3) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). Any notice required to be given to a medical practitioner under ss 29B, 29D, Sch 3B paras 6, 7 (prospectively added) (see PARA 136 post) may be so given by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address, by sending it by a registered post service, or by sending it by a postal service which provides for the delivery of the notice by post to be recorded: s 29H(1), (2) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). For the purposes of s 29H (prospectively added) and of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (see PARA 20 note 22 ante) in its application to the Medical Act 1983 s 29H (prospectively added), a medical practitioner's proper address is his address in the register, or, if certain conditions are satisfied, his last known address: s 29H(3) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). The conditions are that the practitioner's last known address differs from his address in the register, and it appears to the body or person giving the notice that a letter sent to the practitioner at his last known address is more likely to reach him: s 29H(4) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). The giving of a notice effected by sending it by post is deemed to have been effected at the time when the letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post, and so much of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 as relates to the time when service is deemed to have been effected does not apply to a notice sent by post: Medical Act 1983 s 29H(5) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante.

132. Referral to the investigation committee.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Regulations made by the General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> must provide that where, in the course of revalidation<sup>3</sup>, it appears to a licensing authority<sup>4</sup> that the fitness to practise of the medical practitioner concerned may be impaired, the authority may refer the matter to the investigation committee<sup>5</sup>. If a matter is so referred to the investigation committee, the licensing authority may take no further action until the matter has been considered by that committee<sup>6</sup>, or if it is referred by the committee to a fitness to practise panel<sup>7</sup>, by such a panel and has been referred back to the authority<sup>8</sup>.

133. Evidence.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Regulations made by the General Medical Council<sup>2</sup> may make provision for a licensing authority<sup>3</sup>:

- 151 (1) to refuse to grant a licence to practise<sup>4</sup> to a medical practitioner<sup>5</sup>;
- 152 (2) to withdraw a licence to practise from a medical practitioner<sup>6</sup>; or
- 153 (3) to refuse to restore a licence to practise to a medical practitioner<sup>7</sup>, in any case where the medical practitioner does not provide the licensing authority with such evidence or information as the authority may reasonably request for any of the following purposes<sup>8</sup>, namely: (a) determining whether to grant a licence to practise to the practitioner<sup>9</sup>; (b) revalidation of the practitioner<sup>10</sup>; (c) determining whether to withdraw a licence to practise from the practitioner<sup>11</sup>; and (d) determining whether to restore a licence to practise to the practitioner<sup>12</sup>.

For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions<sup>13</sup> in relation to a medical practitioner, a licensing authority may require any medical practitioner, other than that practitioner<sup>14</sup>, or any other person<sup>15</sup>, who in the opinion of the authority is able to supply information or produce any document which appears relevant to the discharge of any such function, to supply such information or produce such a document<sup>16</sup>. Similarly, for the purpose of reviewing procedures relating to revalidation<sup>17</sup>, or the grant, withdrawal or restoration of a licence to practise<sup>18</sup>, a licensing authority may require any medical practitioner or other person to supply information or produce any document<sup>19</sup>. However, these provisions do not require or permit any disclosure of information which is prohibited by or under any other enactment<sup>20</sup>; and they do not apply in relation to the supplying of information or the production of a document which a person could not be compelled to supply or produce in civil proceedings before the relevant court<sup>21</sup>.

133 Evidence

NOTE 1--Appointed day for Medical Act 1983 s 29E(1), (2)(a), (c), (d) is 8 September 2009 and appointed day for s 29E(3), (4)(b), (5)-(9) is 16 November 2009: London Gazette, 21 August 2009.

134. Appeals.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. If a licensing authority<sup>2</sup> decides: (1) to refuse to grant a licence to practise<sup>3</sup> to a medical practitioner<sup>4</sup>; (2) to withdraw a licence to practise from a medical practitioner<sup>5</sup>; or (3) to refuse to restore a licence to practise to a medical practitioner<sup>6</sup>, the practitioner may appeal to a registration appeals panel<sup>7</sup>.

A medical practitioner who wishes to appeal to a registration appeals panel against a decision of a licensing authority must give written<sup>8</sup> notice of appeal to the registrar<sup>9</sup>, such notice to be given within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the practitioner is given notice of the decision of the licensing authority<sup>10</sup>.

Where a matter arises in the course of proceedings relating to a medical practitioner before a registration appeals panel<sup>11</sup>, which ought, in the opinion of the panel, to be investigated by the investigation committee<sup>12</sup>, the panel may adjourn the proceedings<sup>13</sup> and give a direction to the registrar to refer the matter to that committee<sup>14</sup>.

1 The Medical Act 1983 Pt IIIA (ss 29A-29J) and Sch 3B are added by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 10, 11. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 Ibid s 29F(1)(b) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). A decision to withdraw a licence to practise from a medical practitioner may not be carried into effect until the time for bringing any appeal against the decision has expired without an appeal being brought, or, where an appeal is brought, until the date on which the appeal is finally disposed of or abandoned or fails by reason of its non-prosecution: s 29F(3) (prospectively added: see note 1 supra). Where any notice required by ss 29B, 29D (prospectively added) (see PARA 131 ante) to be given to a medical practitioner by the registrar is given by sending it to him by post, and the registrar is satisfied, on the application of the practitioner, that the practitioner did not receive the notice within the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the licensing authority gave the decision to which the notice relates, the registrar may, if he thinks fit, by authorisation in writing extend the time for giving notice of appeal: Sch 3B paras 1(3), 2 (prospectively added: see note 1 supra).

135. Rules as to procedure and evidence on appeals.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> must make rules as to the procedure to be followed<sup>2</sup>, and the rules of evidence which are to apply<sup>3</sup> in proceedings before a registration appeals panel<sup>4</sup>. Such rules must include provision: (1) securing that notice of the time and place of any hearing is given, at such time and in such manner as may be specified in the rules, to the medical practitioner to whom the proceedings relate<sup>5</sup>; (2) securing that any party<sup>6</sup> to proceedings before a registration appeals panel must, if he so requires, be entitled to be heard by the panel<sup>7</sup>; (3) enabling any party to the proceedings to be represented by counsel or solicitor, or, if the rules so provide and the party so elects, by a person of such other description as may be specified in the rules<sup>8</sup>; and (4) requiring proceedings to be held in public if the medical practitioner to whom the proceedings relate so requests, unless and to the extent that the rules provide otherwise<sup>9</sup>. Before making such rules the Council must consult such bodies of persons representing medical practitioners, or medical practitioners of any description, as appear to it requisite to be consulted<sup>10</sup>. ### 135 Rules as to procedure and evidence on appeals

NOTE 2--Appointed day for Medical Act 1983 Sch 3B para 3(4) is 16 November 2009: London Gazette, 21 August 2009.

NOTE 4--SI 2005/400 amended: SI 2009/2752.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/ (3) REGISTRATION, TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(viii) Licence to Practise and Revalidation/136. Disposal of appeals.

136. Disposal of appeals.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. In disposing of an appeal<sup>2</sup> by a medical practitioner against a decision of a licensing authority<sup>3</sup>, the determinations that may be made by a registration appeals panel<sup>4</sup> are: (1) if the appeal is against a decision to refuse to grant a licence to practise<sup>5</sup>, that a licence to practise should, or, as the case may be, should not, be granted to the practitioner<sup>6</sup>; (2) if the appeal is against a decision to withdraw a licence to practise, that a licence to practise should, or, as the case may be, should not, be withdrawn from the practitioner<sup>7</sup>; or (3) if the appeal is against a decision to refuse to restore a licence to practise, that a licence to practise should, or, as the case may be, should not, be restored to the practitioner<sup>8</sup>. A panel may make such orders as to costs as it thinks fit<sup>9</sup>.

Where a registration appeals panel determines: (a) that a licence to practise should be granted to the medical practitioner<sup>10</sup>; (b) that a licence to practise should not be withdrawn from the medical practitioner<sup>11</sup>; or (c) that a licence to practise should be restored to the medical practitioner<sup>12</sup>, the panel must give notice to the registrar<sup>13</sup> informing him of the determination and directing him accordingly to grant the licence<sup>14</sup>, not to withdraw the licence<sup>15</sup>, or to restore the licence<sup>16</sup>, and the registrar must give notice of the determination to the medical practitioner<sup>17</sup>.

Where a registration appeals panel determines: (i) that a licence to practise should not be granted to the medical practitioner<sup>18</sup>; (ii) that a licence to practise should be withdrawn from the medical practitioner<sup>19</sup>; or (iii) that a licence to practise should not be restored to the medical practitioner<sup>20</sup>, the panel must give notice to the registrar informing him of the determination<sup>21</sup>, and if the determination is that a licence to practise should be withdrawn from the medical practitioner, directing him to withdraw the licence<sup>22</sup>. The registrar must give the medical practitioner notice of the determination<sup>23</sup>, and of his right to appeal against the determination<sup>24</sup>.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup>. Where, on an appeal<sup>2</sup> by a medical practitioner, a registration appeals panel<sup>3</sup> makes a determination<sup>4</sup> that a licence to practise<sup>5</sup> should not be granted to the medical practitioner, should be withdrawn from him, or should not be restored to him, the practitioner may appeal against the determination<sup>6</sup>. Any such appeal must be made within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the practitioner is given notice<sup>7</sup> of the panel's determination<sup>8</sup>, and must be made to a county court<sup>9</sup>. On any such appeal, the county court may: (1) dismiss the appeal<sup>10</sup>; (2) allow the appeal and quash the decision appealed against<sup>11</sup>; or (3) remit the case to the registrar<sup>12</sup> for him to refer it to a registration appeals panel to dispose of in accordance with the directions of the court<sup>13</sup>. The court may make such orders as to costs as it thinks fit<sup>14</sup>.

138-189 Fitness to practise

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

138 Lists of panellists

TEXT AND NOTES--For 'registration decisions panel' now read 'registration panel': SI 2004/2611, Schedule (amended: SI 2009/2751).

NOTE 3--'Lay' now means a person who is not and never has been provisionally or fully registered, was at no time registered with limited registration and does not hold qualifications which would entitle them to apply for provisional or full registration under the Medical Act 1983: SI 2004/2611, Schedule r 2 amended: SI 2009/2751.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(i) Panels and the Investigation Committee/A. CONSTITUTION/139. Constitution of panels and the investigation committee.

139. Constitution of panels and the investigation committee.

Subject to provisions relating to the unavailability of the chairman and to quorum<sup>1</sup>:

- 154 (1) membership of a panel (that is, an interim orders panel, a registration appeals panel or a fitness to practise panel)<sup>2</sup> must comprise medical<sup>3</sup> and lay<sup>4</sup> panellists<sup>5</sup> whose names are included on the appropriate list maintained by the General Medical Council<sup>6</sup>, selected by the registrar<sup>7</sup>, and must include at least one person whose name is included in the list maintained by the Council<sup>8</sup> of panellists eligible to act as chairman of a panel<sup>9</sup>; and
- 155 (2) membership of the investigation committee<sup>10</sup> or a registration decisions panel<sup>11</sup> must comprise medical and lay panellists whose names are included on the appropriate list maintained by the Council<sup>12</sup>, selected by the registrar<sup>13</sup>, and must include at least one person whose name is included in the list maintained by the Council<sup>14</sup> of panellists eligible to act as chairman of the committee or such a panel<sup>15</sup>.

No panellist may act as a panellist on a panel or the investigation committee or a registration decisions panel for the substantive hearing of a case that he has previously considered or adjudicated upon in any other capacity<sup>16</sup>. However, this does not prevent a panellist sitting on proceedings before a fitness to practise panel<sup>17</sup> from sitting on subsequent proceedings before such a panel for the purposes of considering the same case at a review hearing or in relation to a restoration application<sup>18</sup>. The quorum of a panel, a registration decisions panel or the investigation committee is three panellists<sup>19</sup>, who must include a chairman<sup>20</sup>, a medical panellist<sup>21</sup>, and a lay panellist<sup>22</sup>. The validity of any proceedings of a panel, a registration decisions panel or the committee is not affected by any defect in the appointment of a panellist<sup>23</sup>.

B. FUNCTIONS

141. Functions of the investigation committee.

Where an allegation is made to the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> against a fully registered person<sup>2</sup>, a person who is provisionally registered<sup>3</sup>, or a person who is registered with limited registration<sup>4</sup>, that his fitness to practise is impaired<sup>5</sup>, then the investigation committee<sup>6</sup> must investigate the allegation and decide whether it should be considered by a fitness to practise panel<sup>7</sup>.

A person's fitness to practise is regarded as 'impaired' by reason only of:

- 156 (1) misconduct<sup>8</sup>;
- 157 (2) deficient professional performance<sup>9</sup>;
- 158 (3) a conviction or caution in the British Islands<sup>10</sup> for a criminal offence, or a conviction elsewhere for an offence which, if committed in England and Wales, would constitute a criminal offence<sup>11</sup>;
- 159 (4) adverse physical or mental health<sup>12</sup>; or
- 160 (5) a determination by a body in the United Kingdom<sup>13</sup> responsible under any enactment<sup>14</sup> for the regulation of a health or social care profession to the effect that his fitness to practise as a member of that profession is impaired, or a determination by a regulatory body elsewhere to the same effect<sup>15</sup>.

These provisions are not prevented from applying because the allegation is based on a matter alleged to have occurred outside the United Kingdom<sup>16</sup>, or at a time when the person was not registered<sup>17</sup>. They also apply in a case where it comes to the attention of the Council that a person's fitness to practise is called into question as impaired<sup>18</sup>, but no allegation to that effect has been made to the Council against that person<sup>19</sup>.

142. Determinations of the investigation committee.

If the investigation committee<sup>1</sup> decides that an allegation<sup>2</sup> ought to be considered by a fitness to practise panel<sup>3</sup>, it must give a direction to that effect to the registrar<sup>4</sup>, and the registrar must refer the allegation to such a panel<sup>5</sup> and serve a notification of the committee's decision on the person who is the subject of the allegation and the person making the allegation, if any<sup>6</sup>.

If the investigation committee decides that the allegation ought not to be considered by a fitness to practise panel, it may give a warning to the person who is the subject of the allegation regarding his future conduct or performance<sup>7</sup>. If the investigation committee decides that the allegation ought not to be considered by a fitness to practise panel, but that no such warning should be given, it must give a direction to that effect to the registrar<sup>8</sup>; and the registrar must serve a notification of the committee's decision on the person who is the subject of the allegation and the person making the allegation, if any<sup>9</sup>.

Rules<sup>15</sup> may make provision for the registrar<sup>16</sup>, or any other officer of the General Medical Council<sup>17</sup>, to exercise the functions of the investigation committee<sup>18</sup>, whether generally or in relation to such classes of case as may be specified in the rules<sup>19</sup>.

Any notice required to be served on a person may be so served by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address, by sending it by a registered post service, or by sending it by a postal service which provides for the delivery of the notice by post to be recorded: s 43, Sch 4 para 8(1), (2) (s 43, Sch 4 para 8 substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 13, 14). For the purpose of the Medical Act 1983 Sch 4 para 8 and of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (see PARA 20 note 22 ante) in its application thereto, a person's proper address is his address in the register, or if the specified conditions are satisfied, his last known address: Medical Act 1983 Sch 4 para 8(3) (as so substituted). The specified conditions are that the person's last known address differs from his address in the register, and it appears to the registrar that a letter sent to the person at his last known address is more likely to reach him: Sch 4 para 8(4) (as so substituted). The serving of a notice effected by sending it by post is deemed to have been effected at the time when the letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post (Sch 4 para 8(5)(a) (as so substituted)); and so much of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 as relates to the time when service is deemed to have been effected does not apply to a notice sent by post (Medical Act 1983 Sch 4 para 5(b) (as so substituted)). For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante.

142 Determinations of the investigation committee

NOTE 6--Medical Act 1983 Sch 4 para 8(1) amended: SI 2007/3101.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(i) Panels and the Investigation Committee/B. FUNCTIONS/143. What constitutes misconduct.

143. What constitutes misconduct.

Misconduct is not statutorily defined<sup>1</sup>. However, misconduct is not simply misconduct in the carrying out of medical work but may include other misconduct provided there is a link with the profession of medicine<sup>2</sup>. In every case relating to misconduct the disciplinary committee must first decide whether the facts alleged are proved and then whether, in relation to those facts, the practitioner is guilty of misconduct<sup>3</sup>. The committee must decide what is the appropriate standard to which each practitioner must adhere, and this is not a special standard greater than is ordinarily to be expected but the ordinary standard of the profession<sup>4</sup>. Negligence, of itself, does not necessarily comprise misconduct<sup>5</sup>. When considering whether a practitioner should be found guilty and, in that event, what action it is to take, the committee is entitled to and must consider his previous conduct as a practitioner<sup>6</sup>. Nevertheless, a practitioner is not to be punished by a majority of his profession for nonconformity<sup>7</sup>. It is for the General Medical Council<sup>8</sup> as prosecutor to prove the case against the practitioner. In cases where the charges against the practitioner would also found serious criminal charges, the standard of proof is the criminal standard, beyond a reasonable doubt<sup>9</sup>. However, where the charges could not be the subject of serious or any criminal charges at all, that standard is not appropriate, and what is important is that the charge and the conduct of the proceedings should be fair to the practitioner in question in all respects<sup>10</sup>. Evidence that is relevant and material to the case should be disclosed by the Council to the practitioner and a failure to do so can constitute a procedural irregularity rendering the disciplinary committee's decision unsafe<sup>11</sup>.

The courts have consistently stressed that professional disciplinary bodies are the most appropriate for deciding what constitutes misconduct in relation to their professions and they are slow, on appeal, to interfere in the exercise by a disciplinary body of its powers<sup>12</sup>.

1 The expression previously used in the Medical Act 1983 was 'serious professional misconduct': see s 36(1) (b) (repealed). The cases cited below relate to that expression (or its predecessor 'infamous conduct in a professional respect') but it is submitted that the same principles will apply to 'misconduct'.

Mitigation arising from the circumstances in which the practitioner found himself may be relevant to the level of culpability; once serious professional misconduct is proved, personal mitigation will be relevant to possible penalty. These are distinct issues, to be determined separately, on the basis of evidence relevant to them: R (on the application of Campbell v General Medical Council [2005] EWCA Civ 250, [2005] All ER (D) 193 (Mar).

It is not correct for the committee to regard a falling below the standards of practice set out in the General Medical Council's guidance to medical practitioners as itself sufficient to amount to serious professional misconduct: Nandi v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 2317 (Admin).

138-189 Fitness to practise

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(i) Panels and the Investigation Committee/B. FUNCTIONS/144. Functions of fitness to practise panels.

144. Functions of fitness to practise panels.

Where an allegation against a person is referred<sup>1</sup> to a fitness to practise panel<sup>2</sup>, and the panel finds that the person's fitness to practise is impaired<sup>3</sup>, it may, if it thinks fit: (1) except in a health case<sup>4</sup>, direct that the person's name be erased from the register<sup>5</sup>; (2) direct that his registration in the register be suspended<sup>6</sup> during such period not exceeding 12 months as may be specified in the direction<sup>7</sup>; or (3) direct that his registration be conditional on his compliance, during such period not exceeding three years as may be specified in the direction, with such requirements so specified as the panel thinks fit to impose for the protection of members of the public or in his interests<sup>8</sup>. Where the panel finds that the person's fitness to practise is not impaired, it may nevertheless give him a warning regarding his future conduct or performance<sup>9</sup>.

Where a fitness to practise panel has given a direction that a person's registration be suspended<sup>10</sup>, it may, if it thinks fit: (a) direct that the current period of suspension be extended for such further period from the time when it would otherwise expire as may be specified in the direction<sup>11</sup>; (b) except in a health case, direct that the person's name be erased from the register<sup>12</sup>; or (c) direct that the person's registration, as from the expiry of the current period of suspension, be conditional on his compliance, during such period not exceeding three years as may be specified in the direction, with such requirements so specified as the panel thinks fit to impose for the protection of members of the public or in his interests<sup>13</sup>.

Where direction that a person's registration be subject to conditions has been given<sup>14</sup> and that person is judged by a fitness to practise panel to have failed to comply with any requirement imposed on him as such a condition<sup>15</sup>, the panel may, if it thinks fit: (i) except in a health case, direct that the person's name be erased from the register<sup>16</sup>; or (ii) direct that the person's registration in the register be suspended during such period not exceeding 12 months as may be specified in the direction<sup>17</sup>.

Where a direction that a person's registration be subject to conditions has been given<sup>18</sup>, a fitness to practise panel may, if it thinks fit: (A) except in a health case, direct that the person's name be erased from the register<sup>19</sup>; (B) direct that the person's registration in the register be suspended during such period not exceeding 12 months as may be specified in the direction<sup>20</sup>; (C) direct that the current period of conditional registration be extended for such further period from the time when it would otherwise expire as may be specified in the direction<sup>21</sup>; or (D) revoke the direction, or revoke or vary any of the conditions imposed by the direction, for the remainder of the current period of conditional registration<sup>22</sup>.

Where a fitness to practise panel gives a direction that a person's name be erased from the register<sup>23</sup>, gives a direction for suspension<sup>24</sup>, gives a direction for conditional registration<sup>25</sup>, or varies any of the conditions imposed by a direction for conditional registration<sup>26</sup>, the registrar<sup>27</sup> must forthwith serve on the person concerned notification of the direction or variation and of his right to appeal against it<sup>28</sup>.

1    le under the Medical Act 1983 s 35C (as added): see PARAS 141-142 ante.

2    Ibid s 35D(1) (ss 35D, 35E added by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 13). As to the constitution of fitness to practise panels see PARAS 138-140 ante. As to fitness to practise panels as statutory committees see PARA 26 ante. As to proceedings relating to fitness to practise and the procedure before fitness to practise panels see PARA 151 et seq post. A statutory committee of a professional body specially incorporated by statute and exercising the self-regulatory power and duty of the medical profession to monitor and maintain standards of professional conduct is not part of the judicial system of the state and does not fall within the definition of a 'court' laid down in the Contempt of Court Act 1981 s 19 (see CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 410): General Medical Council v British Broadcasting Corporation [1998] 3 All ER 426, [1998] 1 WLR 1573, CA.

3 For the meaning of 'impaired' see PARA 141 ante.

4 'Health case' means any case in which a fitness to practise panel has determined that: (1) a person's fitness to practise is impaired by reason of a matter falling within the Medical Act 1983 s 35C(2)(d) (as added) (adverse physical or mental health: see PARA 141 text to note 12 ante); but (2) the person's fitness to practise is not impaired by any matter falling within any other provision of s 35C(2) (as added) (see PARA 141 ante): s 35E(4)(a), (b) (as added: see note 2 supra). For cases relating to the health of the practitioner under the previous disciplinary regime which may continue to be relevant see: Crabbie v General Medical Council [2002] UKPC 45, [2002] 1 WLR 3104, 71 BMLR 9; Sreenath v General Medical Council [2002] UKPC 56, [2002] All ER (D) 356 (Oct); R (on the application of Toth) v General Medical Council No 2 [2003] EWHC 1675 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 382 (Jun).

5 Medical Act 1983 s 35D(2)(a) (as added: see note 2 supra). As to the time when such a direction takes effect see PARA 157 post. As to appeals against such directions see PARA 188 post. For the meaning of 'the register' see PARA 34 note 3 ante.

In matters of professional discipline the relevant committee is not concerned exclusively, or even primarily, with the punishment of the practitioner concerned; the essential issue is the need to maintain public confidence in the integrity of the profession, and the reputation of the profession is more important than the fortunes of any individual member; thus considerations which would normally weigh in mitigation of punishment have less effect than in other jurisdictions and it can never be an objection to an order for erasure or suspension that the practitioner may subsequently be unable to re-establish his practice: see Bolton v Law Society [1994] 2 All ER 486, [1994] 1 WLR 512; Gupta v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 61, [2002] 1 WLR 1691; Gosai v General Medical Council [2003] UKPC 31, 75 BMLR 52. If a committee is considering erasure, it must satisfy itself that the offence of which the professional man has been convicted is of so grave a character as to show that he was unfitted to continue to practise as a member of the profession: Ziderman v General Dental Council [1976] 2 All ER 334, [1976] 1 WLR 330, PC. Concern for public confidence in the profession and its procedures for dealing with doctors who lapse from professional standards should not be carried to the extent of feeling it necessary to sacrifice the career of an otherwise competent and useful doctor who presents no danger to the public: Bijl v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 42, 65 BMLR 10. See also Hossain v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 40, 65 BMLR 1; but cf Wentzel v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 381 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 80 (Mar).

6 'Suspended' means that the registration does not have effect: see the Medical Act 1983 s 35D(2)(b) (as added: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid s 35D(2)(b) (as added: see note 2 supra). While a person's registration in the register is suspended he is treated as not being registered in the register notwithstanding that his name still appears in it, but ss 35C, 35CC (both as added) (see PARAS 141-142 ante) and ss 35D, 35E (both as added) continue to apply to him: s 35E(3) (as so added). As to the time when such a direction takes effect see PARA 157 post. As to appeals against such directions see PARA 188 post. As to indefinite suspension in health cases see PARA 145 post.

145. Indefinite suspension in health cases.

In a health case<sup>1</sup>, a fitness to practise panel<sup>2</sup> may give a direction in relation to a person whose registration has been suspended<sup>3</sup> extending his period of suspension indefinitely where the period of suspension will, on the date on which the direction takes effect, have lasted for at least two years<sup>4</sup>, and the direction is made not more than two months before the date on which the period of suspension would otherwise expire<sup>5</sup>. Where a panel has given such a direction for a person's period of suspension to be extended indefinitely, a fitness to practise panel must review the direction if: (1) the person requests them to do so<sup>6</sup>; (2) at least two years have elapsed since the date on which the direction took effect<sup>7</sup>; and (3) if the direction has previously been reviewed under these provisions, at least two years have elapsed since the date of the previous review<sup>8</sup>. On such a review the panel may: (a) confirm the direction<sup>9</sup>; (b) direct that the suspension be terminated<sup>10</sup>; or (c) direct that the person's registration be conditional on his compliance, during such period not exceeding three years as may be specified in the direction, with such requirements so specified as the panel thinks fit to impose for the protection of members of the public or in his interests<sup>11</sup>.

146. Immediate suspension and conditional registration.

On giving a direction for erasure or a direction for suspension<sup>1</sup> in respect of any person, a fitness to practise panel<sup>2</sup>, if satisfied that to do so is necessary for the protection of members of the public or is otherwise in the public interest, or is in the best interests of that person, may order that his registration in the register<sup>3</sup> be suspended forthwith<sup>4</sup>. Similarly, on giving a direction for conditional registration<sup>5</sup> in respect of any person, a fitness to practise panel, if satisfied that to do so is necessary for the protection of members of the public or is otherwise in the public interest, or is in the best interests of that person, may order that his registration be made conditional forthwith<sup>6</sup>. Where, on the giving of a direction, such an order for immediate suspension or conditional registration is made<sup>7</sup> in respect of a person, his registration in the register is suspended<sup>8</sup> or made conditional, as the case may be, from the time when the order is made until the time when the direction takes effect<sup>9</sup> or an appeal against it<sup>10</sup> is, otherwise than by the dismissal of the appeal, determined<sup>11</sup>.

Where a panel make such an order for immediate suspension or conditional registration, the registrar<sup>12</sup> must forthwith serve a notification of the order on the person to whom it applies<sup>13</sup>. The relevant court<sup>14</sup> may terminate any such suspension of a person's registration in the register or conditional registration, and the decision of the court on any application under this provision is final<sup>15</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(i) Panels and the Investigation Committee/B. FUNCTIONS/148. Interim orders.

148. Interim orders.

Where an interim orders panel<sup>1</sup> or a fitness to practise panel<sup>2</sup> is satisfied<sup>3</sup> that it is necessary for the protection of members of the public or is otherwise in the public interest, or is in the interests of a fully registered person<sup>4</sup>, for the registration of that person to be suspended or to be made subject to conditions, the panel may make an order: (1) that his registration in the register<sup>5</sup> be suspended<sup>6</sup> during such period, not exceeding 18 months, as may be specified in the order<sup>7</sup>; or (2) that his registration be conditional on his compliance, during such period not exceeding 18 months as may be specified in the order, with such requirements so specified as the panel thinks fit to impose<sup>8</sup>. No such order, nor any order varying any condition or replacing one order with another<sup>9</sup>, may be made by any panel in respect of any person unless he has been afforded an opportunity of appearing before the panel and being heard on the question of whether such an order should be made in his case<sup>10</sup>.

Where a panel has made an interim suspension order or an order for interim conditional registration, an interim orders panel or a fitness to practise panel must review it within the period of six months beginning on the date on which the order was made, and thereafter, for so long as the order continues in force, further review it<sup>11</sup> before the end of the period of six months beginning on the date of the decision of the immediately preceding review<sup>12</sup>, or, if after the end of the period of three months beginning on the date of the decision of the immediately preceding review the person concerned requests an earlier review, as soon as practicable after that request<sup>13</sup>. A panel may also review such an order where new evidence relevant to the order has become available after the making of the order<sup>14</sup>.

Where an interim suspension order or an order for interim conditional registration has been made in relation to any person<sup>15</sup>, an interim orders panel or a fitness to practise panel may, subject to the person's right to appear before the panel<sup>16</sup>: (a) revoke the order or revoke any condition imposed by the order<sup>17</sup>; (b) vary any condition imposed by the order<sup>18</sup>; (c) if satisfied that to do so is necessary for the protection of members of the public or is otherwise in the public interest, or is in the interests of the person concerned, replace an order for interim conditional registration with an interim suspension order having effect for the remainder of the term of the former<sup>19</sup>; or (d) if satisfied that to do so is necessary for the protection of members of the public, or is otherwise in the public interest, or is in the interests of the person concerned, replace an interim suspension order with an order for interim conditional registration having effect for the remainder of the term of the former<sup>20</sup>.

The General Medical Council<sup>21</sup> may apply to the relevant court<sup>22</sup> for an order made by an interim orders panel or a fitness to practise panel under the provisions described above to be extended, and may apply again for further extensions<sup>23</sup>. On such an application the relevant court may extend, or further extend, the period for which the order has effect for up to 12 months<sup>24</sup>.

Where an order has effect under any of the provisions described above, the relevant court may on application: (i) in the case of an interim suspension order, terminate the suspension<sup>25</sup>; (ii) in the case of an order for interim conditional registration, revoke or vary any condition imposed by the order<sup>26</sup>; (iii) in either case, substitute for the period specified in the order, or in the order extending it, some other period which could have been specified in the order when it was made or in the order extending it<sup>27</sup>. The decision of the relevant court under any such application is final<sup>28</sup>.

If an order is made under any provision described above, the registrar<sup>29</sup> must without delay serve a notification of the order on the person to whose registration it relates<sup>30</sup>.

3 A hearing before a panel under these provisions engages the right to a fair trial within a reasonable time as guaranteed by the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 134 et seq): Madan v General Medical Council (No 2) [2001] EWHC 577 (Admin), [2001] Lloyd's Rep Med 539. In making any decision, consideration must be given to the impact of the proposed order on the practitioner concerned: Madan v General Medical Council (No 2) supra.

4 The Medical Act 1983 s 41A (as added and substituted) applies to a provisionally registered person and to a person registered with limited registration whether or not the circumstances are such that he falls within the meaning in the Act of the expression 'fully registered person': s 41A(13) (s 41A added by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2000, SI 2000/1803, arts 2, 10; and substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 13). 7 Ibid s 41A(1)(a) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). Such an order is known as an 'interim suspension order': s 41A(1)(a) (as so added and substituted). See also note 24 infra. While a person's registration in the register is suspended by virtue of an interim suspension order, he is treated as not being registered in the register notwithstanding that his name still appears in the register: s 41A(11) (as so added and substituted). However, notwithstanding s 41A(11) (as added and substituted), ss 35C-35E (as added) (see PARAS 141-145 ante) continue to apply to a person whose registration in the register is suspended: s 41A(12) (as so added and substituted).

8 Ibid s 41A(1)(b) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). Such an order is known as an 'order for interim conditional registration': s 41A(1)(b) (as so added and substituted). See also note 24 infra.

10 Ibid s 41A(4) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). For this purpose, a person may be represented before the panel by counsel or a solicitor, or, if rules made under Sch 4 para 1 (see PARA 152 post) so provide and he so elects, by a person of such other description as may be specified in the rules: s 41A(4) (as so added and substituted).

11 Ibid s 41A(2)(a) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). See also note 24 infra. The review process must involve a comprehensive consideration of the initial order in the light of the circumstances at the time of the review: Madan v General Medical Council (No 2) [2001] EWHC 577 (Admin), [2001] Lloyd's Rep Med 539.

In considering such an application, the court is not exercising a supervisory jurisdiction and is not reviewing the original decision to make the interim suspension order but is considering the question whether in all the circumstances of the case it is in the public interest that the suspension be extended, and, if so, for how long: General Medical Council v Kerr [2002] EWHC 2338 (Admin), [2002] All ER (D) 220 (Oct). The fact that the practitioner is not going to practise in the future does not mean that the court cannot order the suspension to continue: General Medical Council v Kerr supra. The right to a fair trial within a reasonable time as guaranteed by the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 134 et seq) is a matter which the court must take into account when considering such an application: General Medical Council v Pembrey [2002] EWHC 1602 (Admin), [2002] All ER (D) 195 (Jul). In exceptional cases, taking account of the interests of the practitioner, the court may accept undertakings from the practitioner in place of extending the order: General Medical Council Mehrotra [2004] EWHC 2212 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 52 (Sep). Any reference in s 41A (as added and substituted) to an interim suspension order, or to an order for interim conditional registration, includes a reference to such an order as so extended: s 41A(8) (as so added and substituted). For the purposes of s 41A(2) (as added and substituted) (see the text to notes 11-14 supra) the first review after the relevant court's extension of an order made by a panel or after a replacement order made by a panel under s 41A(3)(c), (d) (as added and substituted) (see the text to notes 19, 20 supra) must take place: (1) if the order (or the order which has been replaced) has not been reviewed at all under s 41A(2) (as added and substituted), within the period of six months beginning on the date on which the relevant court ordered the extension or on which a replacement order under s 41A(3)(c), (d) (as added and substituted) was made (s 41A(9)(a) (as so added and substituted)); and (2) if it has been reviewed, within the period of three months beginning on that date (s 41A(9)(b) (as so added and substituted)).

149. Restoration to the register.

Where the name of a person has been erased from the register<sup>1</sup>, an application may be made to the registrar<sup>2</sup> who must refer the application to a fitness to practise panel<sup>3</sup> which may, if it thinks fit, direct that the person's name be restored to the register<sup>4</sup>. No such application for the restoration of a name to the register may be made to a fitness to practise panel before the expiration of five years from the date of erasure<sup>5</sup> or in any period of 12 months in which an application for the restoration of his name has already been made by or on behalf of the person whose name has been erased<sup>6</sup>. Before determining whether to give such a direction, a panel must require an applicant for restoration to provide such evidence as it directs as to his fitness to practise; and it must not give such a direction if that evidence does not satisfy it<sup>7</sup>.

Where, during the same period of erasure, a second or subsequent application for the restoration of a name to the register, made by or on behalf of the person whose name has been erased, is unsuccessful, a fitness to practise panel may direct that his right to make any further such applications be suspended indefinitely<sup>8</sup>. Where a panel gives such a direction, the registrar must without delay serve on the person in respect of whom it has been made a notification of the direction and of his right to appeal against it<sup>9</sup>. Any person in respect of whom such a direction has been given may, after the expiration of three years from the date on which the direction was given, apply to the registrar for that direction to be reviewed by a fitness to practise panel and, thereafter, may make further applications for review; but no such application may be made before the expiration of three years from the date of the most recent review decision<sup>10</sup>.

In the case of a person who was provisionally registered under ss 15, 15A, 21 (s 15A as added) (see PARAS 102, 103, 108 ante) before his name was erased, such a direction must be a direction that his name be restored by way of provisional registration under ss 15, 15A, 21 (s 15A as added), as the case requires: s 41(4) (as so substituted). A fitness to practise panel must not give a direction under the Medical Act 1983 s 41(1) (as substituted) unless at the same time in accordance with regulations made by the General Medical Council under this provision it directs the registrar to restore the practitioner's licence to practise: s 41(7) (as so substituted). The provisions of s 29J(3)-(5) (as added) (see PARA 130 ante) apply to such regulations as they apply in relation to regulations made under s 29A (as added): s 41(8) (as so substituted). As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante. For the meaning of 'licence to practise' see PARA 130 note 3 ante.

5    Ibid s 41(2)(a) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

6    Ibid s 41(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

7    Ibid s 41(6) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). The requirements of Pt II (ss 3-18) (as amended) (see PARAS 95-96 ante) or Pt III (ss 19-29) (as amended) (see PARA 104 et seq ante) as to the experience required for registration as a fully registered medical practitioner do not apply to registration in pursuance of such a direction: s 41(5) (as so substituted).

As a general principle, where a practitioner has been convicted of a serious criminal offence or offences he should not be permitted to resume his practice until he has satisfactorily completed his sentence; only circumstances which plainly justify a different course should permit otherwise. Such circumstances could arise in connection with a period of disqualification from driving or time allowed by the court for the payment of a fine. The rationale for the principle is not that it can serve to punish the practitioner whilst serving his sentence, but that good standing in a profession must be earned if the reputation of the profession is to be maintained: Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Dental Council [2005] EWHC 87 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 47 (Feb).

8 Medical Act 1983 s 41(9) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to appeals against such directions see PARA 188 post. Suspension of the right to apply for restoration should not be regarded as an exceptional or unusual remedy, or restricted to very clear cases. In exercising the discretion to make such an order, regard may be had to the public interest and to the interest of those who would be otherwise affected by repeated applications for restoration, such as the family of the victim of a practitioner's misconduct: Gosai General Medical Council [2003] UKPC 31, 75 BMLR 52. The principle of fairness requires that the issue of suspension of a person's right to make further applications for restoration should be considered separately after the decision on restoration and the reasons for it have been announced: Raji v General Medical Council [2003] UKPC 24, [2003] 1 WLR 1052.

9 In accordance with the Medical Act 1983 s 40 (as substituted) (see PARA 188 post): s 41(10) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to the service of such a notification see PARA 142 note 6 ante.

10 Ibid s 41(11) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

NOTE 4--Appointed day for Medical Act 1983 s 41(7), (8) is 8 September 2009: London Gazette, 21 August 2009. ### 150. Disciplinary provisions affecting visiting practitioners.

If a national of an EEA state<sup>1</sup>, who has medical qualifications<sup>2</sup> entitling him to registration<sup>3</sup> but is not so registered and who renders medical services while visiting the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>, whether or not registered as a visiting EEA practitioner<sup>5</sup>, is found by a fitness to practise panel<sup>6</sup> to have been convicted of a criminal offence in any EEA state where he was practising medicine<sup>7</sup>, or is subject to a finding that his fitness to practise is impaired<sup>8</sup>, the panel may, if it thinks fit, impose on him a prohibition in respect of the rendering of medical services in the United Kingdom in the future<sup>9</sup>.

A person may apply to the General Medical Council<sup>10</sup> for termination of a prohibition imposed on him and the Council may, on any such application, terminate the prohibition or reduce the period of it<sup>11</sup>. Before determining whether to terminate a prohibition, the Council must require the person applying for its termination to provide such evidence as it directs as to one or more of his good character, professional competence and health, and must not terminate the prohibition if that evidence does not satisfy it<sup>12</sup>.

Where, during the same period of prohibition, a second or subsequent application for termination of the prohibition, made by or on behalf of a person on whom the prohibition has been imposed, is unsuccessful, the Council may direct that his right to make any further such applications be suspended indefinitely<sup>13</sup>. Where the Council gives such a direction, the registrar<sup>14</sup> must without delay serve on the person in respect of whom it has been made a notification<sup>15</sup> of the direction and of his right to appeal against it<sup>16</sup>. Any person in respect of whom such a direction has been given may, after the expiration of three years from the date on which the direction was made, apply to the Council for that direction to be reviewed by the Council and, thereafter, may make further applications for review; but no such application may be made before the expiration of three years from the date of the most recent review decision<sup>17</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(ii) Proceedings relating to Fitness to Practise/A. IN GENERAL/151. Disclosure of information and notification of investigations.

(ii) Proceedings relating to Fitness to Practise

A. IN GENERAL

151. Disclosure of information and notification of investigations.

For the purpose of assisting the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> or any of its committees<sup>2</sup> in carrying out functions in respect of a practitioner's fitness to practise<sup>3</sup>, a person authorised by the Council may require a practitioner<sup>4</sup> or any other person<sup>5</sup>, who in his opinion is able to supply information or produce any document which appears relevant to the discharge of any such function, to supply such information or produce such a document<sup>6</sup>. This provision does not apply in relation to the supplying of information or the production of a document which a person could not be compelled to supply or produce in civil proceedings before the relevant court<sup>7</sup>, and nothing in this provision requires or permits any disclosure of information which is prohibited by or under any other enactment<sup>8</sup>.

As soon as is reasonably practicable after the relevant date<sup>9</sup>, the Council must require, from a practitioner whose fitness to practise is being investigated, details of any person by whom the practitioner is employed to provide services in, or in relation to, any area of medicine<sup>10</sup> or with whom he has an arrangement to do so<sup>11</sup>. As soon as is reasonably practicable after the relevant date, the Council must notify the following of an investigation by the Council of a practitioner's fitness to practise: (1) the Secretary of State<sup>12</sup> and the National Assembly for Wales<sup>13</sup>; and (2) any person in the United Kingdom<sup>14</sup> of whom the Council is aware by whom the practitioner concerned is employed to provide services in, or in relation to, any area of medicine<sup>15</sup>, or with whom he has an arrangement to do so<sup>16</sup>.

The Council may disclose to any person any information relating to a practitioner's fitness to practise which it considers it to be in the public interest to disclose<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante.

2 As to the committees of the Council see PARAS 25-26 ante.

3 As to such functions see PARAS 13, 141 et seq ante.

This provision does not apply to the practitioner in respect of whom the information or document is sought: Medical Act 1983 s 35A(1)(a) (as so added and substituted). 'Practitioner' means a fully registered person, a provisionally registered person or a person registered with limited registration: s 35A(8) (as so added and substituted). 8 Ibid s 35A(4) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). In determining for these purposes whether a disclosure is not prohibited, by reason of being a disclosure of personal data which is exempt from the non-disclosure provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998 by virtue of s 35(1) (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 554), it must be assumed that the disclosure is required by the Medical Act 1983 s 35A (as added and substituted): s 35A(5A) (as so added and substituted). Where information is held in a form in which the prohibition operates because the information is capable of identifying an individual, the person authorised to require the information may, in exercising his functions, require that the information be put into a form which is not capable of identifying that individual: s 35A(5) (as so added and substituted). 'Enactment' includes an enactment comprised in, or in an instrument made under, an Act of the Scottish Parliament, and any provision of, or any instrument made under, Northern Ireland legislation: s 35A(7) (as so added and substituted). As to the Scottish Parliament and Northern Ireland legislation see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

9 The 'relevant date' is the date specified by the Council by rules under ibid Sch 4 para 1 (see PARA 152 post): s 35A(3) (as added and substituted: see note 4 supra). The relevant date is the day on which the earliest of the following occurs:

- 34 (1) the decision of the registrar to carry out investigations under the General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, rr 4(4), 7(2) (see PARAS 160-161 post) (r 13(a));

- 38 (5) the making of a direction that an assessment of the practitioner's performance or health be carried out in accordance with Sch 1, 2 (see PARAS 184-185 post) (r 13(e)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(ii) Proceedings relating to Fitness to Practise/A. IN GENERAL/152. Rules.

152. Rules.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> must make rules for the investigation committee<sup>2</sup>, interim orders panels<sup>3</sup> and fitness to practise panels<sup>4</sup> with respect to the reference of cases to, and the procedure to be followed and rules of evidence to be observed in proceedings before, that committee or such a panel<sup>5</sup>. Before making such rules the Council must consult such bodies of persons representing medical practitioners, or medical practitioners of any description, as appear to it requisite to be consulted<sup>6</sup>. Any such rules do not come into force until approved by order of the Privy Council<sup>7</sup>.

Rules made in connection with the consideration by the investigation committee of whether to warn a person regarding his future conduct or performance<sup>8</sup> must include provision: (1) securing that notice be given to this effect to the person concerned<sup>9</sup>; (2) securing that the person concerned be entitled to make representations in writing to the committee<sup>10</sup>; (3) securing that if the committee determines that there should be an oral hearing, the person concerned is, if he so requires, entitled to be heard by the committee<sup>11</sup>; (4) enabling the person concerned to be represented before the committee by counsel or a solicitor, or, if the rules so provide and he so elects, by a person of such other description as may be specified in the rules<sup>12</sup>; and (5) securing that notice be served on the person concerned of any decision taken in relation to him by the committee<sup>13</sup>.

Rules made in connection with the consideration by an interim orders panel or a fitness to practise panel of the making of an interim suspension order or an order for interim conditional registration<sup>14</sup>, or in connection with the review of such an interim order, must include provision: (a) securing that notice that the proceedings are to be brought be given, at such time and in such manner as may be specified in the rules, to the person to whom the proceedings relate<sup>15</sup>; (b) securing that a person in relation to whom an order has been made is, if he so requires, entitled to be heard by the panel on each occasion on which it reviews the order<sup>16</sup>; (c) enabling the person in relation to whom the order has been made to be represented before the panel by counsel or a solicitor, or, if the rules so provide and he so elects, by a person of such other description as may be specified in the rules<sup>17</sup>; (d) for service on the person to whom the proceedings relate of notice of any decision taken in relation to him by the panel<sup>18</sup>; and (e) determining when proceedings before the panel are to be held in public and when in private, including provision securing that they are to be held in public if the person to whom the proceedings relate so requests<sup>19</sup>.

Rules made in connection with any other proceedings before a fitness to practise panel must include provision: (i) securing that notice that the proceedings are to be brought be given, at such time and in such manner as may be specified in the rules, to the person to whose registration the proceedings relate<sup>20</sup>; (ii) securing that any party<sup>21</sup> to the proceedings is, if he so requires, entitled to be heard by a panel<sup>22</sup>; (iii) enabling any party to the proceedings to be represented before the panel by counsel or a solicitor, or, if the rules so provide and the party so elects, by a person of such other description as may be specified in the rules<sup>23</sup>; (iv) in relation to conduct<sup>24</sup>, conviction<sup>25</sup> or determination proceedings<sup>26</sup>, for proceedings before a panel to be held in public unless and to the extent that the rules provide otherwise<sup>27</sup>; and (v) in relation to health<sup>28</sup> or performance proceedings<sup>29</sup>, requiring proceedings before a panel to be held in public if the person concerned so requests unless and to the extent that the rules provide otherwise<sup>30</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(4) FITNESS TO PRACTISE/(ii) Proceedings relating to Fitness to Practise/A. IN GENERAL/155. Functions of legal assessors.

155. Functions of legal assessors.

Legal assessors<sup>1</sup> have the following functions:

- 161 (1) advising the committee<sup>2</sup> or a panel<sup>3</sup> on questions of law arising in proceedings before it, and in particular a legal assessor must, in such proceedings<sup>4</sup>:
59
84. (a) advise the committee or the panel on any question of law that is referred to him by the committee or the panel<sup>5</sup>; and
85. (b) intervene to advise the committee or the panel on an issue of law where it appears to him that, without his intervention, there is the possibility of a mistake of law being made<sup>6</sup>; and
86. (c) intervene to advise the committee or the panel of any irregularity in the conduct of the proceedings which comes to his knowledge<sup>7</sup>; and
- 162 (2) advising on the drafting of decisions of the committee or a panel, notwithstanding that legal assessors will not themselves be parties to those decisions<sup>8</sup>.

In all proceedings in which a legal assessor must be appointed<sup>9</sup>, the committee or panel conducting those proceedings must not hold any meeting or hearing<sup>10</sup> in respect of those proceedings in the absence of the legal assessor appointed in those proceedings<sup>11</sup>.

Any advice tendered by a legal assessor on a question of law at a hearing must be tendered in the presence of every party, or person representing a party, in attendance at the hearing<sup>12</sup>. However, where the committee or a panel has begun to deliberate on its decision<sup>13</sup> and considers that it would be prejudicial to the discharge of its functions for the advice of the legal assessor to be tendered in the presence of the parties or their representatives<sup>14</sup>, the advice may be tendered in the absence of the parties or their representatives<sup>15</sup>. Where advice is so tendered in the absence of the parties or their representatives, the legal assessor who tendered that advice must, as soon as practicable after the completion of the deliberations, inform each of the parties or their representatives in attendance at the hearing of the advice he gave together with any question which led to that advice<sup>16</sup>, and subsequently record those matters in writing and give a copy to those parties or their representatives<sup>17</sup>.

Where, in proceedings but not at a hearing, a legal assessor tenders advice on a question of law to the committee or a panel which the committee or the panel does not accept, a record must be made by the legal assessor of the advice given together with any question which led to that advice and of the decision not to accept it together with the reasons for that decision<sup>18</sup>, and a copy of the record must be given to every party to the proceedings or their representatives<sup>19</sup>.

A direction for erasure, for suspension or for conditional registration given by a fitness to practise panel<sup>1</sup>, a variation by such a panel<sup>2</sup>, or a direction for erasure given by the General Medical Council<sup>3</sup> takes effect: (1) where no appeal<sup>4</sup> is brought against the direction or variation within the time specified, on the expiration of that time<sup>5</sup>; (2) where such an appeal is so brought but is withdrawn or dismissed for want of prosecution, on the withdrawal or dismissal of the appeal<sup>6</sup>; (3) where such an appeal is so brought and is not withdrawn or dismissed for want of prosecution, if and when the appeal is dismissed<sup>7</sup>.

If, while a person's registration is suspended<sup>8</sup>, a direction is given: (a) extending the period of suspension, or for erasure, or for conditional registration<sup>9</sup>; or (b) on the review of a health case<sup>10</sup>, then the suspension of his registration continues to have effect throughout any period which may intervene between the time when, but for this provision, the suspension of his registration would end and the time when the direction takes effect<sup>11</sup> or an appeal<sup>12</sup> against it is, otherwise than by the dismissal of the appeal, determined<sup>13</sup>.

INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/(A) Preliminary and General Matters/160. Initial consideration and referral of allegations.

B. INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS

(A) PRELIMINARY AND GENERAL MATTERS

160. Initial consideration and referral of allegations.

An allegation<sup>1</sup> must initially be considered by the registrar<sup>2</sup>. The registrar may, before deciding whether to refer an allegation, carry out any such investigations as in his opinion are appropriate to the consideration of: (1) whether or not the allegation falls within the Medical Act 1983<sup>3</sup>; or (2) the practitioner's fitness to practise<sup>4</sup>. Where the registrar considers that the allegation falls within the Medical Act 1983, he must refer the matter to a medical<sup>5</sup> and a lay<sup>6</sup> case examiner<sup>7</sup> for consideration<sup>8</sup>. Where the registrar considers that an allegation does not fall within the Medical Act 1983<sup>9</sup> or, in the case of an excepted allegation<sup>10</sup>, the registrar does not consider it to be in the public interest for the allegation to proceed<sup>11</sup>, he must notify the practitioner and the maker of the allegation, if any, accordingly<sup>12</sup>.

The registrar must refer an allegation relating to a conviction for a criminal offence<sup>13</sup> resulting in the imposition of a custodial sentence, whether immediate or suspended, directly to a fitness to practise panel<sup>14</sup>, and must refer any other allegation relating to a criminal conviction or caution or a determination by a regulatory body<sup>15</sup> directly to such a panel, unless he is of the opinion that it ought to be referred to a medical and a lay case examiner<sup>16</sup>.

However, no allegation may proceed further if, at the time it is first made or first comes to the attention of the General Medical Council<sup>17</sup>, more than five years have elapsed since the most recent events giving rise to the allegation, unless the registrar considers that it is in the public interest, in the exceptional circumstances of the case, for it to proceed<sup>18</sup>.

If, at any stage, the registrar is of the opinion that an interim orders panel<sup>19</sup> should consider making an interim order<sup>20</sup> in relation to a practitioner, he must refer the allegation to such a panel accordingly<sup>21</sup>.

1 'Allegation' means an allegation that the fitness to practise of a practitioner (see note 4 infra) is impaired and includes an allegation treated as arising by virtue of the Medical Act 1983 s 35CC(3) (as added) (see PARA 141 text to notes 18, 19 ante) and an allegation relating to a person whose registration is suspended: General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, r 2. As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

160 Initial consideration and referral of allegations

TEXT AND NOTES 3, 4--The registrar may also carry out any such investigations as in his opinion are appropriate to the consideration of the matters outlined within SI 2004/2608 r 4(5): r 4(4)(c) (added by SI 2009/1913).

NOTE 4--In the definition of 'practitioner' for 'person holding ... limited registration' read 'person holding full or provisional registration': SI 2004/2608 r 2 (amended by SI 2009/1913).

NOTE 6--'Lay', in relation to any person, now means a person who is not and never has been provisionally registered or fully registered, was at no time registered with limited registration and does not hold qualifications which would entitle them to apply for provisional or full registration under the Medical Act 1983: SI 2004/2608 r 2 (amended by SI 2009/1913).

NOTE 7--Definition of 'case examiner' amended: SI 2004/2608 r 2 (amended by SI 2009/1913).

TEXT AND NOTES 9-12--The registrar must also notify the practitioner and the maker of the allegation if he considers that an allegation should not proceed on grounds that it is vexatious: SI 2004/2608 r 4(3)(c) (added by SI 2009/1913).

161. Preliminary procedure.

As soon as is reasonably practicable after referral of an allegation<sup>1</sup> for consideration by case examiners<sup>2</sup>, the registrar<sup>3</sup> must write to the practitioner<sup>4</sup>: (1) informing him of the allegation and stating the matters which appear to raise a question as to whether his fitness to practise is impaired<sup>5</sup>; (2) providing him with copies of any documents received by the General Medical Council<sup>6</sup> in support of the allegation<sup>7</sup>; (3) inviting him to respond to the allegation with written<sup>8</sup> representations within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter<sup>9</sup>; and (4) informing him that representations received from him will be disclosed, where appropriate, to the maker of the allegation, if any, for comment<sup>10</sup>.

The registrar must carry out any such investigations, whether or not any have been carried out previously<sup>11</sup>, as in his opinion are appropriate to the consideration of the allegation by case examiners<sup>12</sup>, and may direct that an assessment of the practitioner's performance or health be carried out<sup>13</sup>. Where the registrar receives information that: (a) the practitioner has failed to submit to, or comply with, such an assessment<sup>14</sup>; or (b) having submitted to an assessment of his performance, the practitioner has failed to comply with reasonable requirements imposed by the assessment team<sup>15</sup>, then the registrar may refer the allegation for determination by a fitness to practise panel<sup>16</sup>, and, in a case where the practitioner has failed to comply with reasonable requirements imposed by the assessment team, the registrar may refer the practitioner to a fitness to practise panel for the purposes of making a direction<sup>17</sup> for the suspension of or the attachment of conditions to the practitioners registration<sup>18</sup>.

162. Consideration by case examiners.

An allegation<sup>1</sup> referred by the registrar<sup>2</sup> must be considered by the case examiners<sup>3</sup>. Upon consideration of an allegation, the case examiners may unanimously decide: (1) that the allegation should not proceed further<sup>4</sup>; (2) to issue a warning to the practitioner<sup>5</sup>; (3) to refer the allegation to the investigation committee<sup>6</sup> for determination<sup>7</sup>; or (4) to refer the allegation for determination by a fitness to practise panel<sup>8</sup>. The case examiners may unanimously decide to recommend that the practitioner be invited to comply with undertakings<sup>9</sup> and, where they do so and the practitioner confirms he is prepared to comply with such undertakings<sup>10</sup>, they must make no decision under heads (1) to (4) above<sup>11</sup>.

As soon as reasonably practicable, the case examiners must inform the registrar of their decision, together with the reasons for that decision, and the registrar must notify<sup>12</sup> the practitioner and the maker of the allegation, if any, in writing<sup>13</sup>, accordingly<sup>14</sup>. If the case examiners fail to agree as to the disposal of an allegation under heads (1) to (4) above, or whether to recommend that the practitioner be invited to comply with undertakings, they must notify the registrar accordingly, and he must refer the allegation for consideration by the investigation committee<sup>15</sup>. If, at any stage, one of the case examiners is of the opinion that an interim orders panel<sup>16</sup> should consider making an interim order in relation to a practitioner, he must direct the registrar accordingly<sup>17</sup>.

Upon consideration of an allegation<sup>1</sup> referred from case examiners<sup>2</sup>, the investigation committee<sup>3</sup> may: (1) determine that the allegation should not proceed further<sup>4</sup>; (2) dispose of the allegation by issuing a warning<sup>5</sup> to the practitioner<sup>6</sup> without an oral hearing<sup>7</sup>; (3) determine that an oral hearing should be held for determination<sup>8</sup>; (4) refer the allegation for determination by a fitness to practise panel<sup>9</sup>; or (5) where the case examiners have failed to agree whether to recommend that the practitioner be invited to comply with undertakings<sup>10</sup>, determine that the practitioner be invited to comply with such undertakings as the committee thinks fit and direct the case examiners to make no decision<sup>11</sup> accordingly<sup>12</sup>.

3 As to the constitution of the investigation committee see PARAS 138-140 ante. As to the investigation committee as a statutory committee see PARA 26 ante. As to the functions of the investigation committee see PARAS 141-142 ante.

A court should exercise caution when considering an application to judicially review the decision of such a committee particularly if the court is asked to assess evidence of medical practice, or expert medical reports, with a view to determining whether the committee could legitimately conclude that there is a real prospect of a charge or charges being proved; the degree of caution appropriate is, however, significantly less if the issue before the court is whether the committee correctly interpreted or applied the rules governing its procedure: David v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 2977 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 346 (Dec). It is not the role of such a committee to resolve conflicts, or at least substantial conflicts, of evidence; and in performing its functions it must balance the interests of the practitioner against the interests of the complainant and the public and bear in mind the need for the reassurance of the complainant and the public that complaints are fully and properly investigated and that there is no cover-up. The committee should be particularly slow in halting a complaint against a practitioner who continues to practise, as opposed to one who has since retired, for the paramount consideration must be the public's protection in respect of those continuing to practise: R v General Medical Council ex p Toth [2000] 1 WLR 2209, 61 BMLR 149; R (on the application of Richards) v General Medical Council [2000] All ER (D) 2350, (2001) Times, 24 Jan; and see also David v General Medical Council supra. ## 165. Undertakings.

- 165 (1) is not fit to practise<sup>10</sup>;
- 166 (2) is not fit to practise except on a limited basis or under supervision, or both<sup>11</sup>;
or
- 167 (3) suffers from a continuing or episodic physical or mental condition which, although in remission at the time of the assessment, may be expected to cause a recurrence of impairment of the practitioner's fitness to practise<sup>12</sup>,

they may recommend that the practitioner be invited to comply with such undertakings as they think fit, including any limitations on his practice, and must inform the registrar who must write to the practitioner accordingly, inviting him to state within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter, or such further period as the registrar may allow, whether he is prepared to comply with such undertakings<sup>13</sup>.

If, within the 28 day period, or such further period as the registrar may allow, the practitioner confirms in writing that he is prepared to comply with the undertakings proposed, the case examiners cease consideration of the allegation<sup>14</sup> and the registrar must notify the practitioner and the maker of the allegation, if any, in writing<sup>15</sup>. Where, as a result of information received by the General Medical Council<sup>16</sup> it appears to the case examiners that any undertakings the practitioner has agreed to comply with should be varied or cease to apply, they must inform the registrar accordingly and the registrar must invite the practitioner to comply with such varied undertakings as appear to the case examiners to be appropriate<sup>17</sup>, or direct that the undertakings should no longer apply and that the allegation should proceed no further<sup>18</sup>.

Where the registrar receives information that: (a) the practitioner has not within the 28 day period, or such further period as the registrar may allow, agreed to comply with the undertakings proposed<sup>19</sup>; (b) the practitioner has failed to observe an undertaking he has agreed to comply with or which has been varied<sup>20</sup>; or (c) the practitioner's health or performance has deteriorated, or otherwise gives rise to further concern regarding his fitness to practise<sup>21</sup>, then the registrar may refer the allegation for determination by a fitness to practise panel<sup>22</sup>.

The registrar must disclose details of any relevant undertakings, save those relating exclusively to the health of the practitioner, to any person by whom the practitioner is employed to provide medical services or with whom he has an arrangement to do so<sup>23</sup>, and any enquirer<sup>24</sup>.

166. Warnings.

If it appears to one or both of the case examiners<sup>1</sup> that an allegation<sup>2</sup> is one with respect to which he or they may wish to give a warning<sup>3</sup>, he or they must inform the registrar<sup>4</sup>, and the registrar must write<sup>5</sup> to the practitioner<sup>6</sup> to inform him that he is entitled to make written<sup>7</sup> representations within the period of 28 days from the date of the letter<sup>8</sup>. If the case examiners are satisfied that the allegation ought not to be considered by a fitness to practise panel<sup>9</sup> and the practitioner has made no representations<sup>10</sup>, or they have considered any representations made and the practitioner has not contested the facts upon which the allegation is based<sup>11</sup>, they may if they think fit issue a warning to the practitioner<sup>12</sup>. However, if after considering any representations made by the practitioner, where: (1) the practitioner has requested that the allegation be referred for an oral hearing before the investigation committee<sup>13</sup>; or (2) the case examiners otherwise consider it appropriate to do so<sup>14</sup>, the case examiners must refer the allegation to the committee for an oral hearing<sup>15</sup>.

Where an allegation has been referred to the investigation committee for an oral hearing, the registrar must give notice to the practitioner: (a) particularising the allegation against the practitioner and the facts upon which it is based<sup>16</sup>; (b) specifying the date, time and venue of the hearing<sup>17</sup>; (c) informing him of his right to attend the hearing and to be represented at a hearing<sup>18</sup>; (d) informing him of the power of the committee to proceed in his absence<sup>19</sup>; and (e) informing him of the committee's powers of disposal<sup>20</sup>. The order of proceedings before the committee is as follows:

- 168 (i) the presenting officer<sup>21</sup> outlines the allegation and the facts upon which it is based and, where the committee considers such evidence is desirable to enable it to discharge its functions in relation to the hearing, may adduce any relevant oral or documentary evidence<sup>22</sup>;
- 169 (ii) the practitioner may respond to the allegation and, where the committee considers such evidence is desirable to enable it to discharge its functions in relation to the hearing, may adduce any relevant oral or documentary evidence<sup>23</sup>;
- 170 (iii) the parties<sup>24</sup> may make such further submissions as the committee may allow<sup>25</sup>;
- 171 (iv) before making its decision, the committee may adjourn for further investigations to be carried out, including an assessment of the practitioner's performance or health<sup>26</sup>; and
- 172 (v) the committee announces its decision, and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>27</sup>.

The committee must consider any allegation referred to it and: (A) determine that the matter should not proceed further<sup>28</sup>; (B) dispose of the allegation by issuing a warning<sup>29</sup>; or (C) where new information adduced into evidence at the hearing indicates that to do so would be appropriate, refer the allegation for determination by a fitness to practise panel<sup>30</sup>. In making its decision, the committee must, where appropriate, take into account the practitioner's previous fitness to practise history with the General Medical Council or any other regulatory body<sup>31</sup>.

The registrar must serve written notification of the committee's decision upon the practitioner as soon as practicable<sup>32</sup>.

INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/(A) Preliminary and General Matters/170. Case management.

170. Case management.

The registrar<sup>1</sup> must appoint one or more legally qualified case managers<sup>2</sup>. Following the referral of a case to a fitness to practise panel<sup>3</sup> for: (1) a hearing to consider an allegation<sup>4</sup>; (2) a review hearing to consider an allegation<sup>5</sup>; or (3) consideration of an application for restoration<sup>6</sup>, the registrar may list the matter for a case review before a case manager<sup>7</sup>.

The case manager must act independently of the parties and may give directions to secure the just, expeditious and effective running of proceedings before the fitness to practise panel<sup>8</sup>. Directions issued by the case manager may include, but are not limited to, such of the following as he considers appropriate having regard to the nature of the allegation, any representations made by the parties and all other material factors<sup>9</sup>:

- 182 (a) that each party disclose to the other:
  - 61 87. (i) any documentary evidence in their possession or power relating to the allegation<sup>10</sup>;
  88. (ii) details of the witnesses, including the practitioner<sup>11</sup>, on whom they intend to rely and signed witness statements setting out the substance of their evidence<sup>12</sup>;
  89. (iii) a curriculum vitae and an expert report in respect of any expert on whom they intend to rely<sup>13</sup>; and
  90. (iv) skeleton arguments<sup>14</sup>;
  - 62 183 (b) that each party provide an estimate as to the likely length of the hearing and the date or dates on which they propose that the hearing should take place<sup>15</sup>;
  - 184 (c) that the parties state whether or not the health of the practitioner is to be raised as an issue in the proceedings<sup>16</sup>;
  - 185 (d) that the practitioner indicates, so far as is practicable:
    - 63 91. (i) whether the allegation is admitted<sup>17</sup>;
    92. (ii) which facts are admitted and which facts remain in dispute<sup>18</sup>;
    93. (iii) which witness evidence is admitted and which witnesses are required for cross examination<sup>19</sup>; and
    94. (iv) whether any preliminary legal arguments are to be made<sup>20</sup>;
    - 64 186 (e) where the allegation is admitted, a direction that the parties produce a statement of agreed facts<sup>21</sup>;
    - 187 (f) where the parties agree, a direction that a witness statement stand as the evidence-in-chief of that witness<sup>22</sup>;
    - 188 (g) a direction that a particular witness should be treated as a vulnerable witness, and directions as to how the evidence of such witness should be obtained or presented to the panel<sup>23</sup>;
    - 189 (h) a direction for an adjournment of the case review or an additional case review where the circumstances of the case require<sup>24</sup>; and
    - 190 (i) time limits for compliance with any of the directions listed above<sup>25</sup>.

Within the period of seven days beginning with the date of a case review, the case manager must serve on the parties a record of the directions issued by him<sup>26</sup>.

A fitness to practise panel may draw such inferences as it considers appropriate in respect of the failure by a party to comply with directions issued by the case manager<sup>27</sup>.

171. Cancellation, postponement or adjournment of hearings.

Where, after an allegation<sup>1</sup> has been referred to a panel<sup>2</sup> and before the opening of the hearing before the panel: (1) evidence becomes available that suggests that the practitioner's<sup>3</sup> fitness to practise is not impaired<sup>4</sup>; (2) in the case of proceedings relating to interim orders, evidence becomes available that suggests an issue does not arise as to whether the interim orders panel<sup>5</sup> should make or review an interim order<sup>6</sup>; or (3) it appears that for some other reason, the hearing before the panel should not be held<sup>7</sup>, then the registrar<sup>8</sup> may refer the matter to a member of the investigation committee<sup>9</sup> or the president of the General Medical Council<sup>10</sup> for a decision as to whether or not the hearing should be cancelled<sup>11</sup>. Where a decision is taken that a hearing should be cancelled, the registrar must, as soon as practicable, serve notice<sup>12</sup> of the decision upon the practitioner and the maker of the allegation, if any, and give the reasons for that decision<sup>13</sup>.

Before the opening of any hearing of which notice has been served on the practitioner, a member of the investigation committee<sup>14</sup> or the president of the General Medical Council<sup>15</sup> may, of his own motion or upon the application of a party<sup>16</sup> to the proceedings, postpone the hearing until such time and date as he thinks fit<sup>17</sup>. ### 173. Evidence.

The investigation committee<sup>1</sup> or a panel<sup>2</sup> may admit any evidence it considers fair and relevant to the case before it, whether or not such evidence would be admissible in a court of law<sup>3</sup>. However, where evidence would not be admissible in criminal proceedings in England, the committee or panel must not admit such evidence unless, on the advice of the legal assessor<sup>4</sup>, it is satisfied that its duty of making due inquiry into the case before it makes its admission desirable<sup>5</sup>. A copy of a document of which the original is admissible may be received by the committee or a panel without strict proof<sup>6</sup>. The practitioner<sup>7</sup> may admit a fact or description of a fact, and a fact or description of a fact so admitted may be treated as proved<sup>8</sup>.

Production of a certificate purporting to be under the hand of a competent officer of a court in the United Kingdom<sup>9</sup> or overseas that a person has been convicted of a criminal offence or, in Scotland an extract conviction, is conclusive evidence of the offence committed<sup>10</sup>; and production of a certificate signed by an officer of a regulatory body<sup>11</sup> that has made a determination about the fitness to practise of a person is conclusive evidence of the facts found proved in relation to that determination<sup>12</sup>.

A party<sup>13</sup> may, at any time, serve notice<sup>14</sup> on the other party to produce the original or a copy of any document that is relevant to the proceedings<sup>15</sup> and alleged to be in the possession, ownership or control of that party<sup>16</sup>, and such notice may be admitted into evidence by the committee or panel<sup>17</sup>. In relation to proceedings before the committee or a fitness to practise panel<sup>18</sup>, unless otherwise agreed between the parties or directed by a case manager<sup>19</sup>, each party must not less than 28 days before the date of a hearing: (1) provide to the other party a list of every document which he proposes to introduce as evidence<sup>20</sup>; (2) provide to the other party a copy of every such document which the other party has not previously received<sup>21</sup>; and (3) require the other party to notify him, within 14 days of the list being provided to him, whether or not he requires any relevant person to attend and give oral evidence in relation to the subject matter or making of such document<sup>22</sup>. Having regard to any directions given by a case manager<sup>23</sup>, on the application of a party, the committee or a panel may admit any signed witness statement containing a statement of truth as the evidence-in-chief of the witness concerned<sup>24</sup>.

138-189 Fitness to practise

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

173 Evidence

TEXT AND NOTES--The standard of proof applicable to all proceedings before the investigation committee or a fitness to practise panel is that applicable to civil proceedings: General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, r 34(12) (added by SI 2008/1256).

NOTE 10--Where it is alleged that a practitioner has been included in a barred list (within the meaning of Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006) by the Independent Barring Board (1) information provided by the Secretary of State under the 2006 Act that attests to the inclusion is conclusive evidence of it, unless the practitioner can prove that he is not the person referred to in the information; and (2) a document from the Board, authenticated in whatever way the General Council may approve, that provides a statement of the findings of fact made by the Board that led to the inclusion is conclusive evidence of the facts found proved by the Board: SI 2004/2608 r 34(5A) (added by SI 2009/1182) (in force on the coming into force of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 s 44(1) (see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 704)). As to the system under the 2006 Act see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 675 et seq.

174. Witnesses.

The investigation committee<sup>1</sup> or panel<sup>2</sup> may, on the application of a party<sup>3</sup> or of its own motion, require a witness to attend a hearing<sup>4</sup>. Witnesses must be required to take an oath<sup>5</sup>, or to affirm, before giving oral evidence at a hearing<sup>6</sup>. Save in the case of vulnerable witnesses<sup>7</sup>, witnesses: (1) are first examined by the party calling them<sup>8</sup>; (2) may then be cross-examined by the opposing party<sup>9</sup>; (3) may then be re-examined by the party calling them<sup>10</sup>; and (4) may at any time be questioned by the committee or panel and, with the leave of the chairman at the hearing, a specialist health adviser<sup>11</sup> or specialist performance adviser<sup>12</sup>. Any further questioning of the witnesses by the parties is at the discretion of the committee or panel<sup>13</sup>. The committee or panel may, upon the application of a party, agree that the identity of a witness should not be revealed in public<sup>14</sup>.

In proceedings before the investigation committee or a panel, the following may, if the quality of their evidence is likely to be adversely affected as a result, be treated as a vulnerable witness: (a) any witness under the age of 17 at the time of the hearing<sup>15</sup>; (b) any witness with a mental disorder<sup>16</sup>; (c) any witness who is significantly impaired in relation to intelligence and social functioning<sup>17</sup>; (d) any witness with physical disabilities who requires assistance to give evidence<sup>18</sup>; (e) any witness, where the allegation<sup>19</sup> against the practitioner<sup>20</sup> is of a sexual nature and the witness was the alleged victim<sup>21</sup>; and (f) any witness who complains of intimidation<sup>22</sup>. Subject to the advice of the legal assessor<sup>23</sup>, and upon hearing representations from the parties, the committee or panel may adopt such measures as it considers desirable to enable it to receive evidence from a vulnerable witness<sup>24</sup>.

A witness of fact is not, without leave of the committee or panel, entitled to give evidence at a hearing unless he has been excluded from the proceedings until such time as he is called: r 35(6). There is no good reason why medical expert witnesses should be excluded from the hearing whilst other witnesses are giving their evidence. ### 175. Hearings to be in public.

Generally<sup>1</sup>, hearings before the investigation committee<sup>2</sup> and a fitness to practise panel<sup>3</sup> must be held in public<sup>4</sup>. However, the committee or panel may determine that the public be excluded from the proceedings or any part of the proceedings, where it considers that the particular circumstances of the case outweigh the public interest in holding the hearing in public<sup>5</sup>.

The committee or a panel must sit in private<sup>6</sup>, where it is considering: (1) whether to make or review an interim order<sup>7</sup>; or (2) the physical or mental health of the practitioner<sup>8</sup>. However, the committee or panel may, where it is considering matters under head (1) or head (2) above, hold a hearing in public where it considers that to do so would be appropriate, having regard to: (a) the interests of the maker of the allegation<sup>9</sup>, if any<sup>10</sup>; (b) the interests of any patient concerned<sup>11</sup>; (c) whether a public hearing would adversely affect the health of the practitioner<sup>12</sup>; and (d) all the circumstances, including the public interest<sup>13</sup>. However, a panel must, where it is considering matters under head (1) above, sit in public where the practitioner requests it to do so<sup>14</sup>.

The committee or panel may deliberate in camera, in the absence of the parties<sup>15</sup> and of their representatives and of the public, at any time<sup>16</sup>. The committee or panel may exclude from any hearing any person whose conduct, in its opinion, is likely to disrupt the orderly conduct of the proceedings<sup>17</sup>.

(B) PROCEDURE BEFORE A FITNESS TO PRACTISE PANEL

178. Order of proceedings.

A fitness to practise panel<sup>1</sup> must consider any allegations<sup>2</sup> referred to it<sup>3</sup>, and dispose of the case in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions<sup>4</sup>. The order of proceedings at the hearing is as follows:

- 195 (1) the panel hears and considers any preliminary legal arguments<sup>5</sup>;
- 196 (2) the chairman of the panel:
- 65
95. (a) where the practitioner<sup>6</sup> is present, requires the practitioner to confirm his name and registration number<sup>7</sup>; or
96. (b) otherwise, requires the presenting officer<sup>8</sup> to confirm the practitioner's name and registration number<sup>9</sup>;
- 66
- 197 (3) the person acting as secretary to the panel reads out the allegation, and the alleged facts upon which it is based<sup>10</sup>;
- 198 (4) the chairman of the panel inquires whether the practitioner wishes to make any admissions<sup>11</sup>;
- 199 (5) where facts have been admitted, the chairman of the panel announces that such facts have been found proved<sup>12</sup>;
- 200 (6) where facts remain in dispute, the presenting officer opens the case for the General Medical Council<sup>13</sup> and may adduce evidence and call witnesses in support of it<sup>14</sup>;
- 201 (7) the practitioner may make submissions regarding whether sufficient evidence has been adduced to find the facts proved or to support a finding of impairment, and the panel considers and announces its decision as to whether any such submissions should be upheld<sup>15</sup>;
- 202 (8) the practitioner may open his case and may adduce evidence and call witnesses in support of it<sup>16</sup>;
- 203 (9) the panel considers and announces its findings of fact<sup>17</sup>;
- 204 (10) the panel receives further evidence and hears any further submissions from the parties<sup>18</sup> as to whether, on the basis of any facts found proved, the practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired<sup>19</sup>;
- 205 (11) the panel considers and announces its finding on the question of whether the fitness to practise of the practitioner is impaired, and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>20</sup>;
- 206 (12) the panel may receive further evidence and hear any further submissions from the parties as to the appropriate sanction, if any, to be imposed or, where the practitioner's fitness to practise is not found to be impaired, the question of whether a warning should be imposed<sup>21</sup>;
- 207 (13) the panel may take into account any written undertakings<sup>22</sup>, including limitations on his practice, entered into by the practitioner:
97. (a) which it considers to be sufficient to protect patients and protect the public interest<sup>23</sup>; and

98. (b) where the practitioner expressly agrees that the registrar<sup>24</sup> may disclose details of any such undertakings, save those relating exclusively to the health of the practitioner, to any person by whom the practitioner is employed to provide medical services or with whom he has an arrangement to do so<sup>25</sup>, to any person from whom the practitioner is seeking such employment or such an arrangement<sup>26</sup>, and to any enquirer<sup>27</sup>;
- 68
- 208 (14) the panel considers and announces its decision as to the sanction or warning, if any, to be imposed or undertakings to be taken into account and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>28</sup>;
- 209 (15) where the panel considers that an order for immediate suspension or immediate conditions should be imposed on the practitioner's registration<sup>29</sup>, it invites representations from the parties before considering and announcing whether it will impose such order, together with its reasons for that decision<sup>30</sup>; and
- 210 (16) the panel deals with any interim order in place in respect of the practitioner<sup>31</sup>.

At any stage before making its decision as to sanction or warning, the panel may adjourn for further information or reports to be obtained in order to assist it in exercising its functions<sup>32</sup>.

In general it is preferable for proceedings to be allowed to take their course and a challenge to their validity to be taken by way of appeal; however, special circumstances may arise where justice and the appearance of justice require that the proceedings be adjourned to give at least an opportunity for that matter to be raised before a court: R (on the application of Mahfouz) v Professional Conduct Committee of the General Medical Council [2004] EWCA Civ 233, (2004) Times, 19 March, (where the practitioner applied for the committee to discharge itself on the grounds of bias).

The issues of proving serious professional misconduct and determining the appropriate penalty are distinct and to be determined separately on the basis of evidence relevant to each of them: R (on the application of Campbell) v General Medical Council [2005] EWCA Civ 250, [2005] All ER (D) 193 (Mar). See also note 21 infra.

20 General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, r 17(2)(k). See also note 17 supra. As to the adjournment of proceedings, before making a determination that a practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired, to enable the appointment of a specialist health adviser or specialist performance adviser, or so that an assessment of the practitioner's performance or health may be carried out see PARA 179 post. As to matters which a panel may take into account when determining whether a practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired by reason of adverse physical or mental health see PARA 179 post. A committee must give its reasons for preferring the evidence of one expert witness to that of another: Cullen v General Medical Council [2005] EWHC 353 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 209 (Mar).

21 General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, r 17(2)(l). In matters of professional discipline, the relevant committee is not concerned exclusively, or even primarily, with the punishment of the practitioner concerned; the essential issue is the need to maintain public confidence in the integrity of the profession and the reputation of the profession is more important than the fortunes of any individual member; thus considerations which would normally weigh in mitigation of punishment have less effect than in other jurisdictions and it can never be an objection to an order for erasure or suspension that the practitioner may subsequently be unable to re-establish his practice: see Bolton v Law Society [1994] 2 All ER 486 at 491-493, [1994] 1 WLR 512; Gupta v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 61, [2002] 1 WLR 1691; Gosai v General Medical Council [2003] UKPC 31, 75 BMLR 52. Mitigation arising from the circumstances in which the practitioner found himself may be relevant to the level of culpability: once serious professional misconduct is proved, personal mitigation will be relevant to possible penalty. These are distinct issues, to be determined separately, on the basis of evidence relevant to them: R (on the application of Campbell) v General Medical Council [2005] EWCA Civ 250, [2005] All ER (D) 193 (Mar). TEXT AND NOTES 22, 23--Head (13). For 'the panel ... entered into by the practitioner' read 'the panel may agree as an alternative to imposing any sanction any written undertakings, including any limitations on his practice, offered by the practitioner': SI 2004/2608 r 17(2)(m)(i) (amended by SI 2009/1913). Where undertakings have been agreed under head (13) the registrar may carry out any investigations, which may include, but are not limited to, requesting the provision of reports or directing an assessment be carried out in accordance with SI 2004/2608 Sch 1 (see PARA 185) or 2 (see PARA 164), that are, in the registrar's opinion, appropriate to the consideration of whether the practitioner has complied with any undertakings in place or the practitioner's fitness to practise: r 37A (added by SI 2009/1913).

TEXT AND NOTES 29, 30--Now, head (15) the panel must receive any further evidence and hear any further submissions from the parties as to whether an order for immediate suspension or immediate conditions should be imposed on the practitioner's registration, before considering and announcing whether it will impose such an order and its reasons for that decision: SI 2004/2608 r 17(2)(o) (substituted by SI 2009/1913).

179. Further provisions relating to procedure.

Where it appears to the fitness to practise panel<sup>1</sup> at any time that the particulars of the allegation<sup>2</sup> or the facts upon which it is based, of which notice has been given<sup>3</sup>, should be amended<sup>4</sup>, and the amendment can be made without injustice<sup>5</sup>, it may, after hearing the parties<sup>6</sup> and consulting with the legal assessor<sup>7</sup>, amend the particulars on appropriate terms<sup>8</sup>.

At any stage in the proceedings, before making a determination that a practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired<sup>9</sup>, the panel may, having regard to the nature of the allegation under consideration, adjourn and direct that a specialist health adviser<sup>10</sup> or specialist performance adviser<sup>11</sup> be appointed to assist the panel<sup>12</sup>, or that an assessment of the practitioner's performance or health be carried out<sup>13</sup>. On receipt of an assessment report<sup>14</sup> produced further to such an assessment, the panel may proceed to consider and determine the allegation<sup>15</sup>, or refer the allegation to the registrar<sup>16</sup> for consideration by the case examiners<sup>17</sup>.

When determining whether a practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired by reason of adverse physical or mental health, the panel may take into account: (1) the practitioner's current physical or mental condition<sup>18</sup>; (2) any continuing or episodic condition suffered by the practitioner<sup>19</sup>; and (3) a condition suffered by the practitioner which, although currently in remission, may be expected to cause a recurrence of impairment of the practitioner's fitness to practise<sup>20</sup>.

Where a practitioner has been referred<sup>21</sup> for failure to comply with reasonable requirements imposed by an assessment team<sup>22</sup>, the panel may dispose of the case, where it considers it appropriate to do so, by suspending the practitioner's name from the register<sup>23</sup> or imposing conditions on his registration<sup>24</sup>. Otherwise, where a practitioner has failed to submit to, or to comply with, an assessment of his performance or health, and:

- 211 (a) there is credible evidence before the panel that the practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired<sup>25</sup>;
- 212 (b) a reasonable request has been made by the registrar to the practitioner that he submit to or comply with the assessment<sup>26</sup>; and
- 213 (c) no reasonable excuse for such failure has been provided by the practitioner<sup>27</sup>, the panel may take such failure into account in determining the question of whether the practitioner's fitness to practise is impaired<sup>28</sup>.

INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/ (B) Procedure before a Fitness to Practise Panel/180. Review hearings.

180. Review hearings.

Prior to the opening of a review hearing<sup>1</sup>, the registrar<sup>2</sup> must consider the directions made by a fitness to practise panel<sup>3</sup> in respect of the practitioner<sup>4</sup> at any previous hearing, and may make such inquiry or procure the production of such expert or other report as he considers necessary<sup>5</sup>, and may invite the practitioner to undergo an assessment of his performance or health<sup>6</sup>. No later than 28 days before the hearing, the registrar must serve on the practitioner notice<sup>7</sup> of the review hearing: (1) particularising the direction made at the previous hearing and the grounds for the same<sup>8</sup>; (2) stating the specified matters<sup>9</sup>; (3) where an early review hearing is to be held, disclosing the information that makes such early review desirable<sup>10</sup>; (4) indicating the provision<sup>11</sup> under which the panel is proposing to act, and the powers available to the panel under that provision<sup>12</sup>; (5) requesting the practitioner to notify the registrar, within 14 days of the date of the notice, whether he wishes to attend the hearing<sup>13</sup>; and (6) inviting the practitioner, if he chooses not to attend the hearing, to make written<sup>14</sup> representations to be received by the registrar no later than 14 days before the hearing<sup>15</sup>.

The order of proceedings at a review hearing is as follows:

- 214 (a) the panel hears and considers any preliminary legal arguments<sup>16</sup>;
- 215 (b) the chairman of the panel:
69
- 99. (i) where the practitioner is present, requires the practitioner to confirm his name and registration number<sup>17</sup>; or
- 100. (ii) otherwise, requires the presenting officer<sup>18</sup> to confirm the practitioner's name and registration number<sup>19</sup>;
- 70
- 216 (c) the presenting officer:
71
- 101. (i) informs the panel of the background to the case, and the sanction previously imposed<sup>20</sup>;
- 102. (ii) directs the attention of the panel to any relevant evidence, including transcripts of previous hearings, and may adduce evidence and call witnesses<sup>21</sup> in relation to the practitioner's fitness to practise or his failure to comply with any requirement imposed upon him as a condition of registration<sup>22</sup>;
- 72
- 217 (d) the practitioner may present his case and may adduce evidence and call witnesses in support of it<sup>23</sup>;
- 218 (e) the panel receives further evidence and hears any further submissions from the parties<sup>24</sup> as to whether the fitness to practise of the practitioner is impaired<sup>25</sup> or whether the practitioner has failed to comply with any requirement imposed upon him as a condition of registration<sup>26</sup>;
- 219 (f) the panel considers and announces its finding on the question of whether the fitness to practise of the practitioner is impaired or whether the practitioner has failed to comply with any requirement imposed upon him as a condition of registration, and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>27</sup>;
- 220 (g) the panel may receive further evidence and hear any further submissions from the parties as to its decision whether to make a direction<sup>28</sup>;

- 221 (h) the panel may take into account any written undertakings<sup>29</sup>, including limitations on his practice, entered into by the practitioner:
- 73
103. (i) which it considers to be sufficient to protect patients and protect the public interest<sup>30</sup>; and
104. (ii) where the practitioner expressly agrees that the registrar may disclose details of any such undertakings, save those relating exclusively to the health of the practitioner, to any person by whom the practitioner is employed to provide medical services or with whom he has an arrangement to do so<sup>31</sup>, to any person from whom the practitioner is seeking such employment or such an arrangement<sup>32</sup>, and to any enquirer<sup>33</sup>; and
- 74
- 222 (i) the panel considers and announces its decision as to the direction, if any, to be made or undertakings to be taken into account and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>34</sup>.

1 A 'review hearing' means any hearing at which a fitness to practise panel (see note 3 infra) is to determine whether or not to make a direction under the Medical Act 1983 s 35D(5), (6), (8), (10), (12) (as added) (see PARAS 144-145 ante): General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) Rules Order of Council 2004, SI 2004/2608, r 18.

As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

180 Review hearings

TEXT AND NOTES--If, since the previous hearing a new allegation against the practitioner has been referred to the fitness to practise panel, it must first proceed with that allegation in accordance with SI 2004/2608 r 17(2)(a)-(i) (see PARA 178): r 21A(1) (r 21A added by SI 2009/1913). The fitness to practise panel must thereafter proceed in accordance with SI 2004/2608 r 22 except that, when determining whether the fitness to practise of the practitioner is impaired and what direction, if any, to impose under the Medical Act 1983 s 35D(5), (6), (8) or (12), it must additionally have regard to its findings in relation to the new allegation: SI 2004/2608 r 21A(2).

TEXT AND NOTES 17, 19--References to registration number are now to GMC reference number: SI 2004/2608 r 22(b)(i), (ii) (amended by SI 2009/1913).

TEXT AND NOTES 29, 30--For 'the fitness to practice panel may take into account any written undertakings, including limitations on his practice, entered into by the practitioner' read 'the fitness to practise panel may agree as an alternative to imposing any sanction any written undertakings, including any limitations on his practice, offered by the practitioner': SI 2004/2608 r 22(h)(i) (amended by SI 2009/1913). Where undertakings have been agreed under SI 2004/2608 r 22(h), the registrar may carry out any investigations, which may include, but are not limited to, requesting the provision of reports or directing an assessment be carried out in accordance with Sch 1 (see PARA 185) or 2 (see PARA 164), that are, in the registrar's opinion, appropriate to the consideration of whether the practitioner has complied with any undertakings in place or the practitioner's fitness to practise: see r 37A (added by SI 2009/1913).

INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/ (B) Procedure before a Fitness to Practise Panel/181. Applications for restoration to the register.

181. Applications for restoration to the register.

Upon receipt of an application for the restoration of a name to the register<sup>1</sup>, the registrar<sup>2</sup> may make such investigations, and obtain such information, documents or reports as he considers appropriate<sup>3</sup>, and may direct the applicant to undergo an assessment of his performance or health<sup>4</sup>. No later than 28 days before the hearing before a fitness to practise panel<sup>5</sup> to consider his application, the registrar must serve on the applicant notice<sup>6</sup> of the hearing: (1) stating the specified matters<sup>7</sup>; (2) requesting the applicant to notify the registrar, within 14 days of the date of the notice, whether he wishes to attend the hearing<sup>8</sup>; (3) inviting the applicant, if he chooses not to attend the hearing, to make written<sup>9</sup> representations to be received by the registrar no later than 14 days before the hearing<sup>10</sup>; (4) where the applicant has made a previous unsuccessful application, informing him of the panel's power<sup>11</sup> to suspend indefinitely his right to make further applications for restoration<sup>12</sup>; and (5) where the applicant has made a previous unsuccessful application and chooses not to attend the hearing, inviting him to make written representations on the issue of indefinite suspension of his right to make further applications, to be received by the registrar no later than 14 days before the hearing<sup>13</sup>.

The fitness to practise panel must consider an application in accordance with the following procedure<sup>14</sup>. The order of proceedings at a hearing to determine an application is as follows:

- 223 (a) the panel hears and considers any preliminary legal arguments<sup>15</sup>;
- 224 (b) the chairman of the panel:
75
- 105. (i) where the applicant is present, requires the applicant to confirm his name and registration number<sup>16</sup>; or
- 106. (ii) otherwise, requires the presenting officer<sup>17</sup> to confirm the applicant's name and registration number<sup>18</sup>;
- 225 (c) the presenting officer:
77
- 107. (i) addresses the panel as to the background to the case and the circumstances in which the applicant's name was erased from the register<sup>19</sup>;
- 108. (ii) directs the attention of the panel to any relevant evidence, including transcripts of previous hearings, and may adduce evidence and call witnesses<sup>20</sup> in relation to the practitioner's<sup>21</sup> fitness to practise<sup>22</sup>;
78
- 226 (d) the applicant may address the panel and adduce evidence and call witnesses in relation to any relevant matter, including his suitability for restoration to the register<sup>23</sup>;
- 227 (e) the panel may receive further evidence and hear any further submissions from the parties<sup>24</sup> as to its decision whether to grant or refuse the application<sup>25</sup>;
- 228 (f) the panel then considers and announces whether to grant or refuse the application, and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>26</sup>;
- 229 (g) before reaching a decision under head (f) above, the panel may adjourn and give such directions as it sees fit, including that the applicant should undergo an assessment of his performance or health<sup>27</sup>;

- 230 (h) where the panel so adjourns it must, before reaching a decision as to whether the applicant should be restored to the register<sup>28</sup>;
- 79
109. (i) consider any assessment reports<sup>29</sup> produced further to such a direction, together with any other relevant evidence and reports<sup>30</sup>; and
110. (ii) invite further representations and evidence from the parties<sup>31</sup>;
111. and
- 80
- 231 (i) before deciding whether or not to make a direction to suspend indefinitely the applicant's right to make further applications for restoration<sup>32</sup>, the panel:
- 81
112. (i) considers any representations made and evidence received<sup>33</sup>; and
113. (ii) where the applicant is present, invites further representations and evidence from him specifically upon this issue<sup>34</sup>.

183. Rules.

The General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> may make rules<sup>2</sup>: (1) authorising the giving of directions by any of the investigation committee<sup>3</sup>, a fitness to practise panel<sup>4</sup>, or such other persons as may be specified in the rules<sup>5</sup>, requiring an assessment of the standard of a registered person's professional performance to be carried out<sup>6</sup>; (2) specifying circumstances in which such an assessment may be carried out otherwise than in accordance with a direction<sup>7</sup>.

Such rules may authorise a fitness to practise panel to make directions<sup>8</sup> for the suspension of, or the attachment of conditions to, a person's registration where the person fails to comply with reasonable requirements imposed by an assessment team<sup>9</sup> for the purposes of carrying out an assessment of the standard of his professional performance<sup>10</sup>. The rules may also provide for the investigation committee to give a direction to the registrar<sup>11</sup> that a case be referred, or for the registrar to refer a case, to a fitness to practise panel for the purposes of that panel making such a direction<sup>12</sup>. INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/(C) Professional Performance Assessments/185. Proceedings and procedures of assessment teams.

185. Proceedings and procedures of assessment teams.

An assessment team<sup>1</sup> must adopt such procedures as appear to it to be necessary, having regard to the nature of the practitioner's employment, in order to assess the standard of the practitioner's<sup>2</sup> professional performance<sup>3</sup>. An assessment team may seek advice or information from any person who might, in the opinion of the team, assist it in carrying out the assessment<sup>4</sup>. An assessment team must disclose to the practitioner any written information or opinion received by it which in its opinion may influence its assessment of the standard of his professional performance, and must afford him a reasonable opportunity to respond<sup>5</sup>. An assessment team must produce a report on the standard of the practitioner's professional performance which must express an opinion as to whether the practitioner is fit to practise either generally or on a limited basis<sup>6</sup>, and any recommendations as to the management of the case<sup>7</sup>.

For the purposes of carrying out an assessment, an assessment team may require the production of, inspect and take copies of any records<sup>8</sup>, in whatever form they are held, arising out of or relating to the person's professional practice<sup>9</sup>, and where such records are kept otherwise than in legible form, may require a copy of them to be given to the team in legible form<sup>10</sup>. A person who, without reasonable excuse, obstructs an assessment team in the execution of such powers with regard to records is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>11</sup>.

A justice of the peace may issue a warrant if satisfied by the evidence on oath of at least two members of an assessment team that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that the team will require a warrant for the purposes of carrying out an assessment<sup>12</sup>. Such a warrant must authorise one or more members of the assessment team (who must, if so required, produce documents identifying themselves) together with any constables<sup>13</sup> to enter any building specified in the warrant, but not a dwelling-house, using such force as is reasonably necessary for the purpose<sup>14</sup>, and to search the premises for the purposes of the exercise of the powers with regard to records<sup>15</sup>. A person who intentionally obstructs the exercise of any rights conferred by such a warrant is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>16</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'practitioner' see para 160 note 4 ante.

7 Ibid Sch 1 para 3(4)(b).

8 Nothing in this provision requires or permits any disclosure of information which is prohibited by or under any other enactment; but where information is held in a form in which the prohibition operates by reason of the fact that the information is capable of identifying an individual, an assessment team may require that the information be put into a form in which it is not capable of identifying an individual: Medical Act 1983 s 43, Sch 4 para 5A(8) (s 43, Sch 4 substituted by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 13, 14). In determining whether a disclosure is not prohibited, by reason of being a disclosure of personal data which is exempt from the non-disclosure provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998 by virtue of s 35(1) (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 554), it must be assumed that the disclosure is required under the Medical Act 1983 Sch 4 para 5A (as substituted): Sch 4 para 5A(8A) (as so substituted). 10 Ibid Sch 4 para 5A(6)(b) (as substituted: see note 8 supra).

At the date at which this volume states the law, the standard scale is as follows: level 1, £200; level 2, £500; level 3, £1,000; level 4, £2,500; level 5, £5,000: Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37(2) (substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(1)). As to the determination of the amount of the fine actually imposed, as distinct from the level on the standard scale which it may not exceed, see the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 128 (prospectively repealed); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 144.

(D) INTERIM ORDERS

186. Preliminary matters.

Where an allegation<sup>1</sup> has been referred to an interim orders panel<sup>2</sup> by the registrar<sup>3</sup> for consideration as to whether to make or review an interim order<sup>4</sup>, the following provisions apply<sup>5</sup>. Where an interim order has previously been made in respect of a practitioner<sup>6</sup>, the registrar must refer the case to a panel for the purposes of review<sup>7</sup>, or may refer the case to a panel where new information is received by the General Medical Council<sup>8</sup> which, in his opinion, suggests that the interim order imposed on the practitioner's registration ought to be reviewed<sup>9</sup>. Prior to the initial or any review hearing relating to an interim order, the registrar must serve on the practitioner, in such time before the hearing as is reasonable in the circumstances of the case<sup>10</sup>, a notice of hearing<sup>11</sup>, a copy of any written evidence obtained by the Council which is relevant to the question of whether or not an interim order should be made or reviewed<sup>12</sup> and, in relation to a review hearing, a copy of the order to be reviewed<sup>13</sup>. The notice of hearing must: (1) state the specified matters<sup>14</sup>; (2) inform the practitioner of the power of the interim orders panel to proceed in his absence<sup>15</sup>; (3) set out briefly the reasons why it is necessary to make or review an interim order<sup>16</sup>; (4) inform the practitioner of the panel's powers of disposal<sup>17</sup>; (5) request the practitioner to notify the registrar as soon as possible whether he intends to attend the hearing<sup>18</sup>; and (6) invite the practitioner, if he chooses not to attend the hearing, to submit any written<sup>19</sup> representations, within such period as is reasonable in the circumstances and as is specified in the notice, to the registrar<sup>20</sup>.

138-189 Fitness to practise

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). INVESTIGATION AND DETERMINATION OF ALLEGATIONS/ (D) Interim Orders/187. Procedure at an interim orders hearing.

187. Procedure at an interim orders hearing.

At the hearing, the interim orders panel<sup>1</sup> may receive any evidence<sup>2</sup> which appears to it to be fair and relevant to its consideration of the application<sup>3</sup>. However, no person may give oral evidence at the hearing unless the panel considers such evidence is desirable to enable it to discharge its functions<sup>4</sup>. The panel may also, at any stage in the proceedings with the consent of the practitioner<sup>5</sup> or where, after consultation with the legal assessor<sup>6</sup>, it is satisfied that to do so would be desirable to enable it to discharge its functions<sup>7</sup>, allow a party<sup>8</sup> to produce at the hearing any written evidence, notwithstanding that a copy has not been provided to the other party before the hearing or that its author is not being called as a witness<sup>9</sup>.

At an interim orders hearing:

- 242 (1) the panel hears and considers any preliminary legal arguments<sup>10</sup>;
- 243 (2) the chairman of the panel announces that the hearing has commenced and:
85
- 116. (a) where the practitioner is present, requires the practitioner to confirm his name and registration number<sup>11</sup>; or
- 117. (b) otherwise, requires the presenting officer<sup>12</sup> to confirm the practitioner's name and registration number<sup>13</sup>;
- 86
- 244 (3) the presenting officer addresses the panel regarding whether it is necessary to make or review an interim order<sup>14</sup> in respect of the practitioner and may<sup>15</sup> adduce evidence in this regard<sup>16</sup>;
- 245 (4) the practitioner may present his case and may<sup>17</sup> adduce evidence in support of it<sup>18</sup>;
- 246 (5) the parties and members of the panel may put questions to any witness<sup>19</sup>;
- 247 (6) where the practitioner gives oral evidence, the presenting officer and members of the panel may put questions to him<sup>20</sup>; and
- 248 (7) the panel announces its decision, and gives its reasons for that decision<sup>21</sup>.

The panel may vary this order of proceedings where it is in the interests of justice to do so<sup>22</sup>. Where an interim order is being reviewed by a panel<sup>23</sup> and the hearing is, or is likely to be, the last such hearing before the expiry of the order<sup>24</sup>, the panel may, after making its determination, notify the registrar<sup>25</sup> that an application should be made to the relevant court<sup>26</sup> for the interim order to be extended<sup>27</sup>.

'The relevant court': (1) in the case of a person whose address in the register is (or if he were registered would be) in Scotland, means the Court of Session (s 40(5)(a) (as so substituted)); (2) in the case of a person whose address in the register is (or if he were registered would be) in Northern Ireland, means the High Court of Justice in Northern Ireland (s 40(5)(b) (as so substituted)); and (3) in the case of any other person (including one appealing against a decision falling within head (3) in the text), means the High Court of Justice in England and Wales (s 40(5)(c) (as so substituted)). As to the registration of medical practitioners see PARA 99 et seq ante. As to the High Court of Justice in England and Wales see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 602 et seq.

As to appeals generally see CPR Pt 52. An appeal is by way of re-hearing: Practice Direction--Appeals PD52 para 22.3.(1)(d), (2). The court's jurisdiction is appellate, not supervisory. The appeal is by way of a re-hearing in which the court is fully entitled to substitute its own decision for that of the disciplinary committee. The court will accord an appropriate measure of respect to the judgment of the disciplinary committee but will not defer to that judgment more than is warranted by the circumstances: Ghosh v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 29, [2001] 1 WLR 1915; and see also Carruthers v General Medical Council [2003] UKPC 42, 75 BMLR 59. The court will be slow to interfere in the exercise by the disciplinary committee of its power to impose a penalty and it will need a strong case to justify setting aside such decision: Hossain v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 40, 65 BMLR 1; and see also Garfoot v General Medical Council [2002] UKPC 35, [2002] All ER (D) 156 (Jun). Procedural defects before the committee may enable the court to reconsider the issue of penalty on a broader basis than it would otherwise have been able to: Bevan v General Medical Council [2005] All ER (D) 74 (Feb). As examples of cases in which the court overturned the committee's decision see: Bijl v General Medical Council [2001] UKPC 42, 65 BMLR 10; Cullen v General Medical Council [2005] EWHC 353 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 209 (Mar); Bevan v General Medical Council supra. The only circumstances in which an appeal court will reverse a view of the facts taken by a disciplinary committee is where it would appear that the body had misread the evidence to such an extent that it was not entitled to make a finding in the state of the evidence presented before it: Libman v General Medical Council [1972] AC 217, [1972] 1 All ER 798, PC; Selvanathan v General Medical Council 59 BMLR 95, PC. A committee must give reasons for preferring the evidence of one expert witness to that of another: Cullen v General Medical Council supra.

189. Erasure for fraud or error.

If the General Medical Council<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that any entry in the register<sup>2</sup> has been fraudulently procured or incorrectly made, it may direct that the entry be erased from the register<sup>3</sup>. Where the Council gives such a direction for the erasure of a person's name, the registrar<sup>4</sup> must forthwith serve on that person a notification of the direction and of his right to appeal against the decision<sup>5</sup>.

The Council must make rules with respect to the discharge by it of these functions<sup>6</sup>. If the Council delegates these functions to a fitness to practise panel<sup>7</sup> or other committee, rules must make provision with respect to the discharge of those functions by the panel or committee<sup>8</sup>.

1. Constitution, status and members

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). The OHPA is to have functions in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: s 98(2) (not yet in force).

The OHPA is not to be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown or as enjoying any status, immunity or privilege of the Crown: Sch 6 para 2(1). The OHPA's property is not to be regarded as property of, or property held on behalf of, the Crown: Sch 6 para 2(2).

The OHPA may do anything which appears to it to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of, or in connection with, the exercise of its functions: Sch 6 para 3(1). This includes, in particular, the power to acquire and dispose of land and other property, and enter into contracts: Sch 6 para 3(2).

The OHPA is to consist of the following members (1) a chair appointed by the Privy Council; (2) non-executive members appointed by the Privy Council; and (3) executive members appointed in accordance with Sch 6 para 8 below: Sch 6 para 4. No person may be appointed as a member unless the person satisfies such requirements as may be prescribed in regulations made by the Privy Council: Sch 6 para 5. A person may be appointed as the chair only if the person (as well as satisfying any requirements prescribed under Sch 6 para 5 (a) has a 10 year general qualification within the meaning of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71; (b) is an advocate or solicitor in Scotland of at least 10 years' standing; or (c) is a member of the Bar of Northern Ireland, or a solicitor of the Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland, of at least 10 years' standing: Sch 6 para 6. The Privy Council must by regulations make provision about the number of non-executive and executive members: Sch 6 para 7(1). the regulations must provide for there to be at least one but no more than three non-executive members, and at least one but no more than three executive members: Sch 6 para 7(2). The regulations may not provide for the number of executive members to be greater than the number of non-executive members: Sch 6 para 7(3). The first executive members are to be appointed by the Privy Council: Sch 6 para 8(1). Subsequent appointments of executive members are to be made by the OHPA: Sch 6 para 8(2). The executive members must be employees of the OHPA: Sch 6 para 8(3). This requirement is to be taken to be complied with in relation to the first executive members appointed under Sch 6 para 8(1) if they are employed by the OHPA as soon as practicable after being appointed: Sch 6 para 8(4). Each of the members mentioned in heads (1)-(3) above holds and vacates office in accordance with the terms of the member's appointment, and may be removed from office by the Privy Council on the grounds of incapacity or misbehaviour: Sch 6 para 9. The terms of a member's appointment are to be determined by the person making the appointment, save that the terms of appointment of an executive member appointed by the OHPA are to be determined by the Privy Council in so far as the terms relate to tenure of office or suspension from office: Sch 6 para 10.

The OHPA may regulate its own procedure, and the validity of proceedings of the OHPA is not affected by any vacancy in its membership, by any defect in the appointment of a member, or by any person acting as a member even though ineligible for appointment when purportedly appointed, or acting as a member after having ceased to be a member: Sch 6 paras 11, 12.

For further provision as to members' interests, remuneration and allowances, see Sch 6 paras 13, 14. Provision is also made as to employees (Sch 6 para 17), payments and loans to the OHPA (Sch 6 para 18), accounts (Sch 6 para 19), reports (Sch 6 para 20), and seal and evidence (Sch 6 paras 21, 22).

2. Duty to inform the public and to consult

For the purpose of ensuring that members of the public are informed about the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('OHPA') and the exercise by it of its functions, the OHPA must publish or provide in such manner as it thinks fit information about the OHPA and the exercise of its functions: Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 107(1). Nothing in s 107(1) authorises or requires the publication or provision of information if the publication or provision of that information is prohibited by any enactment, or would constitute or be punishable as a contempt of court: s 107(4).

The OHPA must from time to time seek the views of members of the public, bodies which appear to the OHPA to represent the interests of patients, the General Medical Council and the General Optical Council, and any other bodies which appear to the OHPA to represent the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 or the Opticians Act 1989 on matters relevant to the exercise by it of its functions: s 108.

138-189 Fitness to practise

There is to be a body corporate known as the Office of the Health Professions Adjudicator ('the OHPA'): Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 98(1). As from a day to be appointed the OHPA is to have power to adjudicate in fitness to practice cases in relation to the professions regulated by the Medical Act 1983 and the Opticians Act 1989: see s 98(2) (not yet in force). As to the OHPA generally, see further PARA 189A.

(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE

(i) Use of Titles and Descriptions

190. Unlawful use of titles and descriptions.

The law does not prohibit any person from practising medicine or surgery, but the legislature has declared that it is expedient that persons requiring medical aid should be enabled to distinguish the qualified from the unqualified practitioner<sup>1</sup>. It is, therefore, provided that any person who wilfully and falsely<sup>2</sup> pretends to be or takes or uses the name or title of physician, doctor of medicine, licentiate in medicine and surgery, bachelor of medicine, surgeon, general practitioner or apothecary<sup>3</sup>, or any name, title, addition or description implying that he is registered under any provision of the Medical Act 1983<sup>4</sup> or that he is recognised by law as a physician or surgeon or licentiate in medicine and surgery or a practitioner in medicine or an apothecary, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>5</sup>.

1 See the Medical Act (1858) preamble (repealed).

2 As to what constitutes a wilful and false pretending to be a qualified practitioner see the cases cited in PARA 191 note 3 post. The Trade Descriptions Act 1968 s 14(1), which prohibits the making of false or misleading statements as to services, may apply to professional men: see R v Breeze [1973] 2 All ER 1141, [1973] 1 WLR 994, CA; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 495.

4 As to the registration of medical practitioners see PARA 99 et seq ante.

5 Medical Act 1983 s 49(1) (amended by the Fines and Penalties (Northern Ireland) Order 1984, SI 1984/703, art 19(2), Sch 7). The penalty is a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: see the Medical Act 1983 s 49(1) (as so amended). Proceedings may be instituted either by the General Medical Council or by a private person: Clarke v M'Guire [1909] 2 IR 681 (decided on corresponding provisions of earlier enactments). As to the standard scale see PARA 185 note 11 ante. As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante.

The Medical Act 1983 s 49(1) (as amended) does not apply to anything done by a person who is a national of any EEA state for the purposes of or in connection with the lawful rendering of medical services by him without first being registered under the Act if he has previously complied with the requirements of s 18(2) (see PARA 100 ante) or subsequently complies with its requirements as modified in respect of urgent cases by s 18(3) (see PARA 100 ante): s 49(2) (amended by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 7, Sch 2 para 12). For the meanings of 'national', in relation to an EEA state, and 'EEA state' see PARA 3 note 2 ante.

191. What constitutes an offence.

The provision prohibiting the use of certain titles and descriptions<sup>1</sup> is intended to guard the public against being imposed upon by a person pretending to have a qualification when in fact he has none, and applies to a person using a title falsely implying that he is registered or has a title to be registered<sup>2</sup>. No offence is committed, however, unless the defendant acts wilfully and falsely, and it is for the magistrates to decide whether he has done so<sup>3</sup>. A person commits no offence if he honestly believes that he is within his rights in describing himself as he does; but, in deciding whether he has this honest belief, the presence or absence of reasonable grounds for the belief must be taken into consideration<sup>4</sup>.

In Younghusband v Luftig supra, the court reviewed most of the earlier cases on the subject, and those cases must now be considered in the light of that decision. The earlier cases are as follows: Ladd v Gould (1860) 1 LT 325 (description as 'surgeon and mechanical dentist'; justices found the word 'surgeon' was used to show what branch of the business of dentistry the defendant carried on, and the High Court refused to upset this finding of fact); Ellis v Kelly (1860) 6 H & N 222 (defendant, being registered as MRCS and LSA, and having a diploma from a German university which entitled him to practise in Germany, called himself 'Dr Kelly': no offence); Steele v Hamilton (1860) 3 LT 322 (defendant signed certificate 'Botanic Surgeon, Boston, US'; on his door he used a similar description, adding 'not registered in England' and 'anti-registered surgeon': no offence); Andrews v Styrup (1872) 26 LT 704 (druggist with degree bought from an American university used title MD: offence committed); Carpenter v Hamilton (1877) 37 LT 157, DC (defendant displayed diploma with the words 'John Hamilton, Doctor of Medicine of the Metropolitan Medical College of New York': no offence); R v Baker etc, Justices and Clarke (1891) 66 LT 416, 56 JP 406 (defendant being registered as LSA and also a Doctor of an American Medical Institute, used titles 'Dr', 'MD' and 'Physician and Surgeon', and signed certificates, required to be signed by a registered medical practitioner, 'MD, Registered Medical Practitioner': offence committed); Steel v Ormsby (1894) 10 TLR 483, DC (defendant who held a certificate from an American Botanic College of Medicine conferring the degree 'MD (BC)' signed certificates, required to be signed by a registered medical practitioner, 'MD', 'BC' and 'MD London': offence committed); R v Lewis (Stipendiary Magistrate) and Frickhart, R v Lewis (Stipendiary Magistrate) and Bridgwater (1896) 60 JP 392, DC (use of letters 'MD' and 'MD, USA'); Hunter v Clare [1899] 1 QB 635, DC (defendant, registered as LSA, described himself as 'physician and surgeon'; it was held that he was not entitled to do so, but that no offence was committed as he honestly believed he was within his rights); Whitwell v Shakesby (1932) 147 LT 157 (defendant, without degree or licence in medicine or surgery, practised osteopathy and had a plate bearing the words 'Prof A E Shakesby, DO (Lond), Bonesetter, Osteopathic Physician and Surgeon': offence committed); Jutson v Barrow [1936] 1 KB 236, DC (defendant, without any medical degree, used a plate bearing the words 'Captain Barrow, MM, Manipulative Surgeon': offence committed). #### 194. Partnerships.

It is open to medical practitioners to combine in partnership in the same manner as other professions. The general principles governing such arrangements are dealt with elsewhere in this work<sup>1</sup>. Where medical practitioners undertake to provide medical services under the national health service, provision is made for the allocation of patients<sup>2</sup>. It is unlawful to sell the goodwill of the medical practice of a person who has at any time provided medical services under the national health service<sup>3</sup>, and there are extensive provisions designed to prevent avoidance of this provision<sup>4</sup>. The goodwill is not extinguished by those provisions and there is nothing in them to render invalid restrictive covenants aimed at preserving the goodwill of a partnership<sup>5</sup>.

1 See generally the Partnership Act 1890; and PARTNERSHIP. The principles there set out will be applied to determine such questions as whether or not a medical partnership exists (see Pratt v Strick (Inspector of Taxes) (1932) 17 TC 459; Rawlinson v Clarke (1846) 15 M & W 292, Ex Ch), or may properly be dissolved (see Snow v Milford (1868) 18 LT 142; Anon (1856) 2 K & J 441).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(i) Use of Titles and Descriptions/195. Restrictive covenants.

195. Restrictive covenants.

The enforceability of restrictive covenants in cases concerned with medical practice is governed by the principles concerning the enforceability of such covenants generally which are discussed elsewhere in this work<sup>1</sup>. In particular the areas of practice and the categories of medical practice prohibited by the terms of the covenant must not be wider than is reasonably justified for the protection of the practice for which protection is sought<sup>2</sup>. There is nothing in the National Health Service Act 1977 which would render invalid an otherwise enforceable covenant for the protection of the goodwill of a practice which takes national health service patients<sup>3</sup>. Whether a particular act constitutes a breach of such a covenant depends upon the proper construction of the exact terms in which the covenant is framed<sup>4</sup>.

1 See COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARA 377 et seq. Such covenants are to be found in agreements for the sale of a medical practice, in medical partnerships and in employment agreements concerned with medical practice.

2 See Davis v Mason (1793) 5 Term Rep 118; Atkyns v Kinnier (1850) 4 Exch 776; Palmer v Mallet (1887) 36 ChD 411, CA; Everton v Longmore (1899) 15 TLR 356, CA; Eastes v Russ [1914] 1 Ch 468, CA (lifelong restriction too long); Routh v Jones [1947] 1 All ER 758, CA; Jenkins v Reid [1948] 1 All ER 471; Whitehill v Bradford [1952] Ch 236, [1952] 1 All ER 115, CA (21 year period upheld); Macfarlane v Kent [1965] 2 All ER 376, [1965] 1 WLR 1019; Lyne-Pirkis v Jones [1969] 3 All ER 738, [1969] 1 WLR 1293, CA; Peyton v Mindham [1971] 3 All ER 1215, [1972] 1 WLR 8. The following covenants have been held to be wider than was reasonably necessary to protect a general medical practice: a covenant restraining a medical assistant from practising in any department of medicine, surgery or midwifery and from practising or filling any professional appointment, whether whole-time or otherwise, within ten miles from a named town (Routh v Jones supra); a covenant restraining a partner from practice as a medical practitioner within a reasonable area (Lyne-Pirkis v Jones supra (this covenant prohibited practice as a consultant, which was unreasonable)); a covenant restraining a partner from 'professionally advising, attending, prescribing for or treating' patients of the partnerships resident within five miles of a practice in a named town for a five year period (Peyton v Mindham supra (this covenant also unreasonably prohibited practice as a consultant)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/A. CIVIL LIABILITY/196. Negligence and duties owed to patients.

(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities

A. CIVIL LIABILITY

196. Negligence and duties owed to patients.

A person<sup>1</sup> who holds himself out as ready to give medical<sup>2</sup> advice or treatment impliedly undertakes that he is possessed of skill and knowledge for the purpose. Whether or not he is a registered medical practitioner<sup>3</sup>, such a person who is consulted by a patient owes him a duty to exercise reasonable care and skill in diagnosing, advising and treating the patient<sup>4</sup>. The duty is owed to the patient alone<sup>5</sup>. A breach of this duty causing personal injury will support a claim for negligence by the patient<sup>6</sup>. A practitioner may also be liable for financial loss where he is aware that the patient intends to rely on his advice for a particular purpose<sup>7</sup>.

No contractual relationship between the person undertaking the treatment and the patient is necessary to support a claim for negligence; nor is it necessary that the services should be rendered for reward<sup>8</sup>. If a contractual relationship exists, the liability at common law to exercise reasonable care exists independently of the liability expressed or implied in the contract<sup>9</sup>.

1 There is no concept of team negligence whereby a team standard of care must be owed by every member. The duty of care of each member is that of a reasonable and careful practitioner: see Wilsher v Essex Area Health Authority [1987] QB 730, [1986] 3 All ER 801, CA; revsd on different grounds [1988] AC 1074, [1988] 1 All ER 871, HL. See also Simms v Birmingham Health Authority 58 BMLR 66.

2 The word 'medical' is used here in its widest sense. The general principles set out in the text and in PARAS 197-205 post are applicable to all health care professionals.

3 For cases as to unregistered practitioners see Ruddock v Lowe (1865) 4 F & F 519; Jones v Fay (1865) 4 F & F 525; Brogan v Bennett [1955] IR 119.

As to post mortems see PARAS 225, 246, 255, 266 post.

6 The general principles of the law of negligence apply. The claimant must show that he was owed a duty of care by the practitioner, that the duty was breached and that he suffered damage as a result of that breach. The confidence induced by undertaking any service for another is a sufficient legal consideration to create a duty in the performance of it: Coggs v Bernard (1703) 2 Ld Raym 909 at 919. If a contractual relationship does in fact exist, the rights and liabilities of the parties will be governed by the terms of the contract (but see the text and note 9 infra). In the absence of any express terms dealing with the matter, the same duties and liabilities may be said to be implied into the contract as exist where no contract is made: see Harmer v Cornelius (1858) 5 CBNS 236; Shiells v Blackburne (1789) 1 Hy BI 158. Where a person employs a surgeon to attend someone else, if the patient suffers injury from the surgeon's negligence, he would have a claim in negligence for any damage he suffered, and the person employing the surgeon would have a claim in contract for any damage he suffered resulting from the breach of contract (see the cases cited supra).

9 See Thake v Maurice [1986] QB 644, [1986] 1 All ER 497, CA (there is no breach of contract if there is a failure to render a vasectomy patient absolutely sterile if reasonable skill and care is performed in the operation, but a failure to give the usual warning of a slight risk that the patient might become fertile amounts to a breach of the duty of care owed); Eyre v Measday [1986] 1 All ER 488, CA (no warranty as to success of sterilisation operation); Batty v Metropolitan Property Realisations Ltd [1978] QB 554, [1978] 2 All ER 445, CA, applying Esso Petroleum Co Ltd v Mardon [1976] QB 801, [1976] 2 All ER 5, CA. ### 196 Negligence and duties owed to patients

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/A. CIVIL LIABILITY/197. Degree of skill and care required.

197. Degree of skill and care required.

A medical practitioner is required to meet the standard of the ordinary skilled practitioner exercising and professing to have the special skill in question<sup>1</sup>. Thus a specialist has to exercise the skill of an ordinary competent member of his speciality<sup>2</sup>, and a practitioner of alternative medicine will be judged against the standards of similar practitioners<sup>3</sup>. An error of judgment will not amount to negligence unless it is one that would not have been made by a reasonably competent practitioner with the standard and type of skill of the defendant, acting with ordinary care<sup>4</sup>. The conduct is to be judged against the state of professional knowledge at the time of the matter concerned<sup>5</sup>. Where there are differing and well established professional schools of thought on an issue, a practitioner will not be regarded as negligent in following one rather than another even if the outcome suggests that the wrong choice was made<sup>6</sup>. However, in certain circumstances treatment will be held to be negligent if it cannot be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the court that the body of opinion relied on is reasonable or responsible<sup>7</sup>.

Deviation from normal practice is not necessarily evidence of negligence<sup>8</sup>. To establish liability on that basis it must be shown: (1) that there is a usual and normal practice; (2) that the defendant has not adopted it; and (3) that the course in fact adopted is one no professional man of ordinary skill would have taken had he been acting with ordinary care<sup>9</sup>.

It may be a defence for a practitioner that he acted on the specific instructions of a consultant who had taken over responsibility for the case<sup>10</sup>. There is no concept of team negligence whereby a team standard of care would be owed by every member; the duty of care of each member is that of a reasonable and careful practitioner of his grade or level of experience<sup>11</sup>. Inexperience is no defence, an inexperienced team member being able to seek help from an experienced member<sup>12</sup>.

1 'The test is the standard of the ordinary skilled man exercising and professing to have that special skill. A man need not possess the highest expert skill at the risk of being found negligent. It is well established law that it is sufficient if he exercises the ordinary skill of an ordinary competent man exercising that particular art': Bolam v Friern Hospital Management Committee [1957] 2 All ER 118 at 121, [1957] 1 WLR 582 at 586 per McNair J. Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/A. CIVIL LIABILITY/198. Patient's consent to treatment or operation.

198. Patient's consent to treatment or operation.

A medical practitioner who examines a person against his will and without statutory authority to do so, and a surgeon who performs an operation or part of an operation without his patient's express or implied consent, are each liable in trespass<sup>1</sup>. However, as an exception to this rule, in the case of an otherwise competent patient rendered unable to consent (for example, because he is unconscious), a medical practitioner has a duty to preserve the life or health of his patient including operating where necessary<sup>2</sup>. A patient's consent is real and consequently a defence to a claim for trespass if he has been informed in broad terms of the nature of the procedure intended<sup>3</sup>.

Every competent adult has the right to make decisions about whether to undergo medical treatment<sup>4</sup>. In order to exercise this right the patient must be in possession of sufficient information to enable a decision to be made and it is the duty of a medical practitioner to provide the patient with that information<sup>5</sup>. The extent of the information to be given is that which the profession considers appropriate in the case in question<sup>6</sup>. If the patient having been so informed would not have consented to the treatment<sup>7</sup>, the practitioner will be held to be negligent<sup>8</sup> and there appears to be no cause of action in trespass to the person.

1 In the majority of cases there is doubtless an implied consent to do what the surgeon, without negligence, reasonably considers necessary or desirable, limited to emergency treatment within the scope of the surgery. This consent would be negated by express instructions not to do certain things, but if a surgeon found that it was necessary to do those things and did them against instructions it is difficult to see, apart from some special circumstances, what damage the patient would have suffered: see Beatty v Cullingworth (1896) 60 JP 740; Slater v Baker (1767) 2 Wils 359; Marshall v Curry [1933] 3 DLR 260, 60 CCC 136 (Nova Scotia); Male v Hopmans [1967] 2 OR 457, 64 DLR (2d) 105, Ont CA. 3 Chatterton v Gerson [1981] QB 432, [1981] 1 All ER 257.

4 A mentally competent patient has an absolute right to refuse to consent to medical treatment for any reason, rational or irrational, or for no reason at all, even where that decision may lead to his or her own death. In this context, irrationality connotes a decision which is so outrageous in its defiance of logic, or of accepted moral standards, that no sensible person, who had applied his mind to the question to be decided, could have arrived at it: Re MB (An Adult: Medical Treatment) (1997) 38 BMLR 175, [1997] 2 FCR 541, CA. See also Re AK (Medical Treatment: Consent) [2001] 1 FLR 129, [2001] 2 FCR 35. Treatment may be given to a patient who refuses treatment if the circumstances change such that the refusal can no longer be said to cover the new circumstances: Re T (Adult: Refusal of Medical Treatment) [1992] 4 All ER 649, 9 BMLR 46, CA. As to mental competence see PARA 199 post. As to the treatment of mentally incompetent patients see PARA 200 post. As to the withdrawal of life prolonging treatment see PARA 202 post.

5 'If there is a significant risk which would affect the judgment of a reasonable patient, then in the normal course it is the responsibility of a doctor to inform the patient of that significant risk, if the information is needed so that the patient can determine for him or herself as to what course he or she should adopt': Pearce v

United Bristol Healthcare NHS Trust (1998) 48 BMLR 118 at 124, CA, per Lord Woolf MR. See also Sidaway v Board of Governors of the Bethlem Royal Hospital and the Maudsley Hospital [1985] AC 871, [1985] 1 All ER 643, HL. The significance of the risk relates to the potential severity of the consequences of that risk not only to the likelihood of it occurring: see eg Chester v Afshar [2004] UKHL 41, [2005] 1 AC 134, [2004] 4 All ER 587 (in which the likelihood of occurrence of the risk was in the region of one to two per cent).

Thus the same considerations apply to the duty to inform patients as apply to the other aspects of a practitioner's duty to his patients: see PARA 197 ante.

7 The patient need not prove, for the purposes of establishing causation, that he would never have had the operation at any time if properly informed, but that, if properly informed, he would not have consented to the operation taking place at that time: Chester v Afshar [2004] UKHL 41, [2005] 1 AC 134, [2004] 4 All ER 587.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/A. CIVIL LIABILITY/199. Mental competence.

199. Mental competence.

There is a presumption of capacity and every person is presumed to have the capacity to consent to or to refuse medical treatment unless and until that presumption is rebutted<sup>1</sup>. The graver the consequences of the decision, the greater the level of competence required to take the decision<sup>2</sup>. Unless the gravity of the illness has affected the patient's capacity, a seriously disabled patient has the same rights as the fit person with regard to consent to treatment<sup>3</sup>. A person lacks capacity if some impairment or disturbance of mental functioning renders him unable to make a decision whether to consent to, or to refuse, treatment<sup>4</sup>. That inability to make a decision will occur when the patient is unable to comprehend and retain the information which is material to the decision, especially as to the likely consequences of having, or not having, the treatment in question; or where the patient is unable to use the information and weigh it in the balance as part of the process of arriving at the decision<sup>5</sup>. Practitioners faced with a refusal of consent must consider whether, at the time when the patient made the decision, he had a capacity to decide which was commensurate with the gravity of the decision which he purported to make<sup>6</sup>. Concern about a patient's competence should be identified as soon as possible and if the capacity of the patient is seriously in doubt it should be assessed as a matter of priority<sup>7</sup>. In the case of a mentally competent pregnant woman who does not consent to treatment, practitioners may not intervene on behalf of the unborn child even if this puts its life at risk or it is likely to suffer severe handicap as a result, and the court has no jurisdiction to take the interests of the unborn child into account<sup>8</sup>.

A mentally competent patient has an absolute right to refuse to consent to medical treatment for any reason, rational or irrational, or for no reason at all, even where that decision may lead to his or her own death. In this context, irrationality connotes a decision which is so outrageous in its defiance of logic, or of accepted moral standards, that no sensible person, who had applied his mind to the question to be decided, could have arrived at it: Re MB (An Adult: Medical Treatment) supra. 4 Re MB (An Adult: Medical Treatment) 38 BMLR 175, [1997] 2 FCR 541, CA. Temporary factors such as confusion, shock, fatigue, pain or drugs may completely erode capacity but practitioners concerned must be satisfied that such factors are operating to such a degree that the ability to decide is absent. Another such influence may be panic induced by fear. Again, careful scrutiny of the evidence is necessary because fear of an operation may be a rational reason for refusal to undergo it. Fear may also, however, paralyse the will and thus destroy the capacity to make a decision: Re MB (An Adult: Medical Treatment) supra. See also Re T (Adult: Refusal of Medical Treatment) [1992] 4 All ER 649, 9 BMLR 46, CA; Re L (Patient: Non-consensual Treatment) [1997] 1 FCR 609, [1997] 2 FLR 837 (needle phobia rendering patient incompetent).

6 Re T (Adult: Refusal of Medical Treatment) [1992] 4 All ER 649, 9 BMLR 46, CA. See also Re T (Adult: Refusal of Medical Treatment) supra. If the patient is competent and refuses consent to the treatment, the advice given to the patient should be recorded. Hospital authorities should seek unequivocal assurances from the patient (to be recorded in writing) that the refusal represents an informed decision, ie that he understands the nature of and reasons for the proposed treatment, and the risks and likely prognosis involved in the decision to refuse or accept it; if the patient is unwilling to sign a written indication of this refusal, this too should be noted in writing: St George's Healthcare NHS Trust v S, R v Collins, ex p S [1998] 3 All ER 673, [1998] 2 FCR 685, CA.

200. Treatment of mentally incompetent patients.

A mentally incompetent patient is by definition unable to give consent to medical treatment<sup>1</sup>. In the case of such a patient, it is the duty of a medical practitioner to give such treatment as is in the best interests of the patient<sup>2</sup>. The test to be applied as to whether the treatment is in the best interests of the patient is the same as that for negligence<sup>3</sup>. Best interests are not limited to best medical interests<sup>4</sup>. Where there is a dispute or significant doubt as to whether treatment, or which choice of treatment, would be in the patient's best interests, application should be made to the court for a determination<sup>5</sup>. In administering or carrying out such treatment, it is lawful to use reasonable force or compulsion to do so, the extent of that force or compulsion being a matter to be judged in each individual case by the practitioners concerned<sup>6</sup>.

A child is not generally considered competent until he reaches the age of 18, until when his interests are in the hands of his parents<sup>1</sup> or of the court<sup>2</sup>. Where it considers it to be in the best interests of the child, a court may override the wishes of a parent<sup>3</sup>, but the wishes of the parent must be taken into account and the administration of treatment against those wishes may amount to an unlawful interference with the rights of the child<sup>4</sup>.

A child who has attained the age of 16 years may consent to any surgical, medical or dental treatment<sup>5</sup> and it is not necessary to obtain any consent for it from his parent or guardian<sup>6</sup>. Such consent cannot be overridden by those with parental responsibility for the child but it can be overridden by the court<sup>7</sup>. A younger child is capable of giving valid consent to treatment if he has achieved sufficient intelligence and understanding to make that decision<sup>8</sup>. Such consent can only be overridden by the court<sup>9</sup>.

202. Withdrawal of life-prolonging treatment.

The principle of the sanctity of human life and the presumption in favour of prolonging it<sup>1</sup> is not irrebuttable<sup>2</sup>, but English law, as it stands at present, places a very heavy burden on those who advocate a course which would lead inevitably to the cessation of a human life<sup>3</sup>. The mere prolongation of the life of a persistent vegetative state patient<sup>4</sup>, with no hope of any recovery, is not necessarily in his best interests; and where those treating him are of the opinion, on all the evidence, that his best interests lie in not artificially prolonging his life, they may discontinue such treatment<sup>5</sup>. In the context of life-prolonging treatment<sup>6</sup>, the touchstone of best interests is intolerability, and so if the treatment is providing some benefit, it should be provided unless the patient's life, if thus prolonged, would from the patient's point of view be intolerable<sup>7</sup>.

An advance declaration by a fully competent patient that treatment should cease on the happening of a particular event is effective and should be followed, provided it is clear that the declaration still represents the wishes of the patient and that at the time of making it the patient was fully aware of the consequences of his wishes<sup>8</sup>. Similarly, an advance declaration by a patient that treatment, which he believes is necessary to protect him from what he sees as acute mental and physical suffering once he has become unable to communicate his wishes, should be given is in principle determinative, at least until such time as the prolongation of the treatment would cease to be of any benefit at all to the patient<sup>9</sup>.

In all cases where the withholding or withdrawal of treatment is contemplated, because of the gravity of the decision, the likely possible variation in the facts of individual cases, the protection of patients and practitioners, and the reassurance of patients' families and the public, application should be made to the court for a declaration that it is proper to do so<sup>10</sup>.

The discontinuance of treatment is not in breach of the patient's right to life under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 2 nor does it amount to torture, inhuman or degrading treatment under art 3: NHS Trust A v M, NHS Trust B v H [2001] 1 All ER 801, [2001] 1 FCR 406. However, if the patient has become reliant on the medical care he is receiving, there will prima facie be a breach of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms art 3 if that care is removed in circumstances where this will subject him to acute mental and physical suffering and lead to him dying in avoidably distressing circumstances: R (on the application of Burke) v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 1879 (Admin), 79 BMLR 126. ### 203. Duty to mentally disordered patients.

A medical practitioner who makes a recommendation for admission into a mental hospital under the Mental Health Act 1983<sup>1</sup> must exercise due care and skill in so acting; he owes a duty of care to the patient<sup>2</sup>. However, no civil or criminal liability will arise concerning acts done in pursuance of the Act unless done in bad faith or without reasonable care<sup>3</sup>. Before any civil proceedings are taken against any person so acting, the leave of the High Court must be obtained<sup>4</sup>.

204. Negligence of other persons.

The liability of a practitioner for the negligence of other persons depends upon the relationship between him and them<sup>1</sup>. The relationship between a practitioner and a nurse in a hospital is not, as a general rule, such that the practitioner is liable for the negligence of the nurse in carrying out, or failing to carry out, his instructions<sup>2</sup>. An employer's duty of care towards his employee may extend to responsibility for injuries to a doctor endeavouring to rescue the employee from imminent peril due to the employer's negligence<sup>3</sup>.

Where practitioners are practising in partnership<sup>4</sup>, the partnership will be liable for any wrongful act or omission of any partner acting in the ordinary course of the business of the partnership or with the authority of his co-partners which causes loss or injury to any person not being a partner or which incurs any penalty<sup>5</sup>, and each partner will also be jointly and severally liable for any such act or omission<sup>6</sup>.

205. Liability of hospital authorities.

A hospital authority<sup>1</sup> must use reasonable skill and care in carrying on the hospital<sup>2</sup> and is liable for the acts or omissions of its permanent staff, whether they are surgeons, physicians or nurses or fall into any other category, in the course of their employment<sup>3</sup>. A hospital authority is in principle liable for its failure to provide sufficient and properly qualified and competent medical staff for a specialist unit in a hospital<sup>4</sup>. In addition it seems that in principle a hospital authority is liable for the acts or omissions of any part-time or visiting consultants and specialists if they are employed as part of its organisation for providing treatment, whether they are in law the employees of the hospital authority or not; for in such circumstances the hospital authority undertakes the obligation of giving to any patients who require it treatment of the kind which the consultants and specialists are employed to provide<sup>5</sup>. Services provided at national health service hospitals are so provided pursuant to statutory obligation<sup>6</sup>, but the principle governing the responsibility of the authority, within the scope of the statutory obligation, is, it seems, the same<sup>7</sup>. A hospital authority is not, however, responsible for the acts or omissions of a consultant or specialist who is selected and employed by the patient<sup>8</sup>.

Contrast, however, Hillyer v Governors of St Bartholomew's Hospital [1909] 2 KB 820, CA, where a voluntary hospital was not liable for the negligence of a consulting surgeon; Collins v Hertfordshire County Council [1947] KB 598, [1947] 1 All ER 633, where a local authority hospital was not liable for the negligence of a part-time consultant surgeon; Gold v Essex County Council supra at 302 and at 243 per Lord Greene MR, and at 310, 313 and at 248, 250 per Goddard LJ; Cassidy v Ministry of Health supra at 351 and at 579 per Somervell LJ. Moreover, in MacDonald v Glasgow Western Hospital Board of Management supra at 235, 238, there is reservation of the question of liability for a visiting consultant who is not part of the hospital's staff.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/B. CRIMINAL LIABILITY/206. Manslaughter.

B. CRIMINAL LIABILITY

206. Manslaughter.

The kind of negligence which brings criminal consequences in its train has frequently been the subject of consideration in the courts<sup>1</sup>, and, in particular, numerous cases have dealt with negligent medical treatment causing or accelerating<sup>2</sup> death<sup>3</sup>. The test to be applied in cases of manslaughter generally, and of so-called 'medical manslaughter' in particular, is one of gross negligence<sup>4</sup>. To establish gross negligence there must have been a breach of a duty of care<sup>5</sup> towards the victim which caused his death<sup>6</sup>. If so, it is for the members of the jury to decide whether, having regard to the risk of death involved, the conduct of the defendant was so bad in all the circumstances as to amount in their judgment to a criminal act or omission<sup>7</sup>.

A corporation<sup>8</sup> is capable of committing the offence of manslaughter<sup>9</sup>. However, the difficulty of establishing the necessary mens rea means that charges are rarely laid<sup>10</sup>. In general, an employer or principal is not criminally liable for an offence committed by his employee or agent, and there is no presumption that a crime committed by an employee or agent in the course of his duties has been authorised by the employer or principal<sup>11</sup>.

3 See CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 100. As to the withdrawal of life-prolonging treatment see PARA 202 ante.

There is, in principle, no distinction in relation to their liability for manslaughter between a qualified or registered medical practitioner and an unqualified or unregistered practitioner; any person who professes to deal with the life or health of others is bound to use competent skill and sufficient attention: R v Spiller (1832) 5 C & P 333. See also R v Webb (1834) 1 Mood & R 405; R v Simpson (1829) 1 Lew CC 172. If a person ventures to prescribe medicines, being ignorant of their use and nature, with fatal results, he will be guilty of manslaughter: see R v Markuss (1864) 4 F & F 356 (herbalist); R v Chamberlain (1867) 10 Cox CC 486 (herbalist); R v Webb supra. A person is guilty of an offence if: (1) he excises, infibulates or otherwise mutilates the whole or any part of a girl's<sup>1</sup> labia majora, labia minora or clitoris<sup>2</sup>; (2) he aids, abets, counsels or procures<sup>3</sup> a girl to excise, infibulate or otherwise mutilate the whole or any part of her own labia majora, labia minora or clitoris<sup>4</sup>; or (3) he aids, abets, counsels or procures a person who is not a United Kingdom national<sup>5</sup> or permanent United Kingdom resident<sup>6</sup> to do a relevant act of female genital mutilation<sup>7</sup> outside the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup>. These provisions extend to any act done outside the United Kingdom by a United Kingdom national or permanent United Kingdom resident<sup>9</sup>, and if an offence under heads (1) to (3) above is committed outside the United Kingdom proceedings may be taken<sup>10</sup>, and the offence may for incidental purposes be treated as having been committed<sup>11</sup>, in any place in England and Wales or Northern Ireland<sup>12</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(ii) Liabilities of Practitioners and Authorities/B. CRIMINAL LIABILITY/209. Medical termination of pregnancy.

209. Medical termination of pregnancy.

No offence is committed under the law relating to abortion<sup>1</sup> when a pregnancy is terminated by a registered medical practitioner or by a nurse carrying out a termination by induction under the instructions of a registered medical practitioner<sup>2</sup>, if two registered medical practitioners are of the opinion<sup>3</sup>, formed in good faith<sup>4</sup> that: (1) the pregnancy has not exceeded its twenty-fourth week and that the continuance of the pregnancy would involve risk, greater than if the pregnancy were terminated, of injury to the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman or any existing children of her family<sup>5</sup>; or (2) the termination is necessary to prevent grave permanent injury to the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman<sup>6</sup>; or (3) the continuance of the pregnancy would involve risk to the life of the pregnant woman, greater than if the pregnancy were terminated<sup>7</sup>; or (4) there is a substantial risk that if the child were born it would suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously handicapped<sup>8</sup>. No person is under any duty, whether by contract or by any statutory or other legal requirement, to participate<sup>9</sup> in any authorised treatment for the termination of pregnancy to which he has a conscientious objection<sup>10</sup>, but this provision does not affect any duty to participate in treatment which is necessary to save the life or to prevent grave permanent injury to the physical or mental health of a pregnant woman<sup>11</sup>.

Generally<sup>12</sup>, any treatment for the termination of pregnancy must be carried out in a hospital vested in the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup>, or in a hospital vested in a primary care trust, a NHS trust or an NHS foundation trust<sup>14</sup>, or in a place approved for these purposes by the Secretary of State<sup>15</sup>.

The Abortion Act 1967 applies, with modifications, to visiting forces<sup>16</sup> and international military headquarters<sup>17</sup>, so that, if the treatment for termination was carried out in a hospital controlled by the proper authorities of any such body<sup>18</sup> and the pregnant woman had at the time of the treatment a relevant association<sup>19</sup> with that body<sup>20</sup> and the treatment was carried out by a registered medical practitioner or a person who at that time was a member of that body<sup>21</sup> appointed as a medical practitioner for that body by the proper authorities of that body<sup>22</sup>, such registered medical practitioners and hospitals are included in the provisions relating to the medical termination of pregnancy<sup>23</sup>, although the provisions as to notification<sup>24</sup> do not apply<sup>25</sup>.

1 'The law relating to abortion' means the Offences against the Person Act 1861 ss 58, 59, and any rule of law relating to the procurement of abortion: Abortion Act 1967 s 6. For the purposes of the law relating to abortion, anything done with intent to procure a woman's miscarriage (or, in the case of a woman carrying more than one foetus, her miscarriage of any foetus) is unlawfully done unless authorised by s 1 and, in the case of a woman carrying more than one foetus, anything done with intent to procure her miscarriage of any foetus is authorised by s 1 if: (1) the ground for termination of the pregnancy specified in s 1(1)(d) (as added) (see head (4) in the text) applies in relation to any foetus and the thing is done for the purpose of procuring the miscarriage of that foetus; or (2) any of the other grounds for termination of the pregnancy specified in s 1 applies: s 5(2) (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 37(5)). No offence under the Infant Life (Preservation) Act 1929 is committed by a registered medical practitioner who terminates a pregnancy in accordance with the Abortion Act 1967: s 5(1) (substituted by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 37(4)). The rebuttable presumption contained in the Infant Life (Preservation) Act 1929 s 1(2) (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 108) of the viability of a foetus at 28 weeks continues to apply in the case of terminations not covered by the Abortion Act 1967. For offences relating to the unlawful procuring of an abortion see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 109, 111.

Until it is born, a foetus is not recognised as a legal person and is therefore unable to apply to the court for an order preventing a lawful abortion: Kelly v Kelly [1997] 2 FLR 828, IH; C v S [1988] QB 135, [1987] 1 All ER 1230, CA. See also Re MB (An Adult: Medical Treatment) 38 BMLR 175, [1997] 2 FCR 541, CA. A husband has no enforceable legal right to stop his wife having, or a registered medical practitioner performing, a legal abortion:

Paton v British Pregnancy Advisory Service Trustees [1979] QB 276, [1978] 2 All ER 987. A father cannot obtain an injunction preventing a lawful abortion on the grounds that there is a threatened criminal act under the Infant Life (Preservation) Act 1929: C v S supra. As to the matters to be taken into account in respect of the termination of the pregnancy of a mentally incompetent woman see D v An NHS Trust (Medical Treatment: Consent: Termination) [2003] EWHC 2793 (Fam), [2004] 1 FLR 1110. As to the treatment of mentally incompetent patients generally see PARA 200 ante.

2 As to what constitutes termination by a registered medical practitioner, and as to the legality of participation in termination by nurses, see Royal College of Nursing of the United Kingdom v Department of Health and Social Security [1981] AC 800, [1981] 1 All ER 545, HL. For the meaning of 'registered medical practitioner' see PARA 4 ante.

3 Any such opinion must be certified either in the prescribed form (see the Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, Sch 1 Pt I Certificate A), or in a certificate signed and dated by both practitioners jointly, or in separate certificates signed and dated by each practitioner, stating the full name and address of each practitioner, the full name and address of the pregnant woman, whether or not each practitioner has seen or examined, or seen and examined, the pregnant woman, and that each practitioner is of the opinion formed in good faith that at least one and the same ground mentioned in the Abortion Act 1967 s 1(1)(a)-(d) (see heads (1)-(4) in the text) is fulfilled: Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 3(1)(a) (reg 3(1) substituted by SI 2002/887; SI 2002/2879). Any such certificate of an opinion must be given before the commencement of the treatment for the termination of the pregnancy to which it relates, and must be preserved by the practitioner who terminated the pregnancy to which it relates for a period of not less than three years beginning with the date of the termination: Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 3(2), (4). A certificate which is no longer to be preserved must be destroyed by the person in whose custody it then is: reg 3(5). Any practitioner who terminates a pregnancy in England must give to the Chief Medical Officer of the Department of Health, or where the pregnancy was terminated in Wales to the Chief Medical Officer for Wales, notice of the termination, and such other information relating to the termination as is specified in Sch 2, and must do so by sending them to him within 14 days of the termination either in a sealed envelope or by an electronic communication transmitted by an electronic communications system used solely for the transfer of confidential information to him: reg 4(1), (2) (amended by SI 2002/887; SI 2002/2879). 'Electronic communication' has the same meaning as in the Electronic Communications Act 2000 s 15 (as amended) (see TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 616): Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 2.

Any such notice given or information furnished to a Chief Medical Officer must not be disclosed except that disclosure may be made: (1) for the purposes of carrying out their duties, to an authorised officer of the Department of Health or of the National Assembly for Wales, as the case may be, or to the Registrar General or an authorised member of his staff, or to an individual authorised by the Chief Medical Officer who is engaged in setting up, maintaining and supporting a computer system used for the purpose of recording, processing and holding such notice or information (reg 5(a) (amended by SI 2002/887; SI 2002/2879)); or (2) for the purposes of carrying out his duties in relation to offences under the Abortion Act 1967 or the law relating to abortion, to the Director of Public Prosecutions or a member of his staff authorised by him (Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 5(b)); or (3) for the purposes of investigating whether an offence has been committed under the Abortion Act 1967 or the law relating to abortion, to a police officer not below the rank of superintendent or a person authorised by him (Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 5(c)); or (4) pursuant to a court order, for the purposes of proceedings which have begun (reg 5(d)); or (5) for the purposes of bona fide scientific research (reg 5(e)); or (6) to the practitioner who terminated the pregnancy (reg 5(f)); or (7) to a registered medical practitioner, with the consent in writing of the woman whose pregnancy was terminated (reg 5(g)); or (8) to the president of the General Medical Council or an authorised member of its staff, when requested by the president for the purpose of investigating whether the fitness to practise of the practitioner is impaired (reg 5(h) (amended by SI 2002/3135)); (9) to the woman whose pregnancy was terminated, on her supplying to the Chief Medical Officer written details of her date of birth, the date and place of the termination and a copy of the certificate of registration of her birth certified as a true copy of the original by a solicitor or a registered medical practitioner (reg 5(i) (added by SI 2002/887; SI 2002/2879)). As to the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. As to the Registrar General see REGISTRATION CONCERNING THE INDIVIDUAL vol 39(2) (Reissue) PARAS 605-608. As to the Director of Public Prosecutions see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 1066, 1079 et seq. As to the president of the General Medical Council see PARA 22 ante. As to the General Medical Council see PARA 13 et seq ante. As to fitness to practise see PARA 138 et seq ante.

The Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499 (as amended) are made under the Abortion Act 1967 s 2. Any person who wilfully contravenes or wilfully fails to comply with any such regulations is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: s 2(3) (amended by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 46). As to the standard scale see PARA 185 note 11 ante. Any statutory instrument made under the Abortion Act 1967 s 2 is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 2(4). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516.

4 The question of good faith is for the jury to decide on the totality of the evidence. Without evidence as to professional practice and the medical probabilities, a verdict against a medical practitioner is often likely to be unsafe, but such evidence does not determine the question: R v Smith [1974] QB 354, [1974] 1 All ER 632, CA.

5 Abortion Act 1967 s 1(1)(a) (s 1(1)(a), (b) substituted, and s 1(1)(c), (d) added, by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 37(1)). In determining whether the continuance of a pregnancy would involve risk of injury to health under head (1) or head (2) in the text, account may be taken of the pregnant woman's actual or reasonably foreseeable environment: Abortion Act 1967 s 1(2) (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 37(2)). See also note 12 infra.

6 Abortion Act 1967 s 1(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). See also notes 5 supra, 12 infra.

9 See Janaway v Salford Area Health Authority [1989] AC 537, [1988] 3 All ER 1079, HL (typing a referral for consultation is excluded from 'participating in treatment').

10 Abortion Act 1967 s 4(1). In any legal proceedings, the burden of proof of conscientious objection rests on the person claiming to rely on it: s 4(1). Once a termination of pregnancy is recognised as an option, the doctor invoking the conscientious objection clause should refer the patient to a colleague at once: Barr v Matthews (1999) 52 BMLR per Alliott J.

11 Abortion Act 1967 s 4(2).

12 Ibid s 1(3) (see the text to notes 13-15 infra), and so much of s 1(1) as relates to the opinion of two registered medical practitioners (see the text to notes 3-8 supra), do not apply to the termination of a pregnancy by a registered medical practitioner in a case where he is of the opinion, formed in good faith, that the termination is immediately necessary to save the life or to prevent grave permanent injury to the physical or mental health of the pregnant woman: s 1(4). Any such opinion must be certified either in the prescribed form (see the Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, Sch 1 Pt II) or in a certificate giving the full name and address of the practitioner and containing the full name and address of the pregnant woman and stating that the practitioner is of the opinion formed in good faith that one of the grounds mentioned in the Abortion Act 1967 s 1(4) is fulfilled: Abortion Regulations 1991, SI 1991/499, reg 3(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). Any such certificate must be given before the commencement of the treatment for the termination of the pregnancy to which it relates or, if that is not reasonably practicable, not later than 24 hours after such termination: reg 3(3). As to the retention and destruction of such certificates, and the penalty for failing to comply with the certification provisions, see note 3 supra. As to good faith see note 4 supra.

The power to approve a place includes power, in relation to treatment consisting primarily in the use of such medicines as may be specified in the approval and carried out in such manner as may be so specified, to approve a class of places: Abortion Act 1967 s 1(3A) (added by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 37(3)). ### (iii) Privileges and Duties

210. Eligibility for appointments.

No person who is not fully registered<sup>1</sup> may perform any duties under an appointment<sup>2</sup> held as physician, surgeon or other medical officer<sup>3</sup>: (1) in the naval, military or air service<sup>4</sup>; (2) in any hospital or other place for the reception of persons suffering from mental disorder or in any other hospital, infirmary or dispensary not supported wholly by voluntary contributions<sup>5</sup>; (3) in any prison<sup>6</sup>; (4) in any other public establishment, body or institution<sup>7</sup>; or (5) to any friendly or other society for providing mutual relief in sickness, infirmity or old age<sup>8</sup>. However, a person who is not a Commonwealth citizen<sup>9</sup> may be and act as the resident physician or medical officer of any hospital established exclusively for the relief of foreigners in sickness, so long as he<sup>10</sup> has obtained from a foreign university a degree or diploma of doctor in medicine and has passed the regular examinations entitling him to practise medicine in his own country<sup>11</sup>, and is engaged in no medical practice except as such a resident physician or medical officer<sup>12</sup>.

Many other appointments are reserved to fully registered medical practitioners by statute<sup>13</sup>. In particular, only fully registered medical practitioners may be entered on the lists of practitioners undertaking to provide primary medical services in connection with the national health service<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'fully registered person' see PARA 3 ante.

2 None of the suspension events listed below terminates any appointment, but the person suspended must not perform the duties of such an appointment during the suspension: Medical Act 1983 s 47(3) (s 47(3) substituted, and s 47(4) added, by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 2, 15(2)). The suspension events are: (1) the suspension of registration of a person by a fitness to practise panel following a finding of impairment of fitness to practise by reason of deficient professional performance or adverse physical or mental health under the Medical Act 1983 s 35D (as added) (see PARAS 144-145 ante), or under rules made by virtue of Sch 4 para 5A(3) (as substituted) (see PARA 183 ante) (s 47(4)(a) (as so added)); (2) an order for immediate suspension by a fitness to practise panel under s 38(1) (see PARA 146 ante) (s 47(4)(b) (as so added)); or (3) an interim suspension order by an interim orders panel or a fitness to practise panel under s 41A (as added) (see PARA 148 ante) or such an order as extended under s 41A (as added) (s 47(4)(c) (as so added)). As to the constitution of fitness to practise panels see PARAS 138-140 ante. As to the functions of fitness to practise panels see PARA 144 et seq ante. As to fitness to practise panels and interim orders panels as statutory committees see PARA 26 ante. As to the constitution of interim orders panels see PARAS 138-140 ante.

The purpose behind s 47(3) is to preserve the position of the doctor in the knowledge that an order would be only temporary and it is therefore unlawful for an NHS trust to consider his dismissal from employment on the ground of the suspension alone: R (on the application of George) v General Medical Council [2003] EWHC 124 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 5 (May). As from a day to be appointed, s 47(1) is amended so as to provide that, subject to s 47(2) (see the text to notes 9-12 infra), only a person who is fully registered and who holds a licence to practise may hold an appointment as physician, surgeon or other medical officer: s 47(1) (prospectively amended by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 1(2), (3), 2, 12(5)(a)). Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(iii) Privileges and Duties/214. Obligation to give evidence.

214. Obligation to give evidence.

The relationship between a medical practitioner and his patient does not excuse the practitioner, whatever medical etiquette may require, from the obligation, if directed to do so, to give evidence in a court of law<sup>1</sup> or to disclose records or other documents in the course of legal proceedings<sup>2</sup>. He is in the same position as any other person who is not specially privileged in this respect by the law. He may be summoned to give evidence in civil or criminal causes, and may be liable to be punished for contempt of court if he neglects to attend<sup>3</sup>.

In civil cases, a judge has no discretion on grounds of confidentiality alone to direct a doctor that he need not disclose information which came to him through his professional relationship with a patient. Where, however, such disclosure would be in breach of some ethical or social value involving the public interest, the court has a discretion to uphold a refusal to disclose relevant evidence if it considers that on balance the public interest is better served by excluding such evidence<sup>4</sup>. A doctor may therefore be required to disclose on oath information which came to him through his professional relationship with a patient, and he may be committed for contempt of court if he refuses to answer<sup>5</sup>.

Similarly a practitioner's duty of confidentiality may be overridden by the public interest, for example in keeping the authority responsible for the patient's treatment fully informed about his condition<sup>6</sup>, or in the interests of child protection<sup>7</sup>.

As to giving evidence at inquests see CORONERS vol 9(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1014. The evidence of a doctor giving medical testimony at a criminal trial should be treated, as regards admissibility and other matters of that kind, like that of any other independent witness; and, although a doctor may be regarded as giving independent expert evidence to assist the court, the jury should not be directed that his evidence ought, therefore, to be accepted in the absence of reasons for rejecting it: R v Lanfear [1968] 2 QB 77, [1968] 1 All ER 683, CA. A doctor acting within his professional capacity and carrying out his professional duty is a person who may be required to give evidence as to the identity of a driver pursuant to the Road Traffic Act 1988 s 172(2)-(4) (as substituted and amended), on pain of criminal penalties under s 172(3) (as substituted) if he refuses: Hunter v Mann supra; and see ROAD TRAFFIC vol 40(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1026. ### 214 Obligation to give evidence

NOTE 2--Supreme Court Act 1981 now cited as Senior Courts Act 1981: Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1 (in force 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(iv) Medical Reports and Records/215. Access to medical reports.

(iv) Medical Reports and Records

215. Access to medical reports.

A person may have access to any medical report<sup>1</sup> relating to him which is to be, or has been, supplied by a medical practitioner<sup>2</sup> for employment<sup>3</sup> or insurance<sup>4</sup> purposes<sup>5</sup>. A person may not apply to a medical practitioner for a medical report to be supplied to him for employment or insurance purposes unless he has notified the individual to whom the report relates of his intention to make the application<sup>6</sup> and the individual has notified the applicant that he consents to the making of the application<sup>7</sup>. Upon giving his consent, the person to whom the report relates is entitled to state that he wishes to have access to the report<sup>8</sup> before it is supplied to the applicant, whereupon the applicant must notify the medical practitioner of that fact and notify the person to whom the report relates of the making of the application<sup>9</sup>. Where a medical practitioner has been so notified, he must not supply the report to the applicant unless either the person to whom it relates has been given access to it or a period of 21 days beginning with the date of the making of the application has elapsed without the medical practitioner having received any communication from the person to whom the report relates concerning arrangements for him to have access to it<sup>10</sup>. Where such access is given, the report must not be supplied to the applicant unless the medical practitioner has been notified of consent to its being supplied by the person to whom it relates<sup>11</sup>, who is entitled to request the amendment of any part of the report which he considers to be incorrect or misleading<sup>12</sup>. A medical practitioner who has supplied a medical report for employment or insurance purposes must retain a copy for at least six months from the date on which it was supplied<sup>13</sup> and must give access to such a copy to the person to whom it relates during that period if so requested<sup>14</sup>. A medical practitioner is exempt in certain circumstances<sup>15</sup> from giving access to a medical report, or any part of it, to the person to whom it relates<sup>16</sup>. If a county court is satisfied on the application of an individual that any person, in connection with a medical report relating to that individual, has failed or is likely to fail to comply with any of the requirements of the Access to Medical Reports Act 1988, the court may order that person to comply with that requirement<sup>17</sup>.

1     I.e. a report relating to the physical or mental health of an individual prepared by a medical practitioner who is or has been responsible for the clinical care of the individual: Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 2(1).

2     I.e. a person registered under the Medical Act 1983: Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 2(1). See PARAS 3-4 ante.

3     I.e. purposes, in relation to any individual, of any person by whom he is or has been, or is seeking to be, employed (whether under a contract of service or otherwise): ibid s 2(1).

4     'Insurance purposes', in a case of any individual who has entered into, or is seeking to enter into, a contract of insurance with an insurer, means the purposes of that insurer in relation to that individual; and 'insurer' means: (1) a person who has permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 100) to effect or carry out contracts of insurance; (2) an EEA firm of the kind mentioned in Sch 3 para 5(d), which has permission under Sch 3 para 15 (as a result of qualifying for authorisation under Sch 3 para 12) (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 315) to effect or carry out relevant contracts of insurance: Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 2(1) (amended by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Consequential Amendments and Repeals) Order SI 2001/3649, art 311(1), (2)). The definitions of 'insurance purposes' and 'insurer' must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order made thereunder, and Sch 2: Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 2(1A) (added by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Consequential Amendments and Repeals) Order SI 2001/3649, art 311(1), (3)); and see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 84.

5 Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 1. Any reference to the supply of a medical report for employment or insurance purposes is to be construed: (1) as a reference to the supply of such a report for employment or insurance purposes which are purposes of the person who is seeking to be supplied with it; or (2) in the case of a report that has already been supplied, as a reference to the supply of such a report for employment or insurance purposes which, at the time of its being supplied, were purposes of the person to whom it was supplied: s 2(2).

6 Ibid s 3(1)(a). Notification given by the applicant must inform the individual of his right to withhold his consent to the making of the application and of the rights under ss 4(1)-(3), 5(1), (2), 6(2) (see notes 8-12, 14 infra): s 3(2).

7 Ibid s 3(1)(b). All notifications given under the Act must be given in writing and may be given by post: s 9. As to references to service by post see PARA 20 note 22 ante.

8 References in ibid ss 4, 5 (see the text to note 11 infra) to giving an individual access to a medical report are references to making the report, or a copy of it, available for his inspection or supplying him with a copy of it; the practitioner may charge a reasonable fee to cover the costs of supplying such a copy: s 4(4).

9 Ibid s 4(1). Each such notification must contain a statement of the effect of s 4(2) (see the text to note 10 infra): s 4(1). See also note 7 supra.

10 Ibid s 4(2). See also note 8 supra. This also applies where a medical practitioner receives an application for a medical report to be supplied without being notified under s 4(1), but before supplying the report receives a notification from the person to whom it relates that he wishes to have access to the report before it is supplied: s 4(3).

11 Ibid s 5(1). See also notes 7, 8 supra.

12 Ibid s 5(2). Any such request must be made in writing: s 5(3). For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 20 note 22 ante. If the medical practitioner is to any extent prepared to accede to such a request, he must amend the report accordingly: s 5(2)(a). If the medical practitioner is not to any extent prepared to accede to such a request, the person to whom the report relates may require him to attach to the report a statement of that person's views in respect of any part of the report which the practitioner is declining to amend: s 5(2)(b).

14 See ibid s 6(2). The reference to giving an individual access to a medical report is a reference to making a copy of the report available for his inspection or supplying him with a copy of it; the practitioner may charge a reasonable fee to cover the costs of supplying such a copy: see s 6(3).

15 Ie where: (1) disclosure would in the opinion of the practitioner be likely to cause serious harm to the physical or mental health of the person to whom it relates or others or would indicate the intentions of the practitioner in respect of that person; or (2) disclosure would be likely to reveal information about another person, or to reveal the identity of another person who has supplied information to the practitioner about the person to whom the report relates, unless that other person has consented or that person is a health professional who has been involved in the care of the person to whom the report relates and the information relates to or has been provided by the professional in that capacity: see ibid s 7(1), (2). For these purposes, 'health professional' has the same meaning as in the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 450): Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 2(1) (definition amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(1), Sch 15 para 8). As to the procedure to be followed by the medical practitioner where exemptions apply to the whole, or any part, of a report see the Access to Medical Reports Act 1988 s 7(3), (4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(iv) Medical Reports and Records/216. Access to health records.

216. Access to health records.

An individual's right of access to his medical records is governed by the Data Protection Act 1998, which is dealt with elsewhere in this work<sup>1</sup>.

The Access to Health Records Act 1990 provides that, in the case of a patient<sup>2</sup> who has died, an application<sup>3</sup> for access to a health record<sup>4</sup>, or to any part of it, may be made to the holder<sup>5</sup> of the record by the personal representative of the patient, and by any person who may have a claim arising out of his death<sup>6</sup>. Access must be given within 21 days of the application in respect of records none of which was made within the previous 40 days, or 40 days in any other case<sup>7</sup>. Access may be given by allowing inspection of the record or by provision of an extract of the parts of it which are not excluded from disclosure<sup>8</sup>, and, if the applicant so requires, by supplying him with a copy of the record or extract<sup>9</sup>. Where information in the record or extract is expressed in terms which are unintelligible without explanation, an explanation of terms must be supplied<sup>10</sup>. However, access must not be given if the record includes a note, made at the patient's request, that he did not wish access to be given on such an application<sup>11</sup>.

Access must not be given to any part of a health record made before 1 November 1991<sup>12</sup>, but information recorded before that date must be disclosed if it is necessary for making intelligible any part of the record to which access must be given<sup>13</sup>. Where any part of a health record, in the opinion of the holder of the record, would disclose information likely to cause serious harm to the physical or mental health of any individual<sup>14</sup>, or information relating to or provided by an individual, other than the patient, who could be identified from the information, access must not be given to it<sup>15</sup>. Access must not be given to any part of a health record which, in the opinion of the holder of the record, would disclose information provided by the patient in the expectation that it would not be disclosed to the applicant<sup>16</sup>, or information obtained as a result of any examination or investigation to which the patient consented in the expectation that the information would not be so disclosed<sup>17</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>18</sup> may by regulations<sup>19</sup> provide that, in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the regulations, access must not be given to any part of a health record which satisfies such conditions as may be so prescribed<sup>20</sup>.

Where a person considers that any information contained in a health record to which he has been given access, or any part of it, is inaccurate<sup>21</sup>, he may apply to the holder of the record for the necessary correction to be made<sup>22</sup>.

Any term or condition of a contract is void in so far as it purports to require an individual to supply any other person with a copy of a health record, or an extract from it, to which he has been given access<sup>23</sup>.

An application may be made to the High Court or a county court for an order requiring the holder of a health record to comply with any requirement of the Access to Health Records Act 1990 with which he has failed to comply<sup>24</sup>. For the purpose of determining whether an applicant is entitled to be given access to a health record, the court may require the record or part of it to be made available for its own inspection but, pending determination of that question in the applicant's favour, it must not require the record or part to be disclosed to the applicant or his representative<sup>25</sup>.

1 See CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 524 et seq.

2 'Patient' means the individual in connection with whose care the record has been made: Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 1(3).

3 An application must be made in writing: ibid s 11. For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 20 note 22 ante.

4 A 'health record' is a record which consists of information relating to the physical or mental health of an individual who can be identified from that information or from that and other information in the possession of the holder of the record (see note 5 infra), and has been made by or on behalf of a health professional in connection with the care of that individual: ibid s 1(1) (amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(2), Sch 16 Pt I). 'Information' includes any expression of opinion about the patient; and 'care' includes examination, investigation, diagnosis and treatment: Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 11. For these purposes, 'health professional' has the same meaning as in the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 450): Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 2 (substituted by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(1), Sch 15 para 11).

5 The holder of a health record is: (1) in the case of a record made by a health professional performing primary medical services under a general medical services contract made with a primary care trust or local health board, the person or body who entered into the contract with the trust or board (or, in a case where more than one person so entered into the contract, any such person) (Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 1(2) (a) (s 1(2)(a) substituted, s 1(2)(aa) added, and s 1(2)(b) amended, by the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 s 184, Sch 11 para 57)); (2) in the case of a record made by a health professional performing such services in accordance with arrangements under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 28C (as added) with a primary care trust, strategic health authority or local health board, the person or body which made the arrangements with the trust, authority or board (or, in a case where more than one person so made the arrangements, any such person) (Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 1(2)(aa) (as so added)); (3) in the case of a record made by a health professional for purposes connected with the provision of health services by a health service body (and not falling within head (2) supra), the health service body by which or on whose behalf the record is held (s 1(2)(b) (as so amended)); (4) in any other case, the health professional by whom or on whose behalf the record is held (s 1(2)(c)).

'General medical services contract' means a contract under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 28Q (as added); 'primary care trust' means a primary care trust established under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 16A (as added); 'strategic health authority' means a strategic health authority established under s 8; 'health service body' means: (a) a strategic health authority, health authority or special health authority, special health authority or primary care trust; (b) an NHS foundation trust; 'health authority' means a health authority established under s 8; 'special health authority' means a special health authority established under s 11; and 'make', in relation to such a record, includes compile: Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 11 (amended by the Health Act 1999 (Supplementary, Consequential etc Provisions) Order 2000, SI 2000/90, arts 2(1), 3(1), Sch 1 para 25(a), (b); the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 (Supplementary, Consequential etc Provisions) Order 2002, SI 2002/2469, reg 4, Sch 1 Pt 1 para 17(a), (b); and the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 ss 34, 184, 196, Sch 4 paras 87, 88, Sch 11 para 57(1), (5)(a), (6), Sch 14 Pt 1). See HEALTH SERVICES.

6 Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 3(1)(f). As to personal representatives see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS. As to testate succession see WILLS; and as to intestate succession see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 583 et seq.

7 Ibid s 3(2), (5). Where an application does not contain sufficient information to enable the holder of the record to identify the patient or to satisfy himself that the applicant is entitled to make the application, and, within the period of 14 days beginning with the date of the application, the holder of the record requests the applicant to furnish him with such further information as he may reasonably require for that purpose, then s 3(5) has effect as if for any reference to that date there were substituted a reference to the date on which that further information is so furnished: s 3(6) (amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(2), Sch 16 Pt I). Payment of a fee may be required for giving access, but only where no part of the record was made within the 40 days preceding the application; and the amount must not exceed such maximum as may be prescribed for these purposes by regulations under the Data Protection Act 1998 s 7 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 525): Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 3(4)(a) (amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(1), Sch 15 para 12). As to the regulations made see the Data Protection (Subject Access) (Fees and Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/191.

8 Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 3(2)(a), (b). As to the total or partial exclusion of the right of access see ss 4, 5; and the text and notes 11-20 infra.

9 Ibid s 3(2)(c). The cost of making the copy and, if applicable, of posting it may be charged: see s 3(4)(b).

10 Ibid s 3(3).

11 Ibid s 4(3). Similarly, access must not be given to any part of the record which, in the opinion of the holder of the record, would disclose information which is not relevant to any claim which may arise out of the patient's death: s 5(4). A health service body must take advice from the appropriate health professional before it decides whether it is satisfied as to any matter for the purposes of the Act, or forms an opinion as to any matter for those purposes: s 7(1) (amended by the Health Authorities Act 1995 s 5(1), Sch 3). 'The appropriate health professional', in relation to a health service body means, where one or more medical or dental practitioners are available who, for purposes connected with the provision of health services by the body, have been responsible for the clinical care of the patient, that practitioner or, as the case may be, such one of those practitioners as was most recently so responsible; and where no such practitioner is available, a health professional who has the necessary experience and qualifications to advise the body on the matter in question: see the Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 7(2)(b), (c) (s 7(2) amended by the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 ss 184, 196, Sch 11 para 57(1), (4)(a), (6), Sch 14 Pt 4).

13 Ibid s 5(2).

14 Ibid s 5(1)(a)(i) (amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(2), Sch 16 Pt I). See also note 11 supra.

15 Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 5(1)(a)(ii). However, this provision does not apply where the individual concerned has consented to the application, or where that individual is a health professional who has been involved in the care of the patient: s 5(2)(a), (b).

16 Ibid s 5(3)(a) (s 5(3) amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(1), Sch 15 para 13). See also note 11 supra.

As to the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

19 Any regulations made under the Access to Health Records Act 1990 may make different provision for different cases or classes of cases including, in particular, different provision for different health records or classes of health records: s 10(1). Any power to make such regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument and any such statutory instrument is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 10(2), (3) (amended by the Data Protection Act 1998 s 74(2), Sch 16 Pt I). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516.

20 Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 5(5). Access must not be given to any part of a health record which would disclose information showing that an identifiable individual was, or may have been, born in consequence of treatment services within the meaning of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (see PARA 278 note 14 post): Access to Health Records (Control of Access) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/746, reg 2.

21 'Inaccurate' means incorrect, misleading or incomplete: Access to Health Records Act 1990 s 6(3).

22 See ibid s 6(1). The holder of the record, if satisfied that the information is inaccurate, must correct it or, if not so satisfied, must make a note of the inaccuracy alleged by the applicant: s 6(2)(a), (b). The applicant must be supplied with a copy of the correction or note without any fee: s 6(2)(c).

23 Ibid s 9.

24 Ibid s 8(1), (5). The court must not entertain an application unless it is satisfied that the applicant has taken all such steps to secure compliance with the requirement as may be prescribed by regulations: s 8(2). The Secretary of State may by regulations prescribe arrangements to be made by the holders of health records for dealing with complaints that they have failed to comply with any requirements of the Act: s 8(3). See note 19 supra. An application must be made within such period as may be prescribed by rules of court: s 8(1). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations or rules had been made. In so far as they are exercisable in relation to Wales, these functions of the Secretary of State have been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. ## (v) Restrictions on Advertising

219. Prohibition of advertisements relating to cancer.

No person may take part in the publication of any advertisement<sup>1</sup> which contains an offer to treat any person for cancer, to prescribe any remedy for cancer<sup>2</sup> or to give any advice in connection with its treatment<sup>3</sup>.

This does not apply to any advertisement published by a local authority, or by the governing body of a voluntary<sup>4</sup> hospital<sup>5</sup> or by any person acting with the sanction of the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup>.

1 'Advertisement' includes any notice, circular, label, wrapper or other document, and any announcement made orally or by any means of producing or transmitting sounds: Cancer Act 1939 s 4(8). Where an advertisement in a periodical stated that the article contained 'the only antiseptic both harmless and efficient in every form of disease' and that full information would be given on application, and the defendant in reply to a request for information sent a letter stating that the article was a cure for tuberculosis, and enclosed a circular, it was held that the advertisement, letter and circular, itself an advertisement, together amounted to an advertisement within the meaning of the Act: Earp v Roberts [1947] 1 All ER 136 (a case brought under the similar provisions of the Pharmacy and Medicines Act 1941 s 8(1) (repealed)).

2 References to persons suffering from cancer are to be construed as including persons suspected to be so suffering: Cancer Act 1939 s 5(2).

3 Ibid s 4(1)(a). For the penalty see PARA 220 post.

4 With certain exceptions, these hospitals were transferred to the Minister of Health by the National Health Service Act 1946 s 6 (repealed). Responsibilities of the Minister of Health now belong to the Secretary of State for Health: see PARA 5 ante.

5 'Hospital' includes a clinic, dispensary or other institution for the reception of the sick, whether as in-patients or as out-patients: Cancer Act 1939 s 5(1).

Proceedings for a contravention of the prohibition of advertisements for the treatment of cancer<sup>1</sup> must be instituted by the appropriate county or London borough council or the Common Council of the City of London<sup>2</sup>, but a prosecution for such an offence requires the consent of the Attorney General<sup>3</sup>. Any person who contravenes the prohibition is liable on summary conviction to a penalty<sup>4</sup>.

In any such proceedings, it is a defence for the person charged to prove: (1) that the advertisement<sup>5</sup> was published in such circumstances that he did not know and had no reason to believe that he was taking part in its publication<sup>6</sup>; or (2) that the advertisement was published only so far as was reasonably necessary to bring it to the notice of persons of the following classes, or of one or some of them: members of either House of Parliament, of a local authority or of the governing body of a voluntary<sup>7</sup> hospital<sup>8</sup>, registered medical practitioners<sup>9</sup>, registered nurses<sup>10</sup>, registered pharmacists<sup>11</sup>, persons undergoing training with a view to becoming registered in any of the three last-named professions<sup>12</sup>, and persons lawfully conducting<sup>13</sup> a retail pharmacy business<sup>14</sup>; or (3) that the advertisement was published only in a publication of a technical character intended for circulation mainly among persons of the classes mentioned in head (2) above or one or some of them<sup>15</sup>.

It is a defence for any person charged to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of such an offence by himself or any person under his control: reg 5(4).

14 See the Health and Medicines Act 1988 s 23(4). ## (vi) Recovery of Charges

222. Unregistered persons.

No person is entitled to recover any charge in any court of law for any medical advice or attendance, or for the performance of any operation, or for any medicine which he has both prescribed and supplied, unless he proves that he is fully registered<sup>1</sup> and also that he was fully registered at the time when the services were rendered<sup>2</sup>. However, an unregistered person may recover charges in respect of treatment which does not amount to the performance of an operation<sup>3</sup>.

Where a practitioner is a fellow of a college of physicians, fellows of which are prohibited by byelaw from recovering by law their expenses, charges or fees, then, notwithstanding that he is fully registered, the prohibitory byelaw, so long as it is in force, may be pleaded in bar of any legal proceedings instituted by him for the recovery of expenses, charges or fees<sup>4</sup>.

1 Medical Act 1983 s 46(1). Section 46(1) does not apply to fees in respect of medical services lawfully rendered in the United Kingdom by a person who is a national of any EEA state without first being registered under the Act if he has previously complied with the requirements of s 18(2) (see PARA 100 ante) or subsequently complies with those requirements as modified in respect of urgent cases by s 18(3) (see PARA 100 ante): s 46(2) (amended by the European Primary Medical Qualifications Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1591, reg 7, Sch 2 para 11). For the meaning of 'fully registered' see PARA 3 ante. For the meanings of 'national', in relation to an EEA state, and of 'EEA state' see PARA 3 note 2 ante.

As from a day to be appointed, the Medical Act 1983 s 46(1) is amended so as to provide that no person is entitled to recover any charge in any court of law for any medical advice or attendance, or for the performance of any operation, or for any medicine which he has both prescribed and supplied unless he proves that he is fully registered and holds a licence to practise: s 46(1) (prospectively amended by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 1(2), (3), 2, 12(4)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. For the meaning of 'licence to practise' see PARA 130 note 3 ante.

2 Leman v Houseley (1874) LR 10 QB 66. A registered practitioner cannot recover for medical services rendered by an unregistered person in his employment if it is shown that those services were rendered by the unregistered person without in any way consulting or referring to his employer: Howarth v Brearley (1887) 19 QBD 303, DC. See also De la Rosa v Prieto (1864) 16 CBNS 578.

3 Hall v Trotter (1921) 38 TLR 30, DC; Macnaghten v Douglas [1927] 2 KB 292, DC. In the former case an osteopath recovered charges for treatment by manipulation, no advice having been given. In the latter case a new trial was ordered where a county court judge had decided that an osteopath who, after carrying out an examination and informing the patient of his conclusions, performed manipulative treatment (which he described to the patient as remedial) of the bones in the neck and lumbar regions, was precluded from recovering any charges. It would appear that the county court judge was invited by the appellate court to split the claim into: (1) treatment; and (2) advice, if it was capable of being so split up (as to which no opinion was expressed), and to give judgment for the amount referable to treatment. There appears to be no authority as to the meaning of 'operation'. As to the regulation of the profession of osteopathy see PARA 499 et seq post.

4 Medical Act 1983 s 46(3). As from a day to be appointed, s 46(3) is amended so as to provide that where a practitioner is a fellow of a college of physicians, fellows of which are prohibited by byelaw from recovering by law their expenses, charges or fees, then, notwithstanding that he is fully registered and holds a licence to practise, the prohibitory byelaw, so long as it is in force, may be pleaded in bar of any legal proceedings instituted by him for the recovery of expenses, charges or fees: s 46(3) (prospectively amended by the Medical Act 1983 (Amendment) Order 2002, SI 2002/3135, arts 1(2), (3), 2, 12(4)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Royal College of Physicians see PARA 64 ante.

NOTES 1, 4--Appointed day is 16 November 2009: London Gazette, 21 August 2009.

223. Liability to pay charges.

Where a registered medical practitioner renders services to a patient, other than services under the national health service legislation<sup>1</sup> there is a presumption that it is for reward<sup>2</sup>. The onus is therefore upon the patient to show that in fact it was agreed that services in a particular case should be gratuitous<sup>3</sup>.

In the absence of a contract to pay a specified sum, a medical practitioner can recover a reasonable sum<sup>4</sup>. A medical practitioner cannot, however, recover charges for work which is substantially useless owing to his negligence<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> See Gibbon v Budd (1863) 2 H & C 92. As to tax liability in respect of payments received in recognition of voluntary services see Temperley (Inspector of Taxes) v Smith [1956] 3 All ER 92, [1956] 1 WLR 931; and INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 609.

<sup>5</sup> Kannen v M'Mullen (1791) Peake 59; Hupe v Phelps (1819) 2 Stark 480; Hill v Featherstonhaugh (1831) 7 Bing 569 at 574. It is submitted that the principle is the same as in any other case of work and labour: see Bracey v Carter (1840) 12 Ad & El 373; Shaw v Arden (1832) 9 Bing 287; and BAILMENT. Where the work consists of a number of separate acts, some of which are useless owing to negligence and some not, the first question to decide is whether the contract was one entire contract or a number of independent contracts. If the former, nothing can be recovered: see Vigers v Cook [1919] 2 KB 475, CA; and CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 667 et seq. A claim to recover charges is subject to the ordinary rules of set-off: see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 634 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(5) THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE/(vi) Recovery of Charges/224. Payment for emergency treatment of traffic casualties.

224. Payment for emergency treatment of traffic casualties.

Where medical or surgical treatment or examination is immediately required as a result of bodily injury, including fatal injury, to any person caused by, or arising out of the use of a motor vehicle on a road<sup>1</sup>, and the treatment or examination so required is effected by a legally qualified medical practitioner<sup>2</sup>, the person who was using the vehicle at the time of the event out of which the bodily injury arose must, on a claim being made in the proper manner<sup>3</sup>, pay to the practitioner<sup>4</sup> specified fees<sup>5</sup>. A payment duly made under these provisions operates as a discharge, to the extent of the amount paid, of any liability of the person who was using the vehicle, or of any other person, to pay any sum in respect of the expenses or remuneration of the practitioner or hospital concerned of or for effecting the emergency treatment<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'road' see ROAD TRAFFIC vol 40(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 206; and for the meaning of 'motor vehicle' see ROAD TRAFFIC vol 40(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 210.

2 Road Traffic Act 1988 s 158(1). See also ROAD TRAFFIC vol 40(2) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 958-959. For the meaning of 'legally qualified medical practitioner' see PARA 4 ante.

3 A claim for payment may be made at the time when the emergency treatment is effected by oral request to the person who was using the vehicle, and if not so made must be made by request in writing served on him within seven days from the day on which the emergency treatment was effected: ibid s 159(2). A request in writing must be signed by the claimant or, in the case of a hospital, by an executive officer of the hospital claiming the payment (s 159(3)(a) (amended by the Road Traffic (NHS Charges) Act 1999 s 18(2)(b))), and must state the name and address of the claimant, the circumstances in which the emergency treatment was effected and that it was first effected by the claimant (Road Traffic Act 1988 s 159(3)(b)). A request in writing may be served by delivering it to the person who was using the vehicle, or by sending it in a pre-paid registered letter or by the recorded delivery service addressed to him at his usual or last known address: s 159(3)(c). A chief officer of police must, if so requested by a person who alleges that he is entitled to claim a payment under s 158, furnish to that person any information at his disposal as to the identification marks of any motor vehicle which that person alleges to be a vehicle out of the use of which the bodily injury arose, and as to the identity and address of the person who was using the vehicle at the time of the event out of which it arose: s 159(5). For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 20 note 22 ante.

4 Where emergency treatment is effected by more than one practitioner, the payment must be made to the practitioner by whom it is first effected: see ibid s 158(2). Where emergency treatment is first effected in a hospital, the payment must be paid to the hospital and not to the practitioner: see s 158(3).

5 Ibid s 158(2). As to the fees payable see s 158(2) (amended by the Road Traffic Accidents (Payments for Treatment) Order 1995, SI 1995/889, art 3). As to the requirement for compulsory insurance against liability to make such payments see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 733; and as to insurers' direct responsibility to hospitals for the expenses of treatment see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 741. As to road traffic accidents and national health service charges see HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 486 et seq.

6 Road traffic Act 1988 s 159(4). The liability incurred under s 158 (as amended) by a person using a vehicle where the event out of which it arose was caused by the wrongful act of another person must be treated for the purposes of any claim to recover damage by reason of that wrongful act as damage sustained by the person using the vehicle: s 158(4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(6) HUMAN TISSUE, TRANSPLANTS AND THE PRACTICE OF ANATOMY/(i) The Human Tissue Act 1961; The Human Organ Transplants Act 1989/225. Removal of parts of the body for medical purposes; human organ transplants.

(6) HUMAN TISSUE, TRANSPLANTS AND THE PRACTICE OF ANATOMY

(i) The Human Tissue Act 1961; The Human Organ Transplants Act 1989

225. Removal of parts of the body for medical purposes; human organ transplants.

If any person, either in writing<sup>1</sup> at any time or orally in the presence of two or more witnesses during his last illness, has expressed a request that his body or any specified part of his body be used after his death for therapeutic purposes or for purposes of medical education or research, the person lawfully in possession of his body after his death<sup>2</sup> may, unless he has reason to believe that the request was subsequently withdrawn, authorise the removal from the body of any part or, as the case may be, the specified part, for use in accordance with the request<sup>3</sup>. Even if no such request has been made, the person lawfully in possession of the body of a deceased person may authorise the removal of any part from the body for these purposes if, having made such reasonable inquiry as may be practicable, he has no reason to believe either that the deceased had expressed an objection to his body being so dealt with after his death which had not been withdrawn<sup>4</sup>, or that the surviving spouse or any surviving relative of the deceased so objects<sup>5</sup>. Generally<sup>6</sup>, the removal and use of any part of a body in accordance with an authority given under these provisions is lawful<sup>7</sup>.

No removal, except of eyes or parts of eyes, may be effected except by a registered medical practitioner<sup>8</sup>, who must have satisfied himself by personal examination that life is extinct<sup>9</sup>. No removal of an eye or part of an eye may be effected except by a registered medical practitioner, who must have satisfied himself that life is extinct<sup>10</sup>, or by a person in the employment of a health authority<sup>11</sup>, primary care trust<sup>12</sup>, NHS trust<sup>13</sup> or NHS foundation trust acting on the instructions of a registered medical practitioner who, before giving such instructions, must be satisfied: (1) that the person in question is sufficiently qualified and trained to perform the removal competently; and (2) on the basis of his own examination of the body, or that of another registered medical practitioner, that life is extinct<sup>14</sup>.

Where a person has reason to believe that an inquest may be required to be held on any body or that a post mortem examination of any body may be required by the coroner<sup>15</sup>, he must not, except with the coroner's consent, give authority under these provisions in respect of the body<sup>16</sup>, or act on such an authority given by any other person<sup>17</sup>.

No authority may be given under these provisions in respect of any body by a person entrusted with the body for the purpose only of its interment or cremation<sup>18</sup>.

In the case of a body lying in a hospital, nursing home or other institution, any authority may be given on behalf of the person having the control and management of the institution by any officer or persons designated for that purpose<sup>19</sup>.

Where an authority is given under these provisions, the Anatomy Act 1984 does not apply to the removal and use of the part or parts of the body<sup>20</sup>.

It is an offence in Great Britain<sup>21</sup>: (a) to make or receive any payment<sup>22</sup> for the supply or offer to supply of an organ<sup>23</sup> to be removed from a person, whether living or dead, and intended for transplant into another person in Great Britain or elsewhere<sup>24</sup>; (b) to seek to find a person willing to supply an organ for payment<sup>25</sup>; (c) to offer to supply an organ for payment<sup>26</sup>; (d) to initiate or negotiate any arrangement involving the making of payment for such supply or offer<sup>27</sup>; (e) to take part in the management or control of a body whose activities include the initiation or negotiation of such arrangements<sup>28</sup>; (f) to cause to be published or distributed or knowingly to publish or distribute an advertisement<sup>29</sup>: (i) inviting persons to supply organs for payment; (ii) offering to supply organs for payment; or (iii) indicating that the advertiser is willing to initiate or negotiate arrangements involving the making of payment for such supply or offer<sup>30</sup>; (g) to remove from a living person an organ intended for transplant, or to transplant an organ from one living person into another, unless the two persons are genetically related<sup>31</sup>; (h) to fail to comply with regulations concerning the provision of information about transplant operations<sup>32</sup>; or (i) knowingly or recklessly to supply information in purported compliance with such regulations which is false or misleading in a material particular<sup>33</sup>.

3 Human Tissue Act 1961 s 1(1). As from a day to be appointed, the Human Tissue Act 1961, the Anatomy Act 1984 and the Human Organ Transplants Act 1989 are repealed by the Human Tissue Act 2004 ss 57, 60, Sch 7 Pt 1. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the new regime under the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 233 et seq post.

NOTE 3--Day appointed for repeal of Human Organ Transplants Act 1989: SI 2005/2792.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(6) HUMAN TISSUE, TRANSPLANTS AND THE PRACTICE OF ANATOMY/(ii) The Anatomy Act 1984/226. Lawful examinations.

(ii) The Anatomy Act 1984

226. Lawful examinations.

A person lawfully in possession of a body<sup>1</sup> after death may authorise its use for anatomical examination<sup>2</sup> if the deceased, either in writing at any time, or orally in the presence of two or more witnesses during his last illness, expressed a request that his body be used for anatomical examination, provided that he has no reason to believe that the request was withdrawn<sup>3</sup>. Alternatively, such use may be authorised by the person lawfully in possession of the body if, having made such reasonable inquiry as may be practicable, he has no reason to believe that the deceased, either in writing at any time, or orally in the presence of two or more witnesses during his last illness, had expressed an objection to his body being so used which had not been withdrawn, or that any surviving spouse or relative objects to the body being so used<sup>4</sup>. The anatomical examination of a body in accordance with such an authority is deemed lawful<sup>5</sup>. Authority granted in accordance with these provisions expires at the end of the statutory period<sup>6</sup>. The Secretary of State may make regulations in relation to bodies subject to lawful anatomical examination, to secure their efficient and orderly examination and the decent subsequent disposal of the bodies and parts<sup>7</sup>.

A person who holds a licence to carry out anatomical examinations or to have possession of anatomical specimens<sup>8</sup> must ensure that: (1) a body undergoes a suitable process for preservation as soon as practicable after it is received at the place where the examination is to be carried out; (2) it is held in possession only for so long as the body remains adequately preserved; (3) all bodies are stored in an orderly and hygienic manner in suitably designed rooms equipped with adequate facilities for regulating temperatures; (4) where applicable<sup>9</sup> the authorised person carrying out the examination is adequately supervised; and (5) the disposal of the body and separated parts after examination, as far as practicable, is in accordance with the wishes of the deceased or of the surviving spouse or a surviving relative<sup>10</sup>.

1 'Body' means the body of a deceased person: Anatomy Act 1984 s 1(3). As from a day to be appointed, the Anatomy Act 1984 is repealed by the Human Tissue Act 2004 ss 57, 60, Sch 7 Pt 1. No authority may be given by a person entrusted with a body for the purpose only of its interment or cremation: s 4(7) (prospectively repealed). Authority in relation to a body lying in a hospital, nursing home or other institution may be given on behalf of the controller or manager by a designated officer or person: s 4(9) (prospectively repealed).

6 Ibid s 4(8) (prospectively repealed). 'Statutory period' means the period of three years (which may be altered by order of the Secretary of State) from the date of death: s 4(10), (11) (prospectively repealed). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

227. Licences.

The Secretary of State may grant a licence for the use of premises for carrying out anatomical examinations<sup>1</sup>; and licences may be granted to a person to carry out anatomical examinations and to have possession of anatomical specimens<sup>2</sup>. A person is authorised to carry out anatomical examinations or to have possession of an anatomical specimen if: (1) he holds such a licence<sup>3</sup>; or (2) in the case of examinations, he carries out such examinations in the course of teaching, studying or researching into morphology, and has general or particular permission to carry out such examinations from a licence holder<sup>4</sup>; or (3) in the case of possession of an anatomical specimen, he has general or particular permission to have such possession from a licence holder<sup>5</sup>. A person granted a licence under these provisions must compile such records regarding anatomical examinations and specimens, and retain them for such period, as may be specified by regulations made by the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup>.

Applications for licences must be made in such manner as the Secretary of State decides<sup>7</sup>, and licences may be granted to such persons, and regarding such premises, as he thinks suitable<sup>8</sup>, upon payment of such fee as he thinks fit<sup>9</sup>. Licences may be conditional<sup>10</sup>. Where an application for a licence is refused, the Secretary of State must take reasonable steps to notify the applicant, stating reasons for the refusal<sup>11</sup>. A licence is effective for such period as the Secretary of State stipulates when he grants it<sup>12</sup>. He may accept surrender of a licence at any time<sup>13</sup>, and may revoke a licence if he thinks it reasonable to do so<sup>14</sup>, but such revocation is ineffective unless he gives at least 28 days' written notice to the licence holder, stating the reasons for his decision<sup>15</sup>. A licence expires when the licence holder dies<sup>16</sup>.

228. Control of examinations and possession.

No person may carry out an anatomical examination<sup>1</sup> unless: (1) he carries it out on premises which are licensed at the time of the examination<sup>2</sup>; (2) he is authorised to carry it out<sup>3</sup>; (3) the examination is lawful<sup>4</sup>; and (4) the death has been registered<sup>5</sup> in relation to the body concerned<sup>6</sup>.

No person may have an anatomical specimen<sup>7</sup> in his possession unless: (a) he is authorised to have such possession<sup>8</sup>; (b) anatomical examination of the specimen is at the time of possession lawful<sup>9</sup>; and (c) a certificate of cause of death has been signed<sup>10</sup> in relation to the body concerned<sup>11</sup>. These restrictions on possession do not apply where a person comes into lawful possession of a body immediately after death and retains possession prior to its removal to a place for anatomical examination<sup>12</sup>.

229. Lawful possession after examination.

In expressing a request that his body be used after his death for anatomical examination<sup>1</sup>, a person may give permission for possession of any, or any specified, parts of his body to be held after its anatomical examination is concluded<sup>2</sup>. Where such permission is given, the person lawfully in possession of the body after death, in giving authority for the use of the body for anatomical examination<sup>3</sup>, may give authority for possession to be held in accordance with the permission, provided that he has no reason to believe that the permission was withdrawn<sup>4</sup>. Alternatively, the person lawfully in possession of a body, in authorising its use for anatomical examination in the absence of objections<sup>5</sup>, may give authority for possession of parts, or any specified parts, of the body to be held after its anatomical examination if, having made such reasonable inquiry as may be practicable, he has no reason to believe: (1) that the deceased, either in writing at any time, or orally in the presence of two or more witnesses during his last illness, expressed an objection to such possession being held which had not been withdrawn; or (2) that the surviving spouse or any surviving relative objects to such possession being held<sup>6</sup>. The possession of part of a body in accordance with such an authority is deemed lawful<sup>7</sup>. Parts of bodies the possession of which is lawful under these provisions must be stored in an orderly and hygienic manner in suitably designed rooms equipped with adequate facilities for regulating temperatures<sup>8</sup>. The Secretary of State may make regulations in relation to parts of bodies subject to such lawful possession to ensure that they are decently cared for<sup>9</sup>.

230. Control of possession after examination.

Subject to two exceptions<sup>1</sup>, no person may have a body or part of a body in his possession where authority to use the body for anatomical examination<sup>2</sup> has expired, or where the anatomical examination of a body has been concluded before the expiry of such authority<sup>3</sup>. However, a person may have such possession of a body or part of a body for the purpose only of its decent disposal<sup>4</sup>. Alternatively, a person may have such possession of a part of a body where<sup>5</sup>: (1) the possession is of a part of a body, the anatomical examination of which has been concluded before the expiry of authority<sup>6</sup> for such examination; (2) the part is such that the person from whose body it came cannot be recognised simply by examination of the part; (3) the person with possession is authorised to have such possession<sup>7</sup>; and (4) possession of the part is lawful<sup>8</sup>. If the Secretary of State thinks it desirable in the interests of education or research, he may grant a licence to a person to have possession of parts of bodies<sup>9</sup>. A person is authorised to have possession of a part of a body if, when he has such possession, he is licensed to do so, or he has general or particular permission to have such possession from a licence holder<sup>10</sup>. Licence holders must compile and retain such records in relation to parts of bodies as may be specified by regulations made by the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup>.

231. Inspectors.

The Secretary of State may appoint such persons as he thinks fit to be Her Majesty's Inspectors of Anatomy<sup>1</sup>. The functions of such inspectors are: (1) to advise the Secretary of State on the exercise of his functions; (2) for that purpose, to inspect premises in respect of which licences are sought; (3) for the same purpose, to examine applications for licences in order to ascertain the suitability of applicants; and (4) to inspect premises to ascertain whether certain offences have been, or are being, committed<sup>2</sup>.

An inspector authorised in writing by the Secretary of State may require the production of, and inspect and take copies of, any records which a person is required to retain<sup>3</sup>, and may enter and inspect licensed<sup>4</sup> premises if he has reasonable cause to believe that certain offences have been or are being committed and he is duly authorised in writing by the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>. Any information obtained by any person in pursuance of these provisions may not be disclosed, except in specified circumstances<sup>6</sup>.

- 251 (3) have possession of a body, or part of a body, in contravention of the statutory provisions<sup>3</sup>;

It is a defence for a person charged with any of the above offences to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid commission of the offence<sup>5</sup>.

Regulations<sup>6</sup> may provide that a person who without reasonable excuse contravenes any specified provision of the regulations, commits an offence<sup>7</sup>.

If a person carries out an anatomical examination or has possession of an anatomical specimen or body<sup>8</sup> or part, and the circumstances are such that he commits no offence under the above provisions (including regulations)<sup>9</sup>, then he is guilty of no other offence of carrying out such examination or having such possession<sup>10</sup>.

It is an offence for a person, without reasonable excuse, to:

- 253 (a) fail to compile and retain records relating to anatomical examinations and specimens<sup>11</sup>;
- 254 (b) compile such a record which he knows is false in a material particular<sup>12</sup>;
- 255 (c) alter such a record so that it becomes, to his knowledge, false in a material particular<sup>13</sup>;

- 257 (e) intentionally obstruct an inspector in the exercise of his powers<sup>15</sup>;
- 258 (f) disclose information contrary to the statutory restriction<sup>16</sup>.

Where an offence is committed by a body corporate and it is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer, or any person purporting to act in such capacity, that person is also guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>17</sup>.

A. INTRODUCTION

233. In general.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, the law relating to the removal, storage and use of human organs and tissue is to be regulated by the Human Tissue Act 2004, which will repeal and replace earlier legislation, including the Human Tissue Act 1961, the Anatomy Act 1984, the Corneal Tissue Act 1986 and the Human Organ Transplants Act 1989<sup>2</sup>.

The Human Tissue Act 2004 provides for the establishment of the Human Tissue Authority, which is to have regulatory and licensing functions<sup>3</sup>. The Act authorises certain activities relating to human bodies and body parts if they are carried out with consent<sup>4</sup>; and it imposes licensing requirements for certain activities<sup>5</sup>. Provision is also made for the de-accession of human remains<sup>6</sup>. The Act creates various offences<sup>7</sup>.

1 At the date at which this volume states the law, only certain provisions of the Human Tissue Act had been brought into force, and no day had been appointed for the commencement of the remaining provisions. As to the commencement of the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 234 post.

2 The Human Tissue Act 2004 repeals and revokes specified enactments and instruments (see s 57, Sch 7) and makes consequential amendments (see s 56, Sch 6). As to the earlier legislation see PARAS 225-232 ante.

234. The legislation.

The Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>1</sup>, when fully in force, will replace the earlier legislation<sup>2</sup>. Certain provisions of the Act<sup>3</sup> came into force on the day on which it was passed<sup>4</sup> but most of the provisions are to come into force on such day as the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> may appoint by order made by statutory instrument, and different days may be so appointed for different purposes<sup>6</sup>. The Act mainly extends to England, Wales and Northern Ireland<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the short title see the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 61.

2 See PARA 233 ante. As to the earlier legislation see PARAS 225-232 ante.

3 Ie the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 58(3)-(7) (see PARA 236 post) and ss 59-61.

4 Ibid s 60(1). The date on which the Human Tissue Act 2004 was passed (ie the date of royal assent) was 15 November 2004.

5 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

6 Human Tissue Act 2004 s 60(2). At the date at which this volume states the law, only certain provisions of the Human Tissue Act had been brought into force under s 60(2), and no day had been appointed for the commencement of the remaining provisions. Section 13 (see PARA 239 post), s 14 (see PARA 246 post), s 15 (see PARA 247 post), s 26 (see PARA 266 post), s 27 (see PARA 251 post), ss 28, 29 (see PARA 266 post), s 35 (see PARA 243 post), s 36 (see PARA 245 post), s 38 (see PARA 247 post), s 42 (see PARA 249 post), s 55 (see PARA 238 post), Sch 1 (see PARA 246 post), Sch 2 (see PARAS 239-241, 244, 247 post), Sch 6 para 6 came into force on 1 April 2005, as did ss 39, 40 (so far as they relate to s 14: see PARA 246 post), and ss 41, 52, 53, 54 (so far as relevant to the provisions brought into force by the Human Tissue Act 2004 (Commencement No 1) Order 2005, SI 2005/919): see art 3, Schedule. As to the general power to make orders under the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 235 post.

Before exercising the power under s 60(2) in relation to the coming into force in England and Wales of any provision of the Human Tissue Act 2004, except s 47 (see PARA 267 post), the Secretary of State must consult the National Assembly for Wales: s 60(3). Before exercising the power under s 60(2) in relation to the coming into force in Northern Ireland of any provision of the Human Tissue Act 2004, except s 47, the Secretary of State must consult the relevant Northern Ireland department: s 60(4). 'Relevant Northern Ireland department' means the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety: s 54(1). Before exercising the power under s 60(2) in relation to the coming into force in Scotland of any provision of the Human Tissue Act 2004, except s 47, the Secretary of State must consult the Scottish Ministers: s 60(5). As to the National Assembly for Wales and the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

No day may be appointed under s 60(2) for the coming into force of s 5 (see PARA 268 post) or s 8 (see PARA 269 post) which is earlier than the end of the period of three months beginning with the day on which the Human Tissue Authority first issues a code of practice dealing with the matters mentioned in s 26(2)(h) and s 26(2)(i) (see PARA 266 post): s 60(6). If the Authority first issues a code of practice dealing with one of the matters mentioned in s 60(6) before it first issues a code of practice dealing with the other, that provision has effect as if the three month period were one beginning with the later of the day on which the Authority first issues a code of practice dealing with the matter mentioned in s 26(2)(h) and the day on which the Authority first issues a code of practice dealing with the matter mentioned in s 26(2)(i): s 60(7). As to the establishment of the Human Tissue Authority see PARA 239 post.

7 See ibid s 59(1). The provisions of s 58(1), (2) (see PARA 272 notes 2, 8 post), s 58(5) (see PARA 236 post) and s 60(3) extend to England and Wales only: s 59(2). The provisions of s 51(1)-(3) (see PARA 272 post), s 58(6) (see PARA 236 post) and s 60(4) extend to Northern Ireland only: s 59(3). Certain provisions also extend to Scotland (see s 59(4)), and some extend to Scotland only (see s 59(5)). Subject to s 59(5), any amendment made by the Human Tissue Act 2004 has the same extent as the enactment to which it relates: s 59(6). Generally, any repeal or revocation made by this Act has the same extent as the enactment or instrument to which it relates (see s 59(7)), although certain repeals do not extend to Scotland (see s 59(8), (9)).

B. THE HUMAN TISSUE AUTHORITY

(A) CONSTITUTION AND PROCEDURE OF THE AUTHORITY

239. The Authority.

The Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>1</sup> provides that there is to be a body corporate known as the Human Tissue Authority<sup>2</sup>. The Authority is to consist of a chairman appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, such number of other members appointed by the Secretary of State as he thinks fit, a member appointed by the National Assembly for Wales<sup>4</sup>, and a member appointed by the relevant Northern Ireland department<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State must exercise his power to appoint members of the Authority to secure that at all times not less than half of the members are persons who do not have, and have not had, a professional interest in any of the kinds of activity within the remit of the Authority<sup>6</sup>.

A person is disqualified for being appointed as chairman of the Authority if he has, or has had, a professional interest in any of the kinds of activity within the remit of the Authority<sup>7</sup>. A person is disqualified for being appointed as chairman or other member of the Authority if: (1) he is the subject of a bankruptcy restrictions order or interim order<sup>8</sup>; (2) a bankruptcy order has been made against him by a court in Northern Ireland, his estate has been sequestrated by a court in Scotland or, under the law of Northern Ireland or Scotland, he has made a composition or arrangement with, or granted a trust deed for, his creditors<sup>9</sup>; or (3) in the last five years he has been convicted<sup>10</sup> in the United Kingdom<sup>11</sup>, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man of an offence and has had a qualifying sentence passed on him<sup>12</sup>.

The chairman and other members of the Authority hold and vacate office in accordance with the terms of their respective appointments<sup>13</sup>. The terms of appointment of the chairman and other members of the Authority are such as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>14</sup>; and appointment as chairman or other member is for a term not exceeding three years<sup>15</sup>. Previous service as chairman or other member of the Authority does not affect a person's eligibility for appointment to either office<sup>16</sup>. A person holding office as chairman or other member of the Authority ceases to hold that office if he ceases to be qualified for appointment to it<sup>17</sup>. A person may be removed from office as chairman or other member of the Authority by the person who appointed him if that person is satisfied that he has been absent from meetings of the Authority for six consecutive months, or longer, without the permission of the Authority, or that he is unable or unfit to carry out his functions as chairman or other member<sup>18</sup>. A person holding office as chairman or other member of the Authority may resign that office by giving notice in writing to the person who appointed him<sup>19</sup>.

The Authority may pay to the chairman or any of the other members of the Authority such remuneration as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>20</sup>. The Authority may pay, or make provision for paying, to or in respect of the chairman or any of the other members of the Authority such pensions, allowances, fees, expenses or gratuities as the Secretary of State may determine<sup>21</sup>. The Authority may make a payment to a person who ceases to hold office as chairman or other member of the Authority otherwise than on the expiry of his term of office if it appears to the Secretary of State that there are special circumstances which make it right for that person to receive compensation<sup>22</sup>.

The Authority may appoint such staff as it considers appropriate, on such terms and conditions as it may determine<sup>23</sup>.

The validity of any proceedings<sup>24</sup> of the Authority is not affected by: (a) any vacancy in the office of chairman, member appointed by the National Assembly for Wales, or member appointed by the relevant Northern Ireland department; (b) any defect in a person's appointment as chairman or other member; or (c) the composition for the time being of the membership of the Authority<sup>25</sup>.

The Authority must establish and maintain a system for the declaration and registration of private interests of its members and publish entries recorded in the register of members' interests<sup>26</sup>.

The Authority is not to be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown, or as enjoying any status, privilege or immunity of the Crown; and the property of the Authority is not to be regarded as property of, or property held on behalf of, the Crown<sup>27</sup>.

Any action taken by or on behalf of the Authority in the exercise of its administrative functions may be investigated by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration<sup>28</sup>. A member of the Authority is disqualified from membership of the House of Commons<sup>29</sup>.

260 (2) the use, for a scheduled purpose, of:

87

118. (a) the body of a deceased person; or

119. (b) relevant material which has come from a human body<sup>6</sup>;

261 (3) the storage of an anatomical specimen<sup>7</sup> or former anatomical specimen<sup>8</sup>;

262 (4) the storage (in any case not falling within head (3) above) of:

89

120. (a) the body of a deceased person; or

121. (b) relevant material which has come from a human body,

263 for use for a scheduled purpose<sup>9</sup>;

264 (5) the import<sup>10</sup> or export<sup>11</sup> of:

122. (a) the body of a deceased person; or

123. (b) relevant material which has come from a human body,

265 for use for a scheduled purpose<sup>12</sup>;

266 (6) the disposal of the body of a deceased person which has been:

93

124. (a) imported for use;

125. (b) stored for use; or

126. (c) used,

267 for a scheduled purpose<sup>13</sup>;

268 (7) the disposal of relevant material which:

95

127. (a) has been removed from a person's body for the purposes of his medical treatment;

128. (b) has been removed from the body of a deceased person for the purposes of an anatomical, or post mortem, examination;

129. (c) has been removed from a human body (otherwise than as mentioned in head (b) above) for use for a scheduled purpose;

130. (d) has come from a human body and been imported for use for a scheduled purpose; or

The activities within the remit of the Authority include<sup>15</sup>, in particular, the carrying out of an anatomical examination<sup>16</sup> and the making of a post mortem examination<sup>17</sup>. An activity is excluded from the remit of the Authority if it relates to the body of a person who died before the day on which these provisions come into force or to material which has come from the body of such a person, and at least one hundred years have elapsed since the date of the person's death<sup>18</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>19</sup> may by order add to the activities within the remit of the Authority<sup>20</sup>.

The following activities are excluded from heads (1) to (7) above:

- 269 (i) the use of the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body, for the purpose of public display<sup>25</sup> at a place of public religious worship or at a place associated<sup>26</sup> with such a place<sup>27</sup>; and
- 270 (ii) the storage of the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body, for use for the purpose mentioned in head (i) above<sup>28</sup>,

The Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>1</sup> provides that the Human Tissue Authority<sup>2</sup> may, if it thinks it appropriate to do so, provide assistance to any other public authority in the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup> for the purpose of the exercise by that authority of its functions<sup>4</sup>. Such assistance may be provided on such terms, including terms as to payment, as the Authority thinks fit<sup>5</sup>.

C. AUTHORISATION OF ACTIVITIES

250. Activities lawful if done with consent.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, the Human Tissue Act 2004 provides that certain activities undertaken for scheduled purposes require consent<sup>2</sup>. The 'scheduled purposes' are:

- 279 (1) anatomical examination<sup>3</sup>;
- 280 (2) determining the cause of death<sup>4</sup>;
- 281 (3) establishing after a person's death the efficacy of any drug or other treatment administered to him<sup>5</sup>;
- 282 (4) obtaining scientific or medical information about a living or deceased person which may be relevant to any other person (including a future person)<sup>6</sup>;
- 283 (5) public display<sup>7</sup>;
- 284 (6) research in connection with disorders, or the functioning, of the human body<sup>8</sup>;
- 285 (7) transplantation<sup>9</sup>;
- 286 (8) clinical audit<sup>10</sup>;
- 287 (9) education or training relating to human health<sup>11</sup>;
- 288 (10) performance assessment<sup>12</sup>;
- 289 (11) public health monitoring<sup>13</sup>; and
- 290 (12) quality assurance<sup>14</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>15</sup> may by order vary, omit or add to any of the purposes in heads (1) to (12) above<sup>16</sup>.

- 291 (a) the storage of the body of a deceased person for use for a purpose specified in heads (2) to (12) above<sup>19</sup>;
- 292 (b) the use of the body of a deceased person for a purpose specified in heads (2) to (12) above<sup>20</sup>;
- 293 (c) the removal from the body of a deceased person for use for a purpose specified in heads (1) to (12) above of any relevant material of which the body consists or which it contains<sup>21</sup>;
- 294 (d) the storage for use for a purpose specified in heads (1) to (7) above of any relevant material which has come from a human body<sup>22</sup>;
- 295 (e) the storage for use for a purpose specified in heads (8) to (12) above of any relevant material which has come from the body of a deceased person<sup>23</sup>;
- 296 (f) the use for a purpose specified in heads (1) to (7) above of any relevant material which has come from a human body<sup>24</sup>;
- 297 (g) the use for a purpose specified in heads (8) to (12) above of any relevant material which has come from the body of a deceased person<sup>25</sup>.

The storage of the body of a deceased person for use for the purpose of anatomical examination is lawful if done with appropriate consent<sup>26</sup> and after the signing of a certificate of the cause of death of the person<sup>27</sup>. The use of the body of a deceased person for the purpose of anatomical examination is lawful if done with appropriate consent<sup>28</sup> and after the death of the person has been registered<sup>29</sup>.

The provisions described above<sup>30</sup> do not apply to an activity of a kind mentioned above if it is done in relation to: (i) a body which has been imported<sup>31</sup> or is the body of a person who died before the day on which these provisions come into force and at least one hundred years have elapsed since the date of the person's death<sup>32</sup>; or (ii) relevant material which has been imported or which has come from a body which has been imported, or which is material which has come from the body of a person who died before the day on which these provisions come into force and at least one hundred years have elapsed since the date of the person's death<sup>33</sup>. Head (d) above does not apply to the storage of relevant material for use for the purpose of research in connection with disorders or the functioning of the human body if the material has come from the body of a living person and the research is ethically approved in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State<sup>34</sup> and is to be, or is, carried out in circumstances such that the person carrying it out is not in possession, and not likely to come into possession, of information from which the person from whose body the material has come can be identified<sup>35</sup>. Head (f) above does not apply to the use of relevant material for the purpose of research in connection with disorders or the functioning of the human body if the material has come from the body of a living person and the research is ethically approved in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State and is to be, or is, carried out in circumstances such that the person carrying it out is not in possession, and not likely to come into possession, of information from which the person from whose body the material has come can be identified<sup>36</sup>. The storage for use for a purpose specified in heads (8) to (12) above of any relevant material which has come from the body of a living person, the use for such a purpose of any relevant material which has come from the body of a living person, and an activity in relation to which these provisions<sup>37</sup> have effect, are all lawful activities<sup>38</sup>.

Nothing in Part 1 of the Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>39</sup> applies to anything done for purposes of functions of a coroner or under the authority of a coroner<sup>40</sup>. Where a person knows, or has reason to believe, that the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from the body of a deceased person, is, or may be, required for purposes of functions of a coroner, he must not act on authority under the above provisions<sup>41</sup> in relation to the body, or material, except with the consent of the coroner<sup>42</sup>.

Where part of a body<sup>43</sup> lying in a hospital, nursing home or other institution is or may be suitable for use for transplantation, it is lawful for the person having the control and management of the institution<sup>44</sup> to take steps for the purpose of preserving the part for use for transplantation<sup>45</sup> and to retain the body for that purpose<sup>46</sup>. However, such authority ceases to apply once it has been established that consent making removal of the part for transplantation lawful has not been, and will not be, given<sup>47</sup>. An activity done with authority under these provisions is treated as not being an activity within heads (1) to (7) above<sup>48</sup>.

It is lawful for: (A) material which consists of or includes human cells and which has come from a person's body in the course of his receiving medical treatment, undergoing diagnostic testing, or participating in research<sup>49</sup>; and (B) relevant material which has come from a human body, and ceases to be used, or stored for use, for a purpose specified in heads (1) to (12) above,<sup>50</sup> to be dealt with as waste<sup>51</sup>.

251. Appropriate consent.

In relation to an activity involving the body, or material from the body<sup>3</sup>, of a person who is an adult<sup>4</sup> or has died an adult ('the person concerned')<sup>5</sup>:

- 298 (1) where the person concerned is alive, 'appropriate consent' means his consent<sup>6</sup>;
- 299 (2) where the person concerned has died and the activity is one involving storage for use, or use, for the purpose of public display<sup>7</sup> or, where the subject matter of the activity is not excepted material<sup>8</sup>, anatomical examination, 'appropriate consent' means his consent in writing<sup>9</sup>;
- 300 (3) where the person concerned has died and the activity is not one involving storage for use, or use, for the purpose of public display or, where the subject matter of the activity is not excepted material, anatomical examination, 'appropriate consent' means: (a) if a decision of his to consent to the activity, or a decision of his not to consent to it, was in force immediately before he died, his consent<sup>10</sup>; (b) if head (a) above does not apply and he has appointed a person or persons<sup>11</sup> to deal after his death with the issue of consent in relation to the activity, consent given under the appointment<sup>12</sup>; (c) if neither head (a) nor head (b) above applies, the consent of a person who stood in a qualifying relationship<sup>13</sup> to him immediately before he died<sup>14</sup>.

In relation to an activity involving the body, or material from the body, of a person who is a child<sup>16</sup> or has died a child ('the child concerned')<sup>17</sup>:

- 301 (i) where the child concerned is alive, 'appropriate consent' means his consent<sup>18</sup>, although, where:
  - 97 132. (A) neither a decision of his to consent to the activity, nor a decision of his not to consent to it, is in force; and
  - 133. (B) either he is not competent to deal with the issue of consent in relation to the activity or, though he is competent to deal with that issue, he fails to do so,
- 98 302 'appropriate consent' means the consent of a person who has parental responsibility<sup>19</sup> for him<sup>20</sup>;
- 303 (ii) where the child concerned has died and the activity is one involving storage for use, or use, for the purpose of public display or, where the subject matter of the activity is not excepted material, anatomical examination, 'appropriate consent' means his consent in writing<sup>21</sup>;
- 304 (iii) where the child concerned has died and the activity is not one involving storage for use, or use, for the purpose of public display or, where the subject matter of the activity is not excepted material, anatomical examination, 'appropriate consent' means: (A) if a decision of his to consent to the activity, or a decision of his not to consent to it, was in force immediately before he died, his consent<sup>22</sup>; (B) if head (A) above does not apply, the consent of a person who had parental responsibility for him immediately before he died<sup>23</sup>; or (C) if head (A) above does not apply and no person had parental responsibility for him immediately before he died, the consent of a person who stood in a qualifying relationship to him at that time<sup>24</sup>.

The Human Tissue Act 2004 provides that the duty of the Human Tissue Authority<sup>25</sup> to prepare and issue codes of practice dealing with the removal from a human body for use for a scheduled purpose<sup>26</sup> of any relevant material of which the body consists or which it contains<sup>27</sup>, and with the storage for use for a scheduled purpose, and the use for such a purpose, of the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body<sup>28</sup>, is to have effect, in particular, to require the Authority to lay down the standards expected in relation to the obtaining of consent where consent falls by virtue of head (3)(c) or head (iii)(c) above to be obtained from a person in a qualifying relationship<sup>29</sup>. The standards required to be laid down<sup>30</sup> must include provision to the effect set out below<sup>31</sup>.

The qualifying relationships for the purpose of heads (3)(c) and (iii)(c) above are to be ranked in the following order:

- 305 (aa) spouse or partner;
- 306 (bb) parent or child;
- 307 (cc) brother or sister;
- 308 (dd) grandparent or grandchild;
- 309 (ee) child of a person falling within head (cc) above;
- 310 (ff) stepfather or stepmother;
- 311 (gg) half-brother or half-sister;
- 312 (hh) friend of longstanding<sup>32</sup>.

Relationships in the same head above are to be accorded equal ranking<sup>33</sup>. Consent is to be obtained from the person whose relationship to the person concerned is accorded the highest ranking in accordance with these provisions<sup>34</sup>. If the relationship of each of two or more persons to the person concerned is accorded equal highest ranking, it is sufficient to obtain the consent of any of them<sup>35</sup>. In applying these principles, a person's relationship is to be left out of account if he does not wish to deal with the issue of consent, if he is not able to deal with that issue, or if, having regard to the activity in relation to which consent is sought, it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with him within the time available if consent in relation to the activity is to be acted on<sup>36</sup>.

At the date at which this volume states the law, s 27 had been brought into force; ss 2, 3, 12 were not yet in force; and s 54 was only in force for certain purposes: see the Human Tissue Act 2004 (Commencement No 1) Order 2005, SI 2005/919, art 3, Schedule. For the meaning of 'anatomical examination' see PARA 246 note 7 ante.

9 See ibid s 3(3), (4). If it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with a person appointed under s 4 within the time available if consent in relation to the activity is to be acted on, he is to be treated for the purposes of s 3(7) as not able to give consent under the appointment in relation to it: s 3(8).

UPDATE

250-265 Activities lawful if done with consent ... Existing holdings and anatomical specimens

All provisions of Human Tissue Act 2004 now in force: see PARA 234 NOTE 6.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(6) HUMAN TISSUE, TRANSPLANTS AND THE PRACTICE OF ANATOMY/(iii) The Human Tissue Act 2004/C. AUTHORISATION OF ACTIVITIES/254. Existing holdings and anatomical specimens.

254. Existing holdings and anatomical specimens.

Special provisions apply in relation to existing anatomical specimens<sup>6</sup> where a person has died during the three years immediately preceding the coming into force of the provision requiring consent<sup>7</sup>.

2 I.e. the requirement in ibid s 1(1): see PARA 250 ante. As to appropriate consent see PARA 251 ante.

3 'Existing holding' means the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body, held, immediately before the day on which ibid s 1(1) comes into force, for use for a purpose specified in Sch 1 (see PARA 250 ante): s 9(4).

4 For the meaning of 'scheduled purpose' see PARA 250 ante.

5 See the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 9(1). This provision does not apply where the existing holding is a body, or separated part of a body, in relation to which s 10(3) or (5) (see note 7 infra) has effect: s 9(2). The provisions of s 5(1), (2) (see PARA 268 post) have effect as if the activities mentioned in s 9(1) were not activities to which s 1(1) applies: s 9(3).

6 For the meaning of 'anatomical specimen' see PARA 246 note 7 ante.

7 Human Tissue Act 2004 s 10(1). As to the provision requiring consent see s 1; and PARA 250 ante.

Where, before s 1 comes into force, authority is given under the Anatomy Act 1984 s 4(2) or (3) (prospectively repealed) (see PARA 226 ante) for the person's body to be used for anatomical examination and the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 1 comes into force before anatomical examination of the person's body is concluded, that authority is to be treated for the purposes of s 1, during so much of the relevant period as falls after s 1 comes into force, as appropriate consent in relation to: (1) the storage of the person's body, or separated parts of his body, for use for the purpose of anatomical examination; and (2) the use of his body, or separated parts of his body, for that purpose: see s 10(2), (3). For the purposes of s 10(3), 'the relevant period', in relation to a person, means whichever is the shorter of: (a) the period of three years beginning with the date of the person's death; and (b) the period beginning with that date and ending when anatomical examination of the person's body is concluded: s 10(7). For the meaning of 'anatomical examination' see PARA 246 note 7 ante.

Where, before s 1 comes into force, authority is given under the Anatomy Act 1984 s 6(2) or (3) (prospectively repealed) (see PARA 229 ante) for possession of parts (or any specified parts) of the person's body to be held after anatomical examination of his body is concluded, and anatomical examination of the person's body is concluded after the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 1 comes into force but before the end of the period of three years beginning with the date of the person's death, that authority is treated for the purposes of s 1, with effect from the conclusion of the anatomical examination of the person's body, as appropriate consent in relation to: (i) the storage for use for a qualifying purpose of a part of the person's body which is a part to which that authority relates and is such that the person cannot be recognised simply by examination of the part; and (ii) the use for a qualifying purpose of such a part of the person's body: see s 10(4), (5). For the purposes of s 10(5), 'qualifying purpose' means a purpose specified in Sch 1 para 6 (see PARA 250 head (6) ante) or Sch 1 para 9 (see PARA 250 head (9) ante): s 10(8). The Secretary of State may by order amend s 10(8): s 10(9). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. As to the general power to make orders under the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 235 ante. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

Where for the purposes of s 1 there would not be appropriate consent in relation to an activity but for authority given under the Anatomy Act 1984 being treated for those purposes as appropriate consent in relation to the activity, the provisions of the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 1(1)-(3) do not authorise the doing of the activity otherwise than in accordance with that authority: s 10(6).

D. LICENSING

(A) THE LICENCE

255. Licence requirement.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, no person is to do an activity listed below otherwise than under the authority of a licence<sup>2</sup>. The activities are<sup>3</sup>:

- 315 (1) the carrying out of an anatomical examination<sup>4</sup>;
- 316 (2) the making of a post mortem examination<sup>5</sup>;
- 317 (3) the removal from the body of a deceased person (otherwise than in the course of an activity mentioned in head (1) or head (2) above) of relevant material of which the body consists or which it contains, for use for a scheduled purpose other than transplantation<sup>6</sup>;
- 318 (4) the storage of an anatomical specimen<sup>7</sup>;
- 319 (5) the storage (in any case not falling within head (4) above) of: (a) the body of a deceased person; or (b) relevant material which has come from a human body, for use for a scheduled purpose<sup>8</sup>;
- 320 (6) the use, for the purpose of public display<sup>9</sup>, of the body of a deceased person or relevant material which has come from the body of a deceased person<sup>10</sup>.

Where part of a body<sup>11</sup> lying in a hospital, nursing home or other institution is or may be suitable for use for transplantation, it is lawful for the person having the control and management of the institution<sup>12</sup> to take steps for the purpose of preserving the part for use for transplantation<sup>13</sup> and to retain the body for that purpose<sup>14</sup>. However, such authority ceases to apply once it has been established that consent making removal of the part for transplantation lawful has not been, and will not be, given<sup>15</sup>. An activity done with authority under these provisions is treated as not being an activity within heads (1) to (6) above<sup>16</sup>.

The following activities are excluded from heads (1) to (6) above:

- 321 (i) the use of the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body, for the purpose of public display at a place of public religious worship or at a place associated with such a place<sup>21</sup>; and
- 322 (ii) the storage of the body of a deceased person, or relevant material which has come from a human body, for use for the purpose mentioned in head (i) above<sup>22</sup>, if there is a connection between the body or material to which the activity relates, and the religious worship which takes place at the place of public religious worship concerned<sup>23</sup>.

As to the breach of a licence requirement see s 25; and PARA 270 post.

It is lawful for: (1) any material which consists of or includes human cells and which has come from a person's body in the course of his receiving medical treatment, undergoing diagnostic testing, or participating in research; (b) any relevant material which has come from a human body and ceases to be used, or stored for use, for a scheduled purpose, to be dealt with as waste: s 44(1)-(3). Section 44 must not be read as making unlawful anything which is otherwise lawful: see s 44(4). As to the meaning of 'material from a human body' see PARA 246 note 4 ante. An activity is excluded from heads (1)-(6) in the text if it relates to the body of a person who died before the day on which s 16 comes into force or to material which has come from the body of such a person, and at least one hundred years have elapsed since the date of the person's death: s 16(4).

8 Ibid s 16(2)(e). The Secretary of State may by regulations specify circumstances in which storage of relevant material by a person who intends to use it for a scheduled purpose is excepted from head (5)(b) in the text: s 16(3). It is to be a condition of a licence authorising the storage of anatomical specimens that<sup>12</sup>:

- 334 (a) storage at the premises specified in the licence of the body of a deceased person for use for the purpose of anatomical examination<sup>13</sup> is not to begin before that body's storage there for use for that purpose has been authorised in writing by the designated individual or an individual who has the Authority's permission to give such authorisation<sup>14</sup>;

The provisions of Sch 3 para 12 apply to a licence authorising the storage of anatomical specimens: Sch 3 para 12(1). The reference to the Authority's permission in the condition of the licence required by Sch 3 para 3(2) ('the authorisation condition') is a reference to:

Where the Authority has reasonable grounds to suspect that there are grounds for revoking permission granted to an individual for the purposes of the authorisation condition and is of the opinion that the permission should immediately be suspended, it may by notice suspend the permission for such period not exceeding three months as may be specified in the notice: Sch 3 para 12(11). The Authority may continue suspension under Sch 3 para 12(11) by giving a further notice under that provision: Sch 3 para 12(12). ### 263. Reconsideration of licensing decisions.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, if:

- 359 (1) an application for the grant, revocation or variation of a licence<sup>2</sup> is refused, the applicant may require the Human Tissue Authority to reconsider the decision<sup>3</sup>;
- 360 (2) a licence is revoked or varied, otherwise than on application by the holder of the licence or the designated individual<sup>4</sup>, the holder of the licence or the designated individual may require the Authority to reconsider the decision<sup>5</sup>;
- 361 (3) an application for the grant, or revocation, of permission for the purposes of an authorisation condition<sup>6</sup> is refused, the applicant may require the Authority to reconsider the decision<sup>7</sup>;
- 362 (4) permission for the purposes of an authorisation condition is revoked where the Authority ceases to be satisfied that the individual is a suitable person to give authorisation under that condition<sup>8</sup>, any of: (a) the individual concerned; (b) the holder of the licence; and (c) the designated individual, may require the Authority to reconsider the decision<sup>9</sup>.

Heads (1) to (4) above<sup>10</sup> do not apply to a decision on reconsideration<sup>11</sup>. Reconsideration is to be by way of fresh decision<sup>12</sup>. On reconsideration:

- 363 (i) the person by whom reconsideration is required ('the appellant') is entitled to require that he or his representative be given an opportunity to appear before and be heard by the appeals committee dealing with the matter<sup>13</sup>;
- 364 (ii) at any meeting at which such an opportunity is given, the person who made the decision which is the subject of reconsideration is entitled to appear and be heard in person or by a representative<sup>14</sup>; and
- 365 (iii) the appeals committee dealing with the matter must consider any written representations received from the appellant or the person who made the decision which is the subject of reconsideration<sup>15</sup>.

The appeals committee by which a decision is reconsidered<sup>16</sup> must give the appellant notice of its decision<sup>17</sup>. If on reconsideration an appeals committee upholds the previous decision, the notice given to the appellant<sup>18</sup> is to include a statement of the reasons for the appeals committee's decision<sup>19</sup>.

Where reconsideration of a decision is required under head (2) or head (4) above<sup>20</sup> by only one of two persons by whom it could have been required or is required under head (4) above by only one or two of three persons by whom it could have been required, it is to be treated<sup>21</sup> as required by both or (as the case may be) all of them<sup>22</sup>.

A person aggrieved by a decision on reconsideration<sup>23</sup> may appeal to the High Court on a point of law<sup>24</sup>.

The Authority may by regulations make such other provision about procedure in relation to reconsideration as it thinks fit<sup>25</sup>.

264. Changes of licence circumstance.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, directions made by the Human Tissue Authority<sup>2</sup> may make provision for the purpose of dealing with a situation arising in consequence of:

- 366 (1) the variation of a licence<sup>3</sup>; or
- 367 (2) a licence ceasing to have effect<sup>4</sup>.

Directions under head (1) above may impose requirements on:

- 368 (a) the holder of the licence<sup>5</sup>;
- 369 (b) a person who is the designated individual<sup>6</sup> immediately before, or immediately after, the variation<sup>7</sup>;
- 370 (c) any other person, if he consents<sup>8</sup>.

Directions under head (2) above may impose requirements on:

- 371 (i) the person who is the holder of the licence immediately before the licence ceases to have effect<sup>9</sup>;
- 372 (ii) the person who is the designated individual at that time<sup>10</sup>;
- 373 (iii) any other person, if he consents<sup>11</sup>.

Directions may, in particular, require anything kept, or information held, in pursuance of the licence to be transferred in accordance with the directions<sup>12</sup>. Where a licence has ceased to have effect by reason of the death or dissolution of its holder, anything subsequently done by a person before directions are given is, if the licence would have been authority for doing it, to be treated as authorised by a licence<sup>13</sup>.

250-265 Activities lawful if done with consent ... Existing holdings and anatomical specimens

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(6) HUMAN TISSUE, TRANSPLANTS AND THE PRACTICE OF ANATOMY/(iii) The Human Tissue Act 2004/D. LICENSING/(B) Conduct of Licensed Activities/266. Codes of practice.

266. Codes of practice.

The Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>1</sup> provides that the Human Tissue Authority<sup>2</sup> may prepare and issue codes of practice<sup>3</sup> for the purpose of giving practical guidance to persons carrying on activities within its remit<sup>4</sup> and for the purpose of laying down the standards expected in relation to the carrying on of such activities<sup>5</sup>. In preparing and issuing such codes of practice, the Authority must deal with the following matters:

- 374 (1) the carrying out of anatomical examinations<sup>6</sup>;
- 375 (2) the storage of anatomical specimens<sup>7</sup>;
- 376 (3) the storage and disposal of former anatomical specimens<sup>8</sup>;
- 377 (4) the definition of death for the purposes of this Act<sup>9</sup>;
- 378 (5) communication with the family of the deceased in relation to the making of a post mortem examination<sup>10</sup>;
- 379 (6) the making of post mortem examinations<sup>11</sup>;
- 380 (7) communication with the family of the deceased in relation to the removal from the body of the deceased, for use for a scheduled purpose, of any relevant material of which the body consists or which it contains<sup>12</sup>;
- 381 (8) the removal from a human body, for use for a scheduled purpose, of any relevant material of which the body consists or which it contains<sup>13</sup>;
- 382 (9) the storage for use for a scheduled purpose, and the use for such a purpose, of the body of a deceased person or relevant material which has come from a human body<sup>14</sup>;
- 383 (10) the storage for use for a scheduled purpose, and the use for such a purpose, of an existing holding<sup>15</sup>;
- 384 (11) the import<sup>16</sup> and the export<sup>17</sup> of the body of a deceased person or relevant material which has come from a human body, for use for a scheduled purpose<sup>18</sup>;
- 385 (12) the disposal of relevant material which has been removed from a human body for use for a scheduled purpose or which has come from a human body and is an existing holding<sup>19</sup>.

In dealing with the matters mentioned in heads (8) and (9) above, the Authority must, in particular, deal with consent<sup>20</sup>.

The Authority may not issue a code of practice that deals with a matter mentioned in any of heads (1) to (3) and heads (5) to (10) above unless a draft of it has been sent to and approved by the Secretary of State<sup>21</sup> and laid by him before both Houses of Parliament, and the 40 day period<sup>22</sup> has elapsed without either House resolving not to approve the draft<sup>23</sup>. If the Secretary of State does not approve a draft sent to him he must give his reasons to the Authority<sup>24</sup>.

The Authority must publish a code of practice in such a way as, in its opinion, is likely to bring it to the attention of those interested<sup>25</sup>. A code of practice is to come into effect on such day as may be appointed by directions<sup>26</sup>.

A failure on the part of any person to observe any provision of a code of practice will not of itself render the person liable to any proceedings<sup>27</sup>. However, the Authority may, in carrying out its functions with respect to licences<sup>28</sup>, take into account any relevant observance of, or failure to observe, a code of practice, so far as dealing with a matter mentioned in any of heads (1) to (3) and heads (5) to (10) above<sup>29</sup>.

- 1 As to the commencement of the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 234 ante.
- 2 As to the establishment of the Human Tissue Authority see PARA 239 ante.
- 3 The Authority must keep any code of practice under the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 26 under review and prepare a revised code of practice when appropriate: s 26(4). Before preparing a code of practice, the Authority must:
  - 59 (1) consult such persons as it considers appropriate (s 26(5)(a));
  - 60 (2) if the code of practice relates to Wales, consult the National Assembly for Wales (s 26(5)(b)); and
  - 61 (3) if the code of practice relates to Northern Ireland, consult the relevant Northern Ireland department (s 26(5)(c)).

As to the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. For the meaning of 'relevant Northern Ireland department' see PARA 234 note 4 ante. - 142. (2) seeks to find a person willing to supply any controlled material for reward<sup>3</sup>;
- 143. (3) offers to supply any controlled material for reward<sup>4</sup>;
- 144. (4) initiates or negotiates any arrangement involving the giving of a reward for the supply of, or for an offer to supply, any controlled material<sup>5</sup>;
- 145. (5) takes part in the management or control of a body of persons corporate or unincorporate whose activities consist of or include the initiation or negotiation of such arrangements<sup>6</sup>.

Without prejudice to heads (2) and (3) above, a person commits an offence if he causes to be published or distributed, or knowingly publishes or distributes, an advertisement<sup>7</sup>, inviting persons to supply, or offering to supply, any controlled material for reward, or indicating that the advertiser is willing to initiate or negotiate any such arrangement as is mentioned in head (4) above<sup>8</sup>.

A person who engages in an activity to which the provisions described above apply does not commit an offence if he is designated by the Human Tissue Authority<sup>9</sup> as a person who may lawfully engage in the activity<sup>10</sup>.

1 At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the commencement of the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 234 ante.

2 Ibid s 32(1)(a). For the purposes of s 32, 'reward' means any description of financial or other material advantage: s 32(11). For the purposes of s 32(1), (2), payment in money or money's worth to the holder of a licence is treated as not being a reward where it is in consideration for transporting, removing, preparing, preserving or storing controlled material, and its receipt by the holder of the licence is not expressly prohibited by the terms of the licence: s 32(6). For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 248 note 6 ante. References in s 32(1), (2) to reward, in relation to the supply of any controlled material, do not include payment in money or money's worth for defraying or reimbursing:

- 62 (1) any expenses incurred in, or in connection with, transporting, removing, preparing, preserving or storing the material (s 32(7)(c));
- 63 (2) any liability incurred in respect of expenses incurred by a third party in, or in connection with, any of the activities mentioned in head (1) supra, or a payment in relation to which s 32(6) has effect (s 32(7)(b)); or
- 64 (3) any expenses or loss of earnings incurred by the person from whose body the material comes so far as reasonably and directly attributable to his supplying the material from his body (s 32(7)(c)).

For the purposes of s 32, controlled material is any material which: (a) consists of or includes human cells; (b) is, or is intended to be removed, from a human body; (c) is intended to be used for the purpose of transplantation; and (d) is not of a kind excepted under s 32(9): s 32(8). For the purposes of s 32, where the body of a deceased person is intended to be used to provide material which consists of or includes human cells and is not of a kind excepted under s 32(9), for use for the purpose of transplantation, the body is to be treated as controlled material: s 32(10). The following kinds of material are excepted: (i) gametes; (ii) embryos; and (iii) material which is the subject of property because of an application of human skill: s 32(9). As to the meaning of 'gametes' see PARA 278 note 5 post; and for the meaning of 'embryo' see PARA 278 note 2 post (definitions applied by s 54(6)). For the meaning of 'transplantation' see PARA 246 note 4 ante.

A person guilty of an offence under s 32(1) is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both or, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to a fine or to both: s 32(4). In relation to an offence committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) (general limit on magistrates' courts power to impose imprisonment), the reference to 12 months is to be read as a reference to 6 months: see the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 58(1). At the date at which this volume states the law no day had been appointed for the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1). In relation to Northern Ireland, a reference to 6 months is substituted for the reference to 12 months: see the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 51(1), (3). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 208 note 14 ante.

4 Ibid s 32(1)(c). See note 2 supra.

5 Ibid s 32(1)(d). See note 2 supra.

6 Ibid s 32(1)(e). See note 2 supra.

7 For the purposes of ibid s 32, 'advertisement' includes any form of advertising whether to the public generally, to any section of the public or individually to selected persons: s 32(11).

8 Ibid s 32(2). A person guilty of an offence under s 32(2) is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 51 weeks or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both: s 32(5). In relation to an offence committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(5) (alteration of penalties), the reference to 51 weeks is to be read as a reference to 6 months: see the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 58(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no day had been appointed for the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(5). In relation to Northern Ireland, a reference to 6 months is substituted for the reference to 51 weeks: see the Human Tissue Act 2004 s 51(1), (2). As to the standard scale see PARA 185 note 11 ante.

274. Non-consensual analysis of DNA.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, a person commits an offence if: (1) he has any bodily material<sup>2</sup>, intending that any human DNA in the material be analysed without qualifying consent<sup>3</sup> and that the results of the analysis be used otherwise than for an excepted purpose<sup>4</sup>; (2) the material is not of a kind excepted<sup>5</sup>; and (3) he does not reasonably believe the material to be of a kind so excepted<sup>6</sup>.

1 At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the commencement of the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 234 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'bodily material' means material which has come from a human body and consists of or includes human cells: ibid s 45(5). As to the meaning of 'material from a human body' see PARA 246 note 4 ante.

3 Provision is made for the interpretation of 'qualifying consent' for these purposes: see ibid s 45(4), Sch 4 Pt 1 para 1. In relation to analysis of DNA manufactured by the body of a person who:

- 65 (1) is alive, 'qualifying consent' means his consent, except that where: (a) the person is a child; (b) neither a decision of his to consent, nor a decision of his not to consent, is in force; and (c) either he is not competent to deal with the issue of consent, or though he is competent to deal with that issue, he fails to do so, 'qualifying consent' means the consent of a person who has parental responsibility for him (Sch 4 Pt 1 para 2(1), (2));
- 66 (2) has died an adult, 'qualifying consent' means: (a) if a decision of his to consent, or a decision of his not to consent, was in force immediately before he died, his consent; (b) if head (2)(a) supra does not apply, the consent of a person who stood in a qualifying relationship to him immediately before he died (Sch 4 Pt 1 para 2(3));
- 67 (3) has died a child, 'qualifying consent' means: (a) if a decision of his to consent, or a decision of his not to consent, was in force immediately before he died, his consent; (b) if head (3)(a) supra does not apply, the consent of a person who had parental responsibility for him immediately before he died, or where no person had parental responsibility for him immediately before he died, the consent of a person who stood in a qualifying relationship to him at that time (Sch 4 Pt 1 para 2(4)).

For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 251 note 16 ante. For the meaning of 'parental responsibility' see PARA 251 note 19 ante. For the meaning of 'adult' see PARA 251 note 4 ante. As to the meaning of 'qualifying relationship' see PARA 251 note 13 ante.

As to the application of the definition of 'qualifying consent' in relation to Scotland see Sch 4 Pt 1 para 3.

4 Provision is made for the interpretation of 'use for an excepted purpose': see ibid Sch 4 Pt 2 para 4.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for any of the following purposes is use for an excepted purpose:

- 68 (1) the medical diagnosis or treatment of the person whose body manufactured the DNA (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(a));
- 69 (2) purposes of functions of a coroner (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(b));
- 70 (3) purposes of functions of a procurator fiscal in connection with the investigation of deaths (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(c));
- 71 (4) the prevention or detection of crime (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(d));
- 72 (5) the conduct of a prosecution (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(e));

73 (6) purposes of national security (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(f));

74 (7) implementing an order or direction of a court or tribunal, including one outside the United Kingdom (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(1)(g)).

For the purposes of head (4) supra, detecting crime is taken to include establishing by whom, for what purpose, by what means and generally in what circumstances any crime was committed, and the apprehension of the person by whom any crime was committed; and the reference in head (4) supra to the detection of crime includes any detection outside the United Kingdom of any crime or suspected crime: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(2). In head (5) supra, the reference to a prosecution includes a prosecution brought in respect of a crime in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(3). For the purposes of Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5, a reference to a crime includes a reference to any conduct which constitutes one or more criminal offences (whether under the law of a part of the United Kingdom or a country or territory outside the United Kingdom), or which is, or corresponds to, conduct which, if it all took place in any one part of the United Kingdom, would constitute one or more criminal offences, or which constitutes one or more offences of a kind triable by court-martial under the Army Act 1955, the Air Force Act 1955 or the Naval Discipline Act 1957: Human Tissue Act 2004 Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(4). Head (7) supra is not to be taken to confer any power to make orders or give directions: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5(5). As to coroners see CORONERS. As to courts-martial see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 448 et seq. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 3 ante.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for any the purpose of research in connection with disorders, or the functioning, of the human body is use for an excepted purpose if the bodily material concerned is the subject of an order under Sch 4 Pt 2 para 6(2): Sch 4 Pt 2 para 6(1). The Secretary of State may by regulations specify circumstances in which the High Court or the Court of Session may order that Sch 4 Pt 2 para 6(1) is to apply to bodily material: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 6(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. As to the general power to make regulations under the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 235 ante. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for any of the following purposes is use for an excepted purpose if the bodily material concerned is an existing holding:

75 (a) clinical audit (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(a));

76 (b) determining the cause of death (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(b));

77 (c) education or training relating to human health (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(c));

78 (d) establishing after a person's death the efficacy of any drug or other treatment administered to him (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(d));

79 (e) obtaining scientific or medical information about a living or deceased person which may be relevant to any other person (including a future person) (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(e));

80 (f) performance assessment (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(f));

81 (g) public health monitoring (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(g));

82 (h) quality assurance (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(h));

83 (i) research in connection with disorders, or the functioning, of the human body (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(i));

84 (j) transplantation (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7(j)).

For the purposes of s 45 and Sch 4, 'existing holding' means bodily material held immediately before the day on which s 45 comes into force: s 45(5). For the meaning of 'transplantation' see PARA 246 note 4 ante. Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for a purpose specified in Sch 4 Pt 2 para 7 is use for an excepted purpose if the use in England and Wales or Northern Ireland for that purpose of the bodily material concerned is authorised by s 1(1) or s 1(10)(c) (see PARA 250 ante): Sch 4 Pt 2 para 11.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for any of the following purposes is use for an excepted purpose if the bodily material concerned is from the body of a living person:

85 (i) clinical audit (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 8(a));

86 (ii) education or training relating to human health (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 8(b));

87 (iii) performance assessment (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 8(c));

- 88 (iv) public health monitoring (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 8(d));
- 89 (v) quality assurance (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 8(e)).

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for the purpose of obtaining scientific or medical information about the person whose body manufactured the DNA is use for an excepted purpose if the bodily material concerned is the subject of a direction under Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(2) or (3) or an order under Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(4) or (5) and the information may be relevant to the person for whose benefit the direction is given or order is made: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(1). If the Human Tissue Authority is satisfied that bodily material has come from the body of a living person, that it is not reasonably possible to trace the person from whose body the material has come ('the donor'), that it is desirable in the interests of another person (including a future person) that DNA in the material be analysed for the purpose of obtaining scientific or medical information about the donor and that there is no reason to believe that the donor has died, that a decision of the donor to refuse consent to the use of the material for that purpose is in force or that the donor lacks capacity to consent to the use of the material for that purpose, it may direct that Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9 is to apply to the material for the benefit of the other person: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(2). As to the power to give directions see s 37; para 248 ante. If the Authority is satisfied that bodily material has come from the body of a living person, that it is desirable in the interests of another person (including a future person) that DNA in the material be analysed for the purpose of obtaining scientific or medical information about the person from whose body the material has come ('the donor'), that reasonable efforts have been made to get the donor to decide whether to consent to the use of the material for that purpose, that there is no reason to believe that the donor has died or that a decision of the donor to refuse to consent to the use of the material for that purpose is in force or that the donor lacks capacity to consent to the use of the material for that purpose, and that the donor has been given notice of the application for the exercise of the power conferred by Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(3), it may direct that Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9 is to apply to the material for the benefit of the other person: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(3). In Scotland the Court of Session may direct that Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9 is to apply to the material for the benefit of another person: see Sch 4 Pt 2 para 9(4), (5). For the meaning of 'material from the body of a living person' see PARA 246 note 4 ante. As to the establishment of the Human Tissue Authority see PARA 239 ante.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for the purpose of research in connection with disorders, or the functioning, of the human body is use for an excepted purpose if:

- 90 (A) the bodily material concerned is from the body of a living person (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 10(a));
- 91 (B) the research is ethically approved in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 10(b)); and
- 92 (C) the analysis is to be carried out in circumstances such that the person carrying it out is not in possession, and not likely to come into possession, of information from which the individual from whose body the material has come can be identified (Sch 4 Pt 2 para 10(c)).

At the date at which this volume states the law no regulations had been made under head (B) supra.

Use of the results of an analysis of DNA for a purpose specified under Sch 4 Pt 2 para 12(2) is use for an excepted purpose if the DNA has been manufactured by the body of a person who has attained the age of 18 years and, under the law of England and Wales or Northern Ireland, lacks capacity to consent to analysis of the DNA or, under the law of Scotland, is an adult with incapacity, and neither a decision of his to consent to analysis of the DNA for that purpose, nor a decision of his not to consent to analysis of it for that purpose, is in force: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 12(1)(a), (b)).

The Secretary of State may by regulations specify for the purposes of Sch 4 Pt 2 para 12 purposes for which DNA may be analysed: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 12(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. The Secretary of State may by order amend Sch 4 Pt 2 para 5, 7 or 8 for the purpose of varying or omitting any of the purposes specified in that provision or adding to the purposes so specified: Sch 4 Pt 2 para 13. At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. As to the general power to make orders under the Human Tissue Act 2004 see PARA 235 ante.

5 Ibid s 45(1)(b). Bodily material is excepted if: (1) it is material which has come from the body of a person who died before the day on which s 45 comes into force and at least one hundred years have elapsed since the date of the person's death; (2) it is an existing holding and the person who has it is not in possession, and not likely to come into possession, of information from which the individual from whose body the material has come can be identified; or (3) it is an embryo outside the human body: s 45(2). For the meaning of 'embryo' see PARA 278 note 2 post; definition applied by s 54(6).

6 Ibid s 45(1). A person guilty of an offence under s 45 is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to a fine or to both: s 45(3). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 208 note 14 ante. As to the prosecution of offences committed by bodies corporate see PARA 277 post.

G. ENFORCEMENT

(A) INSPECTION, ENTRY, SEARCH AND SEIZURE

275. Powers of inspection, entry, search and seizure.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, a duly authorised person<sup>2</sup> may require a person to produce for inspection any records which he is required to keep by or by virtue of the Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>3</sup>. Where records which a person is so required to keep are stored in any electronic form, this power includes power to require the records to be made available for inspection in a visible and legible form or in a form from which they can readily be produced in a visible and legible form<sup>4</sup>.

A duly authorised person may at any reasonable time enter and inspect any premises in respect of which a licence is in force<sup>5</sup>. This power is exercisable for purposes of the Human Tissue Authority's functions in relation to licences<sup>6</sup>.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied on sworn information<sup>7</sup> that there are reasonable grounds for believing that an offence under Part 1 or Part 2 of the Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>8</sup> is being, or has been, committed on any premises, and that any of the conditions are met in relation to the premises, he may by signed warrant authorise a duly authorised person to enter the premises, if need be by force, and search them<sup>9</sup>. The conditions are: (1) that entry to the premises has been, or is likely to be, refused and notice of the intention to apply for a warrant has been given to the occupier<sup>10</sup>; (2) that the premises are unoccupied<sup>11</sup>; (3) that the occupier is temporarily absent<sup>12</sup>; (4) that an application for admission to the premises or the giving of notice of the intention to apply for a warrant would defeat the object of entry<sup>13</sup>. Entry and search under a warrant<sup>14</sup> is unlawful if any of the following is not complied with<sup>15</sup>:

- 408 (a) entry and search must be at a reasonable time unless the person executing the warrant thinks that the purpose of the search may be frustrated on an entry at a reasonable time<sup>16</sup>;
- 409 (b) if the occupier of the premises to which the warrant relates is present when the person executing the warrant seeks to enter them, the person executing the warrant must produce the warrant to the occupier and give him a copy of the warrant and an appropriate statement<sup>17</sup>;
- 410 (c) if the occupier of the premises to which the warrant relates is not present when the person executing the warrant seeks to enter them, but some other person is present who appears to the person executing the warrant to be in charge of the premises, the person executing the warrant must produce the warrant to that other person, give him a copy of the warrant and an appropriate statement, and leave a copy of the warrant in a prominent place on the premises<sup>18</sup>;
- 411 (d) if the premises to which the warrant relates are unoccupied, the person executing the warrant must leave a copy of it in a prominent place on the premises<sup>19</sup>.

Where the premises in relation to which a warrant for entry and search<sup>20</sup> is executed are unoccupied or the occupier is temporarily absent, the person executing the warrant must, when leaving the premises, leave them as effectively secured as he found them<sup>21</sup>.

A duly authorised person: (i) entering and inspecting licensed premises<sup>22</sup> may seize anything on the premises which he has reasonable grounds to believe may be required for purposes of the Authority's functions relating to the grant, revocation, variation or suspension of licences<sup>23</sup>; (ii) entering and searching premises under a warrant<sup>24</sup> may seize anything on the premises which he has reasonable grounds to believe may be required for the purpose of being used in evidence in any proceedings for an offence under Part 1 or Part 2 of the Human Tissue Act 2004<sup>25</sup>.

Where a person has power to seize anything under head (i) or head (ii) above, he may take such steps as appear to be necessary for preserving the thing or preventing interference with it<sup>26</sup>. The power under head (i) or head (ii) above includes power to retain anything seized in exercise of the power for so long as it may be required for the purpose for which it was seized<sup>27</sup>. Where by virtue of head (i) or head (ii) above a person seizes anything, he must leave on the premises from which the thing was seized, a statement giving particulars of what he has seized and stating that he has seized it<sup>28</sup>.

Power to enter and inspect or search any premises includes power to take such other persons and equipment as the person exercising the power reasonably considers necessary<sup>29</sup>. Power to inspect or search any premises includes, in particular, power to inspect any equipment found on the premises, power to inspect and take copies of any records found on the premises and, in the case of premises in respect of which a licence is in force, power to observe the carrying on on the premises of the licensed activity<sup>30</sup>. Any power to enter, inspect or search premises includes power to require any person to afford such facilities and assistance with respect to matters under that person's control as are necessary to enable the power of entry, inspection or search to be exercised<sup>31</sup>.

A person's right to exercise a power is subject to his producing evidence of his entitlement to exercise it, if required<sup>32</sup>. As soon as reasonably practicable after having exercised a power to inspect or search premises, the duly authorised person must prepare a written report of the inspection or search and, if requested to do so by the appropriate person<sup>33</sup>, give him a copy of the report<sup>34</sup>.

268-277 Activities done without appropriate consent etc ... Prosecution of offences committed by bodies corporat

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY/278. Prohibitions.

(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY

278. Prohibitions.

No person may bring about the creation<sup>1</sup> of an embryo<sup>2</sup> or keep or use<sup>3</sup> an embryo except in pursuance of a licence<sup>4</sup>. No person may place in a woman a live embryo other than a human embryo or any live gametes<sup>5</sup> other than human gametes<sup>6</sup>. A licence cannot authorise<sup>7</sup>: (1) keeping or using an embryo after the appearance of the primitive streak<sup>8</sup>; (2) placing an embryo in any animal<sup>9</sup>; (3) keeping or using an embryo in any circumstances prohibited by regulations<sup>10</sup>; or (4) replacing a nucleus of a cell of an embryo with a nucleus taken from a cell of any person, embryo or subsequent development of an embryo<sup>11</sup>. No person, except in pursuance of a licence<sup>12</sup>, may: (a) store any gametes<sup>13</sup>; or (b) in the course of providing treatment services<sup>14</sup> for any woman, use the sperm of any man unless the services are being provided for the woman and the man together, or use the eggs of any other woman<sup>15</sup>; or (c) mix gametes with the live gametes of any animal<sup>16</sup>. No person may, for the purpose of providing fertility services<sup>17</sup> for any woman, use female germ cells<sup>18</sup> taken or derived from an embryo or a foetus or use embryos created by using such cells<sup>19</sup>, and no person may place sperm and eggs in a woman in any circumstances specified in regulations except in pursuance of a licence<sup>20</sup>.

It is also an offence for any person who is or has been a member or employee of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority, or a person who is or was a person to whom a licence applies or is a person to whom directions have been given, to disclose information in contravention of the requirements of confidentiality laid down by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>21</sup>.

No proceedings for an offence may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>22</sup>.

It is a defence for a person charged with doing anything which<sup>23</sup> cannot be done except in pursuance of a licence, to prove: (i) that he was acting under another's direction<sup>24</sup>; and (ii) that he reasonably believed that the other person was at the material time the person responsible under a licence, a person designated<sup>25</sup> as a person to whom a licence applied, or a person to whom directions had been given<sup>26</sup>, and that the defendant was authorised by virtue of the licence or directions to do the thing in question<sup>27</sup>. It is a defence for a person charged with any offence under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 to prove that at the material time he was a person to whom a licence applied or to whom directions had been given<sup>28</sup>, and that he took all such steps as were reasonable and exercised all due diligence to avoid committing the offence<sup>29</sup>.

1 The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, so far as it governs bringing about the creation of an embryo, applies only to bringing about the creation of an embryo outside the human body: s 1(2). References to embryos the creation of which was brought about in vitro (in their application to those where fertilisation is complete) are to those where fertilisation began outside the human body whether or not it was completed there: s 1(2)(a). References to embryos taken from a woman do not include embryos whose creation was brought about in vitro: s 1(2)(b).

2 'Embryo' means (unless otherwise stated) a live human embryo where fertilisation is complete, and references to an embryo include an egg in the process of fertilisation: ibid s 1(1)(a), (b). Fertilisation is not complete until the appearance of a two cell zygote: s 1(1). The essential thrust of s 1(1)(a) is directed to live human embryos created outside the human body, not to the manner of their creation; an organism created by cell nuclear replacement falls within the definition of 'embryo': R (on the application of Quintavalle) v Secretary of State for Health [2003] UKHL 13, [2003] AC 687, [2003] 2 All ER 113.

3 The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, so far as it governs the keeping or use of an embryo, applies only to keeping or using an embryo outside the human body: s 1(3). References to 'keeping' in relation to gametes or embryos include keeping while preserved, whether preserved by cryopreservation or in any other way, and embryos and gametes so kept are referred to as 'stored'; 'store' and 'storage' must be construed accordingly: s 2(2).

4 Ibid s 3(1). Contravention of this provision, other than by doing something which by virtue of s 3(3) (see the text to notes 8-11 infra) cannot be authorised by a licence, is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to two years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction by imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: s 41(2)(a), (4). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 208 note 14 ante. For defences see the text and notes 23-29 infra. For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 281 note 2 post. Directions may authorise the keeping of gametes or embryos by or on behalf of the person to whom the licence applies in the course of their carriage to or from any premises: s 24(3). As to directions generally see PARA 288 text and notes 1-4 post. In certain circumstances, the unlicensed keeping or examining of embryos in connection with the investigation of offences under the Act is permitted and the manner of, and conditions for, such keeping is prescribed: see s 43; and the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Special Exemptions) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1588, reg 2.

5 References to gametes, eggs or sperm (except where otherwise stated) are references to live human gametes, eggs or sperm: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 1(4). References to gametes or eggs do not include eggs in the process of fertilisation: s 1(4).

6 Ibid s 3(2). Contravention of this provision is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to ten years or a fine or both: s 41(1)(a). For a defence see the text and notes 28-29 infra.

7 The doing of anything which, by virtue of ibid s 3(3), cannot be authorised by a licence is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to ten years or a fine or both: s 41(1)(b). For a defence see text and notes 28-29 infra.

8 Ibid s 3(3)(a). The primitive streak is to be taken to have appeared in an embryo not later than the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the day when the gametes are mixed, not counting any time during which the embryo is stored: s 3(4). See also note 7 supra.

9 Ibid s 3(3)(b). See also note 7 supra.

10 Ibid s 3(3)(c). See also note 7 supra. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

11 Ibid s 3(3)(d). See also note 7 supra. Section 3(3)(d) does not prohibit cell nuclear replacement: R (on the application of Quintavalle) v Secretary of State for Health [2003] UKHL 13, [2003] AC 687, [2003] 2 All ER 113.

12 A licence cannot authorise storing or using gametes in any circumstances in which regulations prohibit their storage or use: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. In certain circumstances, the unlicensed storage of gametes in connection with the investigation of offences under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 is permitted: see s 43; and the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Special Exemptions) Regulations 1991, 1991/1588, reg 2. Also permitted is the unlicensed storage of gametes for the purposes of research, for the development or testing of pharmaceutical or contraceptive products, or for teaching requiring the use of gametes, provided they are not to be used for treatment services (see note 14 infra) or other specified purposes and that they are stored in accordance with prescribed conditions: see reg 3.

13 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4(1)(a). Contravention of s 4(1)(a), (b) (see the text to notes 14, 15 infra) is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to two years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction by imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: s 41(2)(b), (4). For a defence see the text to notes 23-29 infra.

14 'Treatment services' means medical, surgical or obstetric services provided to the public or a section of the public for the purposes of assisting women to carry children: ibid s 2(1). A woman is not to be treated as carrying a child until the embryo has become implanted: s 2(3). The screening of embryos before implantation using pre-implantation genetic diagnosis in conjunction with tissue typing falls within the definition of treatment services: R (on the application of Quintavalle) v Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (Secretary of State for Health intervening) [2003] EWCA Civ 667, [2004] QB 168, [2003] 3 All ER 257.

15 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4(1)(b). Contravention of this provision is an offence: see note 13 supra. Consent to the provision of treatment services 'together' must be consent to each and every stage of the provision of the treatment services; if the parties at any stage cease to act as a joint enterprise the consent is inoperative: Evans v Amicus Healthcare Ltd [2004] EWCA (Civ) 727, [2004] 3 All ER 1025, [2004] 2 FLR 766. Treatment cannot be regarded as being 'together' for the purposes of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4(1)(b), once the man who has provided the sperm has died. However, a woman may be entitled to be treated with her dead husband's sperm in another country of the European Union unless there are public policy reasons to the contrary: R v Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority, ex p Blood [1997] 2 All ER 687, [1997] 2 FCR 501, CA. As to parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 102 et seq.

16 Ibid s 4(1)(c). Contravention of this provision is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to ten years or a fine or both: s 41(1)(a). For defences see the text and notes 23-29 infra.

17 'Fertility services' means medical, surgical or obstetric services provided for the purpose of assisting women to carry children: ibid s 3A(2) (s 3A added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 156(1)).

18 'Female germ cells' means cells of the female germ line and includes such cells at any stage of maturity and accordingly includes eggs: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 3A(2) (as added: see note 17 supra).

19 Ibid s 3A(1) (as added: see note 17 supra). Contravention of this provision is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to ten years or a fine or both: s 41(1)(a) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 156(2)). For a defence see the text and notes 28-29 infra.

20 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4(3). Contravention of this provision is an offence punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment for up to two years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction by imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: s 41(2)(c), (4). For a defence see text and notes 28-29 infra. Regulations under s 4(3) may provide that, in relation to licences only to place sperm and eggs in a woman in such circumstances, the licensing provisions of the Act (see PARA 281 et seq post) will have effect with such modification as may be specified in the regulations: s 4(4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made. The code of practice issued by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority may also give guidance about the use of any technique involving the placing of sperm and eggs in a woman: s 25(3). As to the code of practice see PARA 288 post. As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority see PARA 280 post.

21 In contravention of ibid s 33 (see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 109): see s 41(5). A person who commits this offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for up to two years or a fine, or both, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or both: s 41(5).

22 Ibid s 42. As to the Director of Public Prosecutions see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 1066, 1079 et seq.

24 Ibid s 41(10)(a).

25 In by virtue of ibid s 17(2)(b): see PARA 286 post.

26 In by virtue of ibid s 24(9) (see PARA 287 note 20 post): s 41(10)(b)(i).

UPDATE

278-290 Human Fertilisation and Embryology

The Authority may charge a fee in respect of any of the following (1) an application for a licence, (2) the grant or renewal of a licence, (3) an application for the revocation or variation of a licence, or (4) the exercise by the Authority of any other function conferred on it by or under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 or by or under any other enactment (a) in relation to a licence, (b) in relation to premises which are or have been premises to which a licence relates, (c) in relation to premises which are or have been relevant third party premises in relation to a licence, or (d) in relation to premises which, if an application is granted, will be premises to which a licence relates or relevant third party premises: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35B (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 27).

278 Prohibitions

TEXT AND NOTES--Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 41 further amended to take account of the prohibitions introduced by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 including those relating to the creation or use of human admixed embryos without a licence: see s 29, Sch 8 Pt 1.

TEXT AND NOTES 1-4--No person may bring about the creation of an embryo except in pursuance of a licence: 1990 Act s 3(1) (s 3(1), (1A), (1B) substituted by SI 2007/1522). No person may keep or use an embryo except in pursuance of a licence or in the case of the keeping, without storage, of an embryo intended for human application, or the processing, without storage, of such an embryo, in pursuance of a third party agreement: 1990 Act s 3(1A). No person may procure or distribute an embryo intended for human application except in pursuance of a licence or a third party agreement: s 3(1B).

A 'third party agreement' is an agreement in writing between a person who holds a licence and another person which is made in accordance with any licence conditions imposed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority for the purpose of securing compliance with the requirements of European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/23 art 24, and under which the other person (1) procures, tests or processes gametes or embryos, or both, on behalf of the holder of the licence, or (2) supplies to the holder of the licence any goods or services, including distribution services, which may affect the quality or safety of gametes or embryos: 1990 Act s 2A(1) (added by SI 2007/1522).

NOTE 1--References to embryos the creation of which was brought about in vitro (in their application to those where fertilisation or any other process by which an embryo is created is complete) are to those where fertilisation or any other process by which the embryo was created began outside the human body whether or not it was completed there: 1990 Act s 1(2)(a) (substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(3)).

NOTE 2--In the 1990 Act (except in the 1990 Act s 4A (see PARA 278A) or in the term 'human admixed embryo') (1) embryo means a live human embryo and does not include a human admixed embryo (as defined by s 4A(6)), and (2) references to an embryo include an egg that is in the process of fertilisation or is undergoing any other process capable of resulting in an embryo: 1990 Act s 1(1) (substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(2)).

If it appears to the Secretary of State necessary or desirable to do so in the light of developments in science or medicine, regulations may provide that in the 1990 Act (except in s 4A) 'embryo', 'eggs', 'sperm' or 'gametes' includes things specified in the regulations which would not otherwise fall within the definition: 1990 Act s 1(6) (s 1(6), (7) added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 1(5)). Regulations made by virtue of the 1990 Act s 1(6) may not provide for anything containing any nuclear or mitochondrial DNA that is not human to be treated as an embryo or as eggs, sperm or gametes: s 1(7). 'Nuclear DNA', in relation to an embryo, includes DNA in the pronucleus of the embryo: s 2(1) (amended by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 2).

TEXT AND NOTE 6--No person may place in a woman (1) an embryo other than a permitted embryo (as defined by the 1990 Act s 3ZA (see PARA 279)), or (2) any gametes other than permitted eggs or permitted sperm (as so defined): 1990 Act s 3(2) (substituted by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 3(2)).

278A. Prohibitions in connection with genetic material not of human origin.

No person may place in a woman (1) a human admixed embryo, (2) any other embryo that is not a human embryo, or (3) any gametes other than human gametes: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 4A(1) (s 4A added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 4(2)). For the purposes of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 a human admixed embryo is (a) an embryo created by replacing the nucleus of an animal egg or of an animal cell, or two animal pronuclei, with (i) two human pronuclei, (ii) one nucleus of a human gamete or of any other human cell, or (iii) one human gamete or other human cell, (b) any other embryo created by using (A) human gametes and animal gametes, or (B) one human pronucleus and one animal pronucleus, (c) a human embryo that has been altered by the introduction of any sequence of nuclear or mitochondrial DNA (see PARA 278) of an animal into one or more cells of the embryo, (d) a human embryo that has been altered by the introduction of one or more animal cells, or (e) any embryo not falling within heads (a) to (d) which contains both nuclear or mitochondrial DNA of a human and nuclear or mitochondrial DNA of an animal ('animal DNA') but in which the animal DNA is not predominant: s 4A(6). In s 4A(6) references to animal cells are to cells of an animal or of an animal embryo, and references to human cells are to cells of a human or of a human embryo: s 4A(7). In s 4A 'embryo' means a live embryo, including an egg that is in the process of fertilisation or is undergoing any other process capable of resulting in an embryo: s 4A(9). For the purposes of s 4A an 'animal' is an animal other than man: s 4A(8). In s 4A references to eggs are to live eggs, including cells of the female germ line at any stage of maturity, but (except in s 4A(9)) not including eggs that are in the process of fertilisation or are undergoing any other process capable of resulting in an embryo, and references to gametes are to eggs (as so defined) or to live sperm, including cells of the male germ line at any stage of maturity: s 4A(10). No person may (aa) mix human gametes with animal gametes, (bb) bring about the creation of a human admixed embryo, or (cc) keep or use a human admixed embryo, except in pursuance of a licence: s 4A(2). A licence cannot authorise keeping or using a human admixed embryo after the earliest of the following; the appearance of the primitive streak, or the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the process of creating the human admixed embryo began, but not counting any time during which the human admixed embryo is stored: s 4A(3). A licence cannot authorise placing a human admixed embryo in an animal: s 4A(4). A licence cannot authorise keeping or using a human admixed embryo in any circumstances in which regulations prohibit its keeping or use: s 4A(5).

If it appears to the Secretary of State necessary or desirable to do so in the light of developments in science or medicine, regulations may (AA) amend (but not repeal) heads (a) to (e); (BB) provide that in s 4A 'embryo', 'eggs' or 'gametes' includes things specified in the regulations which would not otherwise fall within the definition: s 4A(11). Regulations made by virtue of head (AA) may make any amendment of s 4A(7) that appears to the Secretary of State to be appropriate in consequence of any amendment of s 4A(6): s 4A(12).

TEXT AND NOTES--Replaced by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 3ZA (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 3(5)).

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 3ZA has effect for the interpretation of s 3(2) (see PARA 278): s 3ZA(1). A permitted egg is one (1) which has been produced by or extracted from the ovaries of a woman, and (2) whose nuclear or mitochondrial DNA has not been altered: s 3ZA(2). For the meaning of 'nuclear DNA' see PARA 278. Permitted sperm are sperm (a) which have been produced by or extracted from the testes of a man, and (b) whose nuclear or mitochondrial DNA has not been altered: s 3ZA(3). In s 3ZA 'woman' and 'man' include respectively a girl and a boy (from birth): s 3ZA(6)(a). An embryo is a permitted embryo if (i) it has been created by the fertilisation of a permitted egg by permitted sperm, (ii) no nuclear or mitochondrial DNA of any cell of the embryo has been altered, and (iii) no cell has been added to it other than by division of the embryo's own cells: s 3ZA(4). Regulations may provide that (A) an egg can be a permitted egg, or (B) an embryo can be a permitted embryo, even though the egg or embryo has had applied to it in prescribed circumstances a prescribed process designed to prevent the transmission of serious mitochondrial disease: s 3ZA(5). 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations: s 3ZA(6)(b).

Regulations may provide for any of the relevant provisions (see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35A(2)) to have effect subject to specified modifications in relation to cases where an egg which is a permitted egg for the purposes of s 3(2) by virtue of regulations made under s 3ZA(5), or an embryo which is a permitted embryo for those purposes by virtue of such regulations, has been created from material provided by two women: s 35A(1) (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 26).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY/280. Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

280. Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>1</sup> must: (1) keep under review information about embryos<sup>2</sup>, any subsequent development of embryos, the provision of treatment services<sup>3</sup> and activities, and on request by the Secretary of State advise him about those matters<sup>4</sup>; (2) publicise the services it provides to the public or provides in pursuance of licences<sup>5</sup>; (3) provide, to such extent as it considers appropriate, advice and information for persons to whom licences apply or who are receiving treatment services or providing gametes or embryos for use for the purposes of activities governed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, or may wish to do so<sup>6</sup>; and (4) perform such other functions as may be specified by regulations<sup>7</sup>.

The Authority must maintain one or more licence committees to exercise its functions relating to the grant, variation, suspension and revocation of licences<sup>8</sup>, and may provide for the discharge of any other functions by other committees or by members or employees<sup>9</sup>. A licence committee must be comprised solely of members of the Authority and must include at least one person who is not authorised to carry on or participate in any licensed activity<sup>10</sup>. Before considering an application to license a person or premises for the carrying on of regulated activities<sup>11</sup>, the licence committee must arrange for the premises where the activity is to be carried on to be inspected on its behalf, and for a report on the inspection to be made to it<sup>12</sup>. A licence committee must also arrange for any premises to which a licence relates to be inspected on its behalf once in each calendar year, and for a report on the inspection to be made to it<sup>13</sup>. These inspections may be carried out by a person who is not a member of a licence committee<sup>14</sup>. The Secretary of State may make regulations as to the proceedings of licence committees, and of the Authority on any appeal from such a committee<sup>15</sup>, including in particular provisions as to the production of documents and admissibility of evidence<sup>16</sup>.

The Authority must keep proper accounts and account records, and must prepare an annual statement of accounts which must comply with any direction of the Secretary of State as to content, form and the principles on which it is to be prepared<sup>17</sup>. A copy must be sent within five months of the end of the accounting year<sup>18</sup> to the Secretary of State and the Comptroller and Auditor General<sup>19</sup>, who may inspect any account records<sup>20</sup>. The Authority must prepare and send to the Secretary of State each year a report dealing with its activities in the preceding 12 months and its intended activities in the following 12 months<sup>21</sup>. The Secretary of State must lay a copy of each such report before each House of Parliament<sup>22</sup>.

1 The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority is a body corporate: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 5(1). The Authority is not a Crown servant or agent, and has no power to borrow money: see s 5(3), Sch 1 paras 1, 2. The Secretary of State may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay the Authority out of money provided by Parliament such sums as he thinks fit towards its expenses: Sch 1 para 3. The Authority consists of a chairman and deputy chairman, both appointed by the Secretary of State, and such number of other members as the Secretary of State appoints: s 5(2), Sch 1 para 4(1). The Secretary of State must have regard to the desirability of having the Authority's proceedings and functions informed by the views of both men and women: Sch 1 para 4(2). The chairman and deputy may not be medical practitioners or persons involved in the keeping or use of gametes or embryos, although there must be such persons among the membership: Sch 1 para 4(3), (4). Members hold office, in accordance with the terms of their appointment, for up to three years at a time; a member may resign, or his office may be declared vacant: Sch 1 para 5. Provision is made as to the remuneration of the chairman; expenses, allowances and other payments to any members; appointment of staff; and the regulation of proceedings and proof of documents: see Sch 1 paras 7-13. Membership of the Authority is a disqualification for membership of the House of Commons: House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 s 1, Sch 1 Pt II (amended by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 1 para 6); and see PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 905 et seq. ## 281. Scope of licences.

The following conditions apply to all licences:

- 412 (a) the activities authorised by the licence must be carried on only on the premises to which the licence relates and under the supervision of the person responsible<sup>6</sup>;
- 413 (b) any member or employee of the Authority, on production (if so required) of a document identifying him as such, must at all reasonable times be permitted to enter those premises and inspect them, including inspecting any equipment or records and observing any activity<sup>7</sup>;
- 414 (c) the proper consents to the use of gametes and embryos must be obtained<sup>8</sup>;
- 415 (d) proper records must be maintained in such form as the Authority may specify in directions<sup>9</sup>;
- 416 (e) no money or other benefit may be given or received in respect of any supply of gametes or embryos unless authorised by directions<sup>10</sup>;
- 417 (f) where gametes or embryos are supplied to a person to whom another licence applies, that person must also be provided with information specified by the Authority<sup>11</sup>; and
- 418 (g) the Authority must be provided, in such form and at such intervals as it may specify in directions, with such copies of or extracts from the records, or such other information, as the directions may specify<sup>12</sup>.

A licence may only authorise activities to be carried on on premises specified in the licence and under the supervision of a person designated in the licence<sup>13</sup>. A licence cannot: (i) authorise both treatment and research<sup>14</sup>; (ii) apply to more than one project of research<sup>15</sup>; (iii) authorise activities to be carried on under the supervision of more than one individual<sup>16</sup>; or (iv) apply to premises in different places<sup>17</sup>.

Directions may authorise any person to whom a licence applies to receive gametes or embryos from outside the United Kingdom or to send them outside the United Kingdom<sup>18</sup>.

Regulations may make provision requiring or authorising the giving of directions in relation to particular matters which are specified in the regulations and relate to activities falling within the 1990 Act s 4A(2) (activities involving genetic material of animal origin): s 24(4B) (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 22(4)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY/282. Licences for treatment.

282. Licences for treatment.

A licence for treatment may authorise any of the following in the course of providing treatment services<sup>1</sup>:

- 419 (1) bringing about the creation of embryos in vitro<sup>2</sup>;
- 420 (2) keeping embryos<sup>3</sup>;
- 421 (3) using gametes<sup>4</sup>;
- 422 (4) practices to secure that embryos are in a suitable condition to be placed in a woman, or to determine such suitability<sup>5</sup>;
- 423 (5) placing any embryo in a woman<sup>6</sup>;
- 424 (6) mixing sperm<sup>7</sup> with the egg of a hamster or such other animal as is specified by directions, to test fertility, but only where subsequent destruction is provided for<sup>8</sup>; and
- 425 (7) any further practices prescribed by regulations<sup>9</sup>.

A licence is granted for such period not exceeding five years as may be specified in the licence<sup>10</sup>, may be granted subject to such conditions as may be specified therein, and may authorise the performance of any of the activities referred to in heads (1) to (7) above in such manner as may be so specified<sup>11</sup>. A licence cannot authorise any activity unless it appears to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of providing treatment services<sup>12</sup>, and cannot authorise altering the genetic structure of any cell while it forms part of an embryo<sup>13</sup>.

The following must be conditions of every licence for treatment<sup>14</sup>. Such information must be recorded<sup>15</sup> as the Authority may specify in directions about the following: (a) the persons for whom services are provided in pursuance of the licence<sup>16</sup>; (b) the services provided for them<sup>17</sup>; (c) the persons whose gametes are kept or used for the purposes of services provided in pursuance of the licence or whose gametes have been used in bringing about the creation of embryos so kept or used<sup>18</sup>; (d) any child appearing to the person responsible to have been born as a result of treatment in pursuance of the licence<sup>19</sup>; (e) any mixing of egg<sup>20</sup> and sperm and any taking of an embryo from a woman<sup>21</sup> or other acquisition of an embryo<sup>22</sup>; and (f) such other matters as the Authority may specify in directions<sup>23</sup>.

A woman must not be provided with treatment services unless account has been taken of the welfare of any child who may be born as a result of the treatment, including the need of that child for a father, and of any other child who may be affected by the birth<sup>24</sup>. Nor may a woman be given treatment services involving the use of: (i) gametes of any person whose consent to such use is required<sup>25</sup>; (ii) any embryo the creation of which was brought about in vitro<sup>26</sup>; or (iii) any embryo taken from a woman whose consent to such use is required<sup>27</sup>, unless the woman being treated, and, where applicable, the man with whom she is being treated, have been given an opportunity to receive proper counselling about the implications of taking the proposed steps, and have been provided with such relevant information as is proper<sup>28</sup>.

Suitable procedures must be maintained for determining the persons providing gametes or from whom embryos are taken for use in pursuance of the licence<sup>29</sup>, and for securing that consideration is given to the use of practices not requiring the authority of a licence as well as those requiring such authority<sup>30</sup>.

283. Licences for storage.

A licence for storage<sup>1</sup>, or a licence for treatment or research<sup>2</sup>, may authorise the storage of gametes<sup>3</sup> or embryos<sup>4</sup> or both<sup>5</sup>. A licence authorising such storage is granted for such period not exceeding five years as may be specified in the licence<sup>6</sup>, may be granted subject to such conditions as may be specified in the licence and may authorise storage in such manner as may be so specified<sup>7</sup>.

The following conditions are attached to every such licence<sup>8</sup>:

- 426 (1) that the gametes of a person or an embryo taken from a woman<sup>9</sup> must be placed in storage only if received from that person or woman or acquired from a person to whom a licence applies, and that an embryo created in vitro<sup>10</sup> otherwise than in pursuance of that licence must be placed in storage only if acquired from a person to whom a licence applies<sup>11</sup>;
- 427 (2) that gametes or embryos which have been stored must not be supplied to a person otherwise than in the provision of treatment services<sup>12</sup> unless that person is a person to whom a licence applies<sup>13</sup>;
- 428 (3) that no gametes or embryos may be stored for longer than the statutory storage period, and if stored at the end of the period must be allowed to perish<sup>14</sup>; and
- 429 (4) that such information as the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>15</sup> may specify in directions<sup>16</sup> as to the persons whose consent is required<sup>17</sup>, the terms of their consent and the circumstances of the storage and as to such other matters as the Authority may so specify, must be included in the records maintained in pursuance of the licence<sup>18</sup>.

Directions may authorise any person to whom a licence applies to receive gametes or embryos from outside the United Kingdom or to send gametes or embryos outside the United Kingdom in such circumstances and subject to such conditions as may be specified in the directions, and such directions may provide for s 14 to have effect with such modifications as may be specified in the directions: s 24(4). 14 Ibid s 14(1)(c). The statutory storage period is such period not exceeding ten years in respect of gametes, and five years in respect of embryos, as the licence may specify: s 14(3), (4). However, regulations may provide that the ten year or five year period, as the case may be, be substituted with such shorter period or, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations, such longer period, as may be specified in the regulations: see s 14(5). See the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Statutory Storage Period) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1540, which provide for the extension of the storage period in respect of gametes, where: (1) the fertility of the person who provided the gametes is likely to have become significantly impaired since providing the gametes; (2) that person was under 45 at the time of providing the gametes; and (3) that person does not consent to the use of the gametes for the provision of treatment services to persons other than that person or that person and another. See also the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Statutory Storage Period for Embryos) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/375, which provide for the extension of the five year storage period in respect of embryos in circumstances where: (a) the two persons whose gametes are used to bring about the creation of an embryo each confirm in writing that they do not object to storage for such longer period; (b) the woman being treated is aged under 50 on the relevant date and the treatment in question would not result in her being a surrogate mother; and (c) in the written opinion of two registered medical practitioners, one of the consenting persons, or, where she is not one of those persons, the woman being treated, has or is likely to become prematurely and completely infertile; or (d) in the written opinion of a registered medical practitioner such person has, or is likely to develop, significantly impaired fertility, or has a gene or genes such that a child born with that gene or those genes may suffer from such physical or mental abnormalities as to be seriously disabled. The Authority may charge a fee in respect of any of the following (1) an application for a licence, (2) the grant or renewal of a licence, (3) an application for the revocation or variation of a licence, or (4) the exercise by the Authority of any other function conferred on it by or under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 or by or under any other enactment (a) in relation to a licence, (b) in relation to premises which are or have been premises to which a licence relates, (c) in relation to premises which are or have been relevant third party premises in relation to a licence, or (d) in relation to premises which, if an application is granted, will be premises to which a licence relates or relevant third party premises: see Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 35B (added by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 s 27).

283 Licences for storage

TEXT AND NOTES--The following conditions for human application are attached to licences for treatment, licences non-medical fertility services, licences for storage so far as authorising storage of gametes or embryos intended for human application and licences so far as authorising activities in connection with the derivation from embryos of stem cells that are intended for human application: 1990 Act s 14A(1) (s 14A added by SI 2007/1522; and amended by Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 Sch 7 para 6, Sch 8 Pt 1). A licence to which the 1990 Act s 14A applies may not authorise the storage, procurement, testing, processing or distribution of gametes or embryos unless it contains the supplementary licence conditions for human application required by Sch 3A (Sch 3A added by SI 2007/1522): 1990 Act s 14A(2). In relation to any gametes or embryos imported into the United Kingdom from an EEA state other than the United Kingdom or from Gibraltar, compliance with the requirements of the laws or other measures adopted in the relevant state or territory for the purpose of implementing European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/23 and EC Commission Directives 2006/17, 2006/86 must be taken to be compliance with the supplementary licence conditions required by the 1990 Act Sch 3A: s 14A(3). Section 14A(3) does not apply to any licence conditions imposed by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority which amount to more stringent protective measures: s 14A(4).

NOTE 14--SI 1991/1540 and SI 1996/375 replaced: Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Statutory Storage Period for Embryos and Gametes) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1582 (amended by SI 2009/2581). As to the storage of permitted embryos which have been kept in storage for more than five years, see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Supplementary Provision) Order 2009, SI 2009/2478.

284. Licences for research.

A licence for research may authorise, for the purposes of a project of research specified in the licence<sup>1</sup>, bringing about of the creation of embryos in vitro<sup>2</sup> and keeping or using embryos<sup>3</sup>. Such a licence cannot authorise any activity unless it appears to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>4</sup> to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of: (1) promoting advances in the treatment of infertility<sup>5</sup>; (2) increasing knowledge about the causes of congenital disease<sup>6</sup>; (3) increasing knowledge about the causes of miscarriages<sup>7</sup>; (4) developing more effective techniques of contraception<sup>8</sup>; (5) developing methods for detecting the presence of gene or chromosome abnormalities in embryos before implantation<sup>9</sup>; or (6) such other purposes as may be specified in regulations<sup>10</sup>. A licence cannot authorise altering the genetic structure of any cell while it forms part of an embryo except in such circumstances, if any, as may be specified in or determined in pursuance of regulations<sup>11</sup>, but it may authorise mixing sperm<sup>12</sup> with the egg of a hamster, or other animal specified in directions<sup>13</sup>, for the purpose of developing more effective techniques for determining the fertility or normality of sperm<sup>14</sup>.

No licence for research may be granted unless the Authority is satisfied that any proposed use of embryos is necessary for the purposes of the research<sup>15</sup>. A licence may be granted for such period not exceeding three years as may be specified in the licence<sup>16</sup>, may be subject to such conditions as may be specified in it<sup>17</sup> and may authorise the performance of any of the activities<sup>18</sup> in such manner as may be so specified<sup>19</sup>.

Every licence for research must have the following conditions<sup>20</sup>: (a) the records maintained in pursuance of the licence must include such information as the Authority may specify in directions about such matters as the Authority may so specify<sup>21</sup>; (b) no information may be removed from any records maintained in pursuance of the licence before the expiry of such period as may be specified in directions for records of the class in question<sup>22</sup>; (c) no embryo appropriated for the purposes of any project of research may be kept or used otherwise than for the purposes of such a project<sup>23</sup>.

The Authority may issue a licence for research for any of the following purposes: (1) increasing knowledge about the development of embryos; (2) increasing knowledge about serious disease; or (3) enabling any such knowledge to be applied in developing treatments for serious disease: Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Research Purposes) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/188, reg 2(1), (2).

285. Consents.

A person's gametes<sup>1</sup> must not be used<sup>2</sup> or received for use for the purposes of treatment services<sup>3</sup> unless there is an effective consent<sup>4</sup> by that person to their being so used and they are used in accordance with the terms of the consent<sup>5</sup>. A person's gametes may not be used to bring about the creation of any embryo in vitro<sup>6</sup> except where there is an effective consent by that person to the use of such embryo for a specified purpose<sup>7</sup>. An embryo created in vitro must not be received by any person unless there is an effective consent by each person whose gametes were used to create the embryo to the use of the embryo for a specified purpose<sup>8</sup>. An embryo created in vitro must not be used for any purpose unless there is effective consent by each person whose gametes were used to create the embryo to that use and the embryo is used in accordance with those consents<sup>9</sup>. An embryo taken from a woman<sup>10</sup> must not be used for any purpose, nor received by any person for use for any purpose, unless there is an effective consent by her to its use for that purpose and it is used in accordance with that consent<sup>11</sup>.

A person's gametes must not be kept in storage<sup>12</sup> unless there is an effective consent by that person to their storage and they are stored in accordance with the consent<sup>13</sup>. An embryo taken from a woman must not be kept in storage unless there is an effective consent by her to its storage and it is stored in accordance with the consent<sup>14</sup>. An embryo created in vitro must not be kept in storage unless there is an effective consent, by each person whose gametes were used to bring about the creation of the embryo, to the storage of the embryo and the embryo is stored in accordance with those consents<sup>15</sup>. A consent to the storage of any gametes or embryo must specify the maximum period of storage, if that is to be less than the statutory storage period<sup>16</sup>; must specify what is to be done with the gametes or embryo if the person who gave the consent dies or is unable through incapacity to vary or revoke the consent<sup>17</sup>; and may specify conditions subject to which the gametes or embryo may remain in storage<sup>18</sup>.

A consent may apply to the storage or use of a particular embryo<sup>19</sup>, or in the case of a person providing gametes, to the use or storage of any embryo created using those gametes<sup>20</sup>. A consent must provide for such other matters as the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority specifies in directions<sup>21</sup>.

Before a person gives any consent he must be given a suitable opportunity to receive proper counselling about the implications of taking the proposed steps<sup>22</sup>, and be provided with such relevant information as is proper<sup>23</sup>. He must also be informed of the effect of the provisions relating to the variation and withdrawal of consent<sup>24</sup>.

The terms of any consent may from time to time be varied, and the consent may be withdrawn, by notice given by the person who gave the consent to the person keeping the gametes or embryo to which the consent is relevant<sup>25</sup>. However, the terms of any consent to the use of any embryo cannot be varied, and such consent cannot be withdrawn once the embryo has been used in providing treatment services<sup>26</sup> or for the purposes of any project of research<sup>27</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'gamete' see PARA 278 note 5 ante.

2 As to the meaning of 'use' see PARA 278 note 3 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'treatment services' see PARA 278 note 14 ante.

4 Consent must be in writing; and 'effective consent' means consent that has not been withdrawn: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 12(c), Sch 3 para 1. For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 20 note 22 ante. A person having in his possession a consent form dealing with the matters required by Sch 3 is both entitled and expected to rely upon that form according to its letter, unless and until it can clearly be established that the form does not represent a valid decision by the person apparently giving consent: Centre for Reproductive Medicine v U [2002] EWCA Civ 565, [2002] All ER (D) 213 (Apr).

5 See the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 5(1), (2). This does not apply for the purpose of providing treatment services to that person or that person and another together: Sch 3 para 5(3). As to issues arising concerning valid consent see R v Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority, ex p Blood [1997] 2 All ER 687, [1997] 2 FCR 501, CA. As to the requirement that consent under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 be a condition of every licence see PARA 281 text to note 8 ante; and as to the requirement to maintain records including such consent in relation to licences for treatment see PARA 282 note 15 ante. As to counselling where consent under Sch 3 para 5 is required see PARA 282 text to notes 25-28 ante. As to parentage under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 102 et seq.

6 For the meaning of 'embryo' see PARA 278 note 2 ante; and as to references to embryos created in vitro see PARA 278 note 1 ante.

7 See the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 6(1). Any such consent is in addition to any consent that may be required by Sch 3 para 5 (see the text to notes 1-5 supra): Sch 3 para 6(4). A consent to the use of any embryo must specify one or more of the following purposes:

- 93 (1) use in providing treatment services to the person giving consent or that person and another specified person together (Sch 3 para 2(1)(a));
- 94 (2) use in providing treatment services to persons not including the person giving consent (Sch 3 para 2(1)(b)); or
- 95 (3) use for the purposes of any project of research (Sch 3 para 2(1)(c)), and may specify conditions subject to which the embryo may be so used (Sch 3 para 2(1)). Consent to the provision of treatment services 'together' must be consent to each and every stage of the provision of the treatment services; if the parties at any stage cease to act as a joint enterprise the consent is inoperative: Evans v Amicus Healthcare Ltd [2004] EWCA (Civ) 727, [2004] 3 All ER 1025, [2004] 2 FLR 766.

8 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 6(2). Any such consent is in addition to any consent that may be required by Sch 3 para 5 (see the text to notes 1-5 supra): Sch 3 para 6(4). As to the specified purposes see note 7 supra.

9 Ibid Sch 3 para 6(3). Any such consent is in addition to any consent that may be required by Sch 3 para 5 (see the text to notes 1-5 supra): Sch 3 para 6(4).

10 As to references to the taking of embryos see PARA 278 note 1 ante.

11 See the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 7(1), (2). This does not apply to the use, for the purpose of providing a woman with treatment services, of an embryo taken from her: Sch 3 para 7(3).

12 As to the meaning of 'storage' see PARA 278 note 3 ante.

13 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 Sch 3 para 8(1). As to the requirement to maintain records including such consent in relation to licences for storage see PARA 283 text to note 17 ante. As to licences for storage generally see PARA 283 ante.

17 Ibid Sch 3 para 2(2)(b).

18 Ibid Sch 3 para 2(2).

19 Ibid Sch 3 para 2(4)(a).

20 Ibid Sch 3 para 2(4)(b). In such a case, the terms of the consent may be varied or the consent may be withdrawn, in accordance with the provisions relating to variation and withdrawal (see the text to notes 25-27 infra), either generally or in relation to a particular embryo or particular embryos: Sch 3 para 2(4).

21 Ibid Sch 3 para 2(3). As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority see PARA 280 ante. As to directions see PARA 288 post.

22 Ibid Sch 3 para 3(1)(a).

23 Ibid Sch 3 para 3(1)(b).

24 Ie the effect of ibid Sch 3 para 4 (see the text to notes 25-27 infra): Sch 3 para 3(2).

25 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(1). The notice may be given to or served on the person by delivering it to the person, by leaving it at the person's proper address, or by sending it by post to the person at that address: s 46(1), (2). A person's proper address is his last known address (s 46(4)) but, where a person has notified the Authority of an address or a new address at which notices may be given to or served on him, that address is his proper address or, as the case may be, his proper address in substitution for that previously notified: s 46(5). As to service on a body corporate, a partnership, or an unincorporated association see s 46(3), (4).

26 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(2)(a). Embryos cannot be deemed to have been used on the day of their creation, and an embryo is only used once transferred to the woman; the clear policy of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 is to ensure continuing consent from the commencement of treatment to the point of implant and a party is entitled to withdraw his consent at any time before implantation: Evans v Amicus Healthcare Ltd [2004] EWCA (Civ) 727, [2004] 3 All ER 1025, [2004] 2 FLR 766.

286. Grant of licences.

Where application is made to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>1</sup>, a licence<sup>2</sup> may be granted to any person by a licence committee<sup>3</sup> if the following requirements are met<sup>4</sup>. The requirements are that:

- 430 (1) the application is for a licence designating an individual as the person under whose supervision the activities to be authorised by the licence are to be carried on<sup>5</sup>;
- 431 (2) either that individual is the applicant<sup>6</sup> or the application is made with the consent of that individual<sup>7</sup> and the licence committee is satisfied that the applicant is a suitable person to hold the licence<sup>8</sup>;
- 432 (3) the licence committee is satisfied that the character, qualifications and experience of that individual are such as are required for the supervision of the activities and that the individual will discharge his duty as the person responsible<sup>9</sup>;
- 433 (4) the licence committee is satisfied that the premises in respect of which the licence is to be granted are suitable for the activities to be carried on there<sup>10</sup>; and
- 434 (5) all other requirements of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 in relation to the grant of the licence are satisfied<sup>11</sup>.

Where the licence committee is of the opinion that the information supplied in the application is insufficient to enable it to determine the application, it need not consider the application until the applicant has provided it with such further information as it requires<sup>12</sup>. The licence committee must not grant a licence unless a copy of the conditions has been shown to, and acknowledged in writing by, the applicant and, where different, the person under whose supervision the activities are to be carried on<sup>13</sup>. A licence committee may consider and determine together two or more applications made by the same applicant, unless he objects<sup>14</sup>.

It is the duty of the individual under whose supervision the activities authorised by a licence are carried on (the 'person responsible')<sup>15</sup> to secure that:

- 435 (a) the other persons to whom the licence applies<sup>16</sup> are of such character, and are so qualified by training and experience, as to be suitable persons to participate in the activities authorised by the licence<sup>17</sup>;
- 436 (b) proper equipment is used<sup>18</sup>;
- 437 (c) proper arrangements are made for the keeping of gametes<sup>19</sup> and embryos<sup>20</sup> and for the disposal of gametes and embryos that have been allowed to perish<sup>21</sup>;
- 438 (d) suitable practices are used in the course of the activities<sup>22</sup>; and
- 439 (e) the conditions of the licence are complied with<sup>23</sup>.

1 As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority see PARA 280 ante. The application must be in a form approved for the purpose by the Authority accompanied by the initial fee; any additional fee must also be paid before a licence is granted: see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 16(1). 'Initial fee' and 'additional fee' mean a fee of such amount as may be fixed from time to time by the Authority with the approval of the Secretary of State and the Treasury; and in determining any such amount, the Authority may have regard to the costs of performing all its functions: s 16(6). Different fees may be fixed for different circumstances and the fees paid are not repayable: s 16(7). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 5 ante. Where either the applicant or the person under whose supervision the activities are to be carried on wishes to make representations about the proposed conditions, he must give notice within 28 days of being shown the conditions: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (Licence Committees and Appeals) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1889, reg 7(1). In such a case, he must be given the opportunity to make representations within 42 days, or more if the committee so consents, of the date of the notice: reg 7(2). Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY/287. Revocation and variation of licences.

287. Revocation and variation of licences.

A licence committee<sup>1</sup> may revoke a licence<sup>2</sup> if it is satisfied that:

- 440 (1) any information given for the purposes of the application for the grant of the licence was in any material respect false or misleading<sup>3</sup>;
- 441 (2) the premises to which the licence relates are no longer suitable for the activities authorised by it<sup>4</sup>;
- 442 (3) the person responsible<sup>5</sup> has failed to discharge, or is unable because of incapacity to discharge, the duty under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>6</sup> or has failed to comply with directions given in connection with any licence<sup>7</sup>; or
- 443 (4) there has been any other material change of circumstances since the licence was granted<sup>8</sup>.

A licence committee may also revoke a licence if: (a) it ceases to be satisfied that the character of the person responsible is such as is required for the supervision of those activities or that the nominal licensee<sup>9</sup> is a suitable person to hold a licence<sup>10</sup>; or (b) the person responsible dies or is convicted of an offence under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990<sup>11</sup>. A licence committee may vary or revoke a licence on an application by the person responsible or the nominal licensee<sup>12</sup>. A committee may also, on an application by the nominal licensee, vary the licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible if: (i) it is satisfied that the character, qualifications and experience of the other individual are such as are required for the supervision of the activities authorised by the licence and that the individual will discharge the duty as the person responsible<sup>13</sup>; and (ii) the application is made with the consent of the other individual<sup>14</sup>.

Where a licence committee suspects that there are reasonable grounds for revoking the licence<sup>15</sup> and is of the opinion that the licence must immediately be suspended<sup>16</sup>, it may by notice suspend the licence for a specified period not exceeding three months<sup>17</sup>. While suspended the licence is of no effect but application<sup>18</sup> may be made by the nominal licensee to designate another individual as the person responsible<sup>19</sup>.

A licence committee may from time to time give directions where a licence has been varied or has ceased to have effect, whether by expiry, suspension, revocation or otherwise, or where it is proposing to suspend, revoke or vary a licence<sup>20</sup>. Where a person who holds a licence dies, anything done subsequently by an individual which that individual would have been authorised to do if the licence had continued in force is, until such directions are given, treated as authorised by a licence<sup>21</sup>.

Where a licence committee determines<sup>22</sup> to refuse a licence or to refuse to vary a licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible, the applicant may appeal to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>23</sup> if notice has been given to the committee and to the Authority before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which notice of the committee's determination was served on the applicant<sup>24</sup>. Where a licence committee determines to vary or revoke a licence, any person on whom notice of the determination was served, other than the person who applied for the variation or revocation, may also appeal to the Authority provided the same notice requirements are complied with<sup>25</sup>. Where the Authority determines to refuse a licence or to refuse to vary a licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible<sup>26</sup> or to vary or revoke a licence<sup>27</sup>, any person on whom notice of the determination was served may appeal to the High Court on a point of law<sup>28</sup>.

1 As to licence committees see PARA 280 ante.

2 Where a licence committee has power to revoke a licence, it may instead vary any terms of the licence: Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 18(3). For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 281 note 2 ante. As to the grant of licences see PARA 286 ante. As to the scope of licences and standard conditions see PARA 281 ante. As to the respective types of licence see PARAS 282-284 ante.

3 Ibid s 18(1)(a). The giving of such information is also an offence: see PARA 286 note 12 ante.

4 Ibid s 18(1)(b).

5 As to the person responsible see PARA 286 ante.

6 Ie the duty under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 17: see PARA 286 ante.

7 Ibid s 18(1)(c). As to the duty to comply with directions, and as to directions generally, see PARA 288 post.

8 Ibid s 18(1)(d).

10 Ibid s 18(2)(a).

11 Ibid s 18(2)(b).

12 Ibid s 18(4). Except on an application under s 18(5) (see the text to notes 13-14 infra), a licence may only be varied so far as it relates to the activities authorised by the licence, the manner in which they are conducted or the conditions of the licence (s 18(6)(a)), or so as to extend or restrict the premises to which the licence relates: (s 18(6)(b)).

13 Ibid s 18(5)(a).

14 Ibid s 18(5)(b).

15 Ie under ibid s 18 (see the text to notes 1-14 supra): s 22(1)(a).

16 Ibid s 22(1)(b).

17 Ibid s 22(1). Such notice must be given to the person responsible or, where the person responsible has died or appears to the licence committee to be unable because of incapacity to discharge his duty as person responsible, to some other person to whom the licence applies or the nominal licensee; and a licence committee may, by a further notice to that person, renew or further renew the notice for such further period not exceeding three months as may be specified in the renewal notice: s 22(2). As to the service of notices see PARA 285 note 25 ante.

18 Ie under ibid s 18(5): see the text to notes 13-14 supra.

19 Ibid s 22(3).

20 Ibid s 24(5), (6). Such directions are directions given for the purpose of securing the continued discharge of the duties of the person responsible under the licence concerned ('the old licence'), and may, in particular:

96 (1) require anything kept or information held in pursuance of the old licence to be transferred to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority or any other person (s 24(7)(a)); or

97 (2) provide for the discharge of the duties in question by any individual, being an individual whose character, qualifications and experience are, in the opinion of the committee, such as are required for the supervision of the activities authorised by the old licence, and authorise those activities to be carried on under the supervision of that individual (s 24(7)(b)), but cannot require any individual to discharge any of those duties unless the individual has consented in writing to do so (s 24(7)). Directions for the purpose referred to in head (1) supra must be given to the person responsible under the old licence or, where that person has died or appears to the licence committee to have become unable because of incapacity to discharge the duties in question, to some other person to whom the old licence applies or applied or to the nominal licensee: s 24(8). Directions for the purpose referred to in head (2) supra must be given to the individual who under the directions is to discharge the duty: s 24(9). As to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority see PARA 280 ante.

Failure to comply with directions given under s 24(7)(a) (see head (1) supra) is an offence, punishable on conviction on indictment with imprisonment for up to two years or a fine, or both, and on summary conviction by imprisonment for up to six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or both: s 41(2)(d), (4). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 208 note 14 ante.

22 Where a licence committee proposes to refuse a licence or to refuse to vary a licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible, the committee must give notice of the proposal, the reasons for it and the effect of ibid s 19(3) to the applicant: s 19(1). Where a licence committee proposes to vary or revoke a licence, the committee must give notice of the proposal, the reasons for it and the effect of s 19(3) to the person responsible and the nominal licensee, but not to any person who has applied for the variation or revocation: s 19(2). In either case, if, within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which notice of the proposal is given, any person to whom notice was given gives notice to the committee of a wish to make to the committee representations about the proposal, the committee must, before making its determination, give the person an opportunity to make such representations: see s 19(3). Representations may be oral representations made by the person, or by another acting on behalf of the person, at a meeting of the committee, and written representations made by the person: s 19(4). A licence committee must: (1) in the case of a determination to grant a licence, give notice of the determination to the person responsible and the nominal licensee (s 19(5)(a)); (2) in the case of a determination to refuse a licence, or to refuse to vary a licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible, give notice of the determination to the applicant (s 19(5)(b)); (3) in the case of a determination to vary or revoke a licence, give notice of the determination to the person responsible and the nominal licensee (s 19(5)(c)). A licence committee giving notice of a determination to refuse a licence or to refuse to vary a licence so as to designate another individual in place of the person responsible, or of a determination to vary or revoke a licence otherwise than on an application by the person responsible or the nominal licensee, must give in the notice the reasons for its decision: s 19(6).

23 An appeal is by way of re-hearing by the Authority, and no member of the Authority who took any part of the proceedings resulting in the determination appealed against may take any part in the proceedings on appeal: ibid s 20(3). The appellant is entitled to appear or be represented, and the members of the committee are entitled to appear or the committee is entitled to be represented; the Authority must consider written representations received from the appellant or any member of the committee and may take into account any matter that could be taken into account by a licence committee; and the Authority may make such determination on the appeal as it thinks fit: s 20(4). The Authority must notify the appellant of its determination and, if the determination is one of refusal, must give its reasons: see s 20(5). The Authority cannot delegate its functions in relation to an appeal: see s 20(6). The quorum of the Authority for the purposes of the appeal is five: s 20(6); Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Licence Committees and Appeals) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1889, reg 9(1). As to the procedure on an appeal see the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 10; the Human Fertilisation and Embryology (Licence Committees and Appeals) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1889, regs 8-18; and PARA 280 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/1. THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND MEDICAL PRACTICE/(7) HUMAN FERTILISATION AND EMBRYOLOGY/288. Directions and code of practice.

288. Directions and code of practice.

The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>1</sup> may from time to time give directions for any purpose for which directions may be given under the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, or directions varying or revoking such directions<sup>2</sup>. A person<sup>3</sup> to whom any requirement contained in directions is applicable must comply with the requirement<sup>4</sup>.

The Authority must maintain a code of practice giving guidance about the proper conduct of activities carried on in pursuance of a licence<sup>5</sup> under the Act and the proper discharge of the functions of the person responsible<sup>6</sup> and other persons to whom the licence applies<sup>7</sup>. The guidance must include guidance for those providing treatment services<sup>8</sup> about the account to be taken of the welfare of children who may be born as a result of treatment services, including a child's need for a father<sup>9</sup>, and of other children who may be affected by such births<sup>10</sup>. A failure on the part of any person to observe any provision of the code does not of itself render the person liable to any proceedings, but: (1) a licence committee<sup>11</sup>, in considering whether there has been any failure to comply with any conditions of a licence, particularly conditions requiring anything to be 'proper' or 'suitable', must take account of any relevant provisions of the code<sup>12</sup>; and (2) may, in considering whether to vary or revoke a licence, take into account any observance of, or failure to observe, the provisions of the code<sup>13</sup>.

The Authority may from time to time revise the whole or any part of the code<sup>14</sup>, and must publish the code as for the time being in force<sup>15</sup>. If it proposes to revise the code the Authority must send a draft<sup>16</sup> of the revised code to the Secretary of State<sup>17</sup> who, if he approves it, must lay it before Parliament, and if he does not approve it must give his reasons to the Authority<sup>18</sup>. A draft approved by the Secretary of State comes into force in accordance with directions<sup>19</sup>.

2 Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 s 23(1). Section 23 does not apply to directions under s 9(4) (see PARA 280 note 9 ante): s 23(6).

3 Where directions are given to a particular person, notice of them must be served on that person: see ibid s 23(4). In any other case, directions may be given: (1) in respect of any licence (including a licence which has ceased to have effect), by serving notice of the directions on the person who is or was the person responsible or the nominal licensee (s 23(5)(a)); or (2) if the directions appear to the Authority to be general directions or it is not practicable to give notice in pursuance of head (1) supra, by publishing the directions in such way as, in its opinion, is likely to bring the directions to the attention of the persons to whom they are applicable (s 23(5)(b)). For the meaning of 'person' see PARA 7 note 5 ante. For the meaning of 'nominal licensee' see PARA 287 note 9 ante. As to the service of notices see PARA 285 note 25 ante.

4 Ibid s 23(2). Anything done by a person in pursuance of directions is treated as done in pursuance of a licence: s 23(3). As to the revocation or variation of a licence where there is a failure to comply with directions relating to it see PARA 287 ante.

290. Enforcement.

Any member or employee of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority<sup>1</sup> entering and inspecting<sup>2</sup> premises to which a licence<sup>3</sup> relates may:

- 444 (1) take possession<sup>4</sup> of anything<sup>5</sup> which he has reasonable grounds to believe may be required for the purpose of the functions of the Authority relating to the grant, variation, suspension and revocation of licences<sup>6</sup> or for the purpose of being used in evidence in any proceedings for an offence<sup>7</sup>, and retain it for so long as it may be required for the purpose in question<sup>8</sup>; and
- 445 (2) for the purpose in question, take such steps as appear to be necessary for preserving any such thing or preventing interference with it, including requiring any person having the power to do so to give such assistance as may reasonably be required<sup>9</sup>.

However, it is not unlawful for a member or employee of the Authority to keep any embryo<sup>10</sup> or gametes<sup>11</sup> in pursuance of that person's functions as such<sup>12</sup>.

A justice of the peace<sup>13</sup> may issue a warrant if satisfied by the evidence on oath<sup>14</sup> of a member or employee of the Authority that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that an offence is being, or has been, committed on any premises<sup>15</sup>. A warrant must authorise any named member or employee of the Authority, who must if so required produce a document identifying himself, together with any constables<sup>16</sup>:

- 446 (a) to enter the premises specified in the warrant, using such force as is reasonably necessary for the purpose<sup>17</sup>; and
- 447 (b) to search the premises and take possession of anything<sup>18</sup> which he has reasonable grounds to believe may be required to be used in evidence in any proceedings for an offence<sup>19</sup>, or take such steps as appear necessary for preserving any such thing or preventing interference with it, including requiring any person having the power to do so to give such assistance as may reasonably be required<sup>20</sup>.

A warrant continues in force until the end of the period of one month beginning with the day on which it is issued<sup>21</sup>. Anything of which possession is taken may be retained for a period of six months<sup>22</sup> or, if within that period proceedings to which the thing is relevant are commenced against any person for an offence, until the conclusion of those proceedings<sup>23</sup>.

297. Election of chairman.

The election of the chairman<sup>1</sup> takes place at a meeting of the Council<sup>2</sup>, known as 'the relevant meeting'<sup>3</sup>, and each member<sup>4</sup> who is present at the meeting at which the election takes place is entitled to one vote<sup>5</sup>. Where a vacancy in the office of chairman occurs the Council must appoint a person who is not a member of the Council as the returning officer for the holding of an election to fill the vacancy<sup>6</sup>.

At least 21 days before the relevant meeting, the returning officer must give notice to the members of the Council inviting nominations for the office of chairman and stating<sup>7</sup> that a member of the Council who wishes to be nominated as a candidate for election as chairman must give to the returning officer, not later than seven days before the relevant meeting, a notice of nomination signed by himself and by two other members<sup>8</sup>. If only one person is nominated seven days before the relevant meeting, at that meeting the returning officer declares the nominee elected<sup>9</sup>. If more than one person is nominated seven days before the relevant meeting, a ballot is conducted<sup>10</sup>.

The election takes place by secret ballot and, if necessary, by successive secret ballots until one candidate has an overall majority of the votes cast<sup>11</sup>. If no candidate receives an overall majority of the votes cast in the first ballot, the name of the candidate who received the smallest number of votes in the first ballot and that of any candidate who wishes to withdraw is omitted and a further ballot is held<sup>12</sup>. If there is a tie in a final ballot, the returning officer declares the election to have been inconclusive and the election process begins again<sup>13</sup>. The returning officer declares the number of votes cast for each candidate and must declare and publish the result of the election<sup>14</sup>.

If no candidate receives an overall majority of the votes cast in the second ballot, the procedure described in Sch para 9 is followed and successive ballots are held in the same way until one candidate receives an overall majority of the votes cast in a ballot: Schedule para 10. In any inconclusive ballot, if more than one candidate receives the lowest number of votes, a subsidiary ballot is held between them and the candidate with the lowest number of votes in that subsidiary ballot is the candidate whose name is omitted from the subsequent main ballot. In a subsidiary ballot if more than one candidate receives the lowest number of votes, further subsidiary ballots are held between the candidates tying with the lowest number of votes until one of them is eliminated: Schedule para 11.

(iii) Functions

303. Functions, powers and duties.

The general functions of the Council<sup>1</sup> are:

- 476 (1) to promote the interests of patients and other members of the public in relation to the performance of their functions by the regulatory bodies<sup>2</sup> and by their committees and officers<sup>3</sup>;
- 477 (2) to promote best practice in the performance of those functions<sup>4</sup>;
- 478 (3) to formulate principles relating to good professional self-regulation, and to encourage regulatory bodies to conform to them<sup>5</sup>; and
- 479 (4) to promote co-operation between regulatory bodies, and between them, or any of them, and other bodies performing corresponding functions<sup>6</sup>.

With certain exceptions<sup>7</sup> the Council may do anything which appears to it to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of, or in connection with, the performance of its functions<sup>8</sup>. The Council may, for example, do any of the following: (a) investigate, and report on, the performance by each regulatory body of its functions<sup>9</sup>; (b) where a regulatory body performs functions corresponding to those of another body, including another regulatory body, investigate and report on how the performance of such functions by the bodies in question compares<sup>10</sup>; (c) recommend to a regulatory body changes to the way in which it performs any of its functions<sup>11</sup>. The Council may arrange for the discharge of any of its functions by a committee, sub-committee<sup>12</sup>, member<sup>13</sup> or employee<sup>14</sup> of the Council<sup>15</sup>, or any other person<sup>16</sup>. The Council may arrange for such persons as it thinks fit to assist it in the discharge of any of its functions in relation to a particular case or class of case<sup>17</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>18</sup> or the National Assembly for Wales<sup>19</sup> may ask the Council for advice on any matter connected with a profession appearing to be a health care profession<sup>20</sup>. The Council must comply with such a request<sup>21</sup>.

However, this provision does not prevent the Council from taking action under s 28 or s 29 (see PARAS 305-307 post), but action under s 29 may be taken only after the regulatory body's proceedings have ended: s 26(4). For the purposes of s 26(3), (4), 'proceedings', in relation to a regulatory body, or one of its committees or officers, includes a process of decision-making by which a decision could be made affecting the registration of the individual in question: s

303 Functions, powers and duties

TEXT AND NOTES--The Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers may require the Council to provide advice and investigate and report on matters relating to the regulation of the health care professions: see the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 26A (added by the Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 116).

For the purpose of ensuring that members of the public are informed about the Council and the exercise by it of its functions, the Council must publish or provide in such manner as it thinks fit information about the Council and the exercise of its functions: National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 26B(1) (s 26B added by the Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 117). Nothing in the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 26B(1) authorises or requires the publication or provision of information if the publication or provision of that information is prohibited by any enactment, or would constitute or be punishable as a contempt of court; and for these purposes 'enactment' has the same meaning as in the Health and Social Care Act 2008 Pt 2 (ss 98-128): National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 26B(2), (3). The Council must from time to time seek the views of members of the public, and bodies which appear to the Council to represent the interests of patients, on matters relevant to the exercise by it of its functions: s 26B(4).

TEXT AND NOTES 1-6--The main objective of the Council in exercising its functions under the 2002 Act s 25(2)(b)-(d) is to promote the health, safety and well-being of patients and other members of the public: s 25(2A) (added by the Health and Social Care Act 2008 s 113(3)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/2. THE REGULATION OF THE HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONS/(2) THE COUNCIL FOR THE REGULATION OF HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONALS/ (iii) Functions/304. Regulatory bodies and the Council.

304. Regulatory bodies and the Council.

Each regulatory body<sup>1</sup> must in the exercise of its functions co-operate with the Council<sup>2</sup>. If the Council considers that it would be desirable to do so for the protection of members of the public it may give directions requiring a regulatory body to make rules<sup>3</sup>, under any power the body has to do so, to achieve an effect which must be specified in the directions<sup>4</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> must make provision in regulations as to the procedure to be followed in relation to the giving of such directions<sup>6</sup>. The regulations must, in particular, make provision requiring the Council to consult a regulatory body before giving directions relating to it<sup>7</sup>.

The Council must send a copy of any directions to the relevant authority<sup>8</sup>, and the directions do not come into force until the date specified in an order made by the relevant authority<sup>9</sup>. The Secretary of State must lay before both Houses of Parliament<sup>10</sup> a draft of an order setting out any directions he receives<sup>11</sup>, and specifying the date on which the directions are to come into force<sup>12</sup>. These provisions<sup>13</sup> apply also to directions varying earlier directions<sup>14</sup>, and directions revoking earlier directions and given after both Houses of Parliament have resolved to approve the draft order specifying the date on which the earlier directions are to come into force<sup>15</sup>.

A regulatory body must comply with any directions which have come into force and have not been revoked<sup>16</sup>. A regulatory body is not to be taken to have failed to comply with such directions merely because a court determines that the rules made pursuant to the directions are to be construed in such a way that the effect for which the directions were given is not achieved<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'regulatory body' see PARA 294 note 8 ante.

2 National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 27(1). For the meaning of 'the Council' see PARA 294 note 1 ante.

3 For the purposes of ibid s 27, 'making' rules includes amending or revoking rules; and 'rules' includes regulations, byelaws and schemes: s 27(15)(a), (b).

4 Ibid s 27(2). The Council may give such directions only in relation to rules which must be approved by the Privy Council (whether by order or not) before coming into force: s 27(3). As to the Privy Council see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 521-526.

7 Ibid s 27(14).

8 Ibid s 27(4). The relevant authority is the Secretary of State: s 27(5). The provisions of s 27(4), (5) apply also to directions revoking earlier directions (s 27(9)(a)), but which do not fall within s 27(8)(b)(i) (see the text to note 15 infra) (s 27(9)(b)); but the provisions of s 27(6), (7) (see the text to notes 9-12 infra) do not apply to such directions (s 27(9)). If the Council gives directions which fall within s 27(9), the earlier directions which those directions revoke are treated as if s 27(6), (7) had never applied to them, and as never in force: s 27(10).

305. Complaints about regulatory bodies.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may make provision in regulations about the investigation by the Council<sup>2</sup> of complaints made to it about the way in which a regulatory body<sup>3</sup> has exercised any of its functions<sup>4</sup>. The regulations may, in particular, make provision as to:

- 480 (1) who, or what description of person, is entitled to complain<sup>5</sup>;
- 481 (2) the nature of complaints which the Council must, or need not, investigate<sup>6</sup>;
- 482 (3) matters which are excluded from investigation<sup>7</sup>;
- 483 (4) requirements to be complied with by a person who makes a complaint<sup>8</sup>;
- 484 (5) the procedure to be followed by the Council in investigating complaints<sup>9</sup>;
- 485 (6) the making of recommendations or reports by the Council following investigations<sup>10</sup>;
- 486 (7) the confidentiality, or disclosure, of any information supplied to the Council or acquired by it in connection with an investigation<sup>11</sup>;
- 487 (8) the use which the Council may make of any such information<sup>12</sup>;
- 488 (9) the making of payments to any persons in connection with investigations<sup>13</sup>;
- 489 (10) privilege<sup>14</sup> in relation to any matter published by the Council in the exercise of its functions under the regulations<sup>15</sup>.

The regulations may also make provision: (a) empowering the Council to require persons to attend before it<sup>16</sup>; (b) empowering the Council to require persons to give evidence or produce documents to it<sup>17</sup>; (c) about the admissibility of evidence<sup>18</sup>; (d) enabling the Council to administer oaths<sup>19</sup>. No person may be required by or by virtue of such regulations to give any evidence or produce any document or other material to the Council which he could not be compelled to give or produce in civil proceedings before the High Court<sup>20</sup>.

NOTE 20--A decision of a fitness to practise panel to stay misconduct proceedings as an abuse of process constitutes a 'final decision' within the meaning of the 2002 Act s 29(2)(a): Re Saluja (Reference of decision by General Medical Council in disciplinary proceedings); Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Medical Council [2006] EWHC 2784 (Admin), [2007] 2 All ER 905.

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/2. THE REGULATION OF THE HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONS/(2) THE COUNCIL FOR THE REGULATION OF HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONALS/ (iii) Functions/307. Reference of relevant decisions to court.

307. Reference of relevant decisions to court.

If the Council<sup>1</sup> considers<sup>2</sup> that:

- 501 (1) a relevant decision<sup>3</sup> has been unduly lenient<sup>4</sup> whether as to any finding of professional misconduct or fitness to practise on the part of the practitioner concerned, or lack of such a finding, or as to any penalty imposed, or both<sup>5</sup>; or
- 502 (2) a relevant decision<sup>6</sup> should not have been made<sup>7</sup>, and that it would be desirable for the protection of members of the public for the Council to take action<sup>8</sup>, the Council may refer the case to the relevant court<sup>9</sup>.

The Council may not so refer a case after the end of the period of four weeks beginning with the last date on which the practitioner concerned has the right to appeal against the relevant decision<sup>10</sup>.

If the Council does so refer a case:

- 503 (a) the case is to be treated by the court to which it has been referred as an appeal by the Council against the relevant decision, even though the Council was not a party to the proceedings resulting in the relevant decision<sup>11</sup>; and
- 504 (b) the body which made the relevant decision is to be a respondent<sup>12</sup>.

The court may<sup>13</sup>:

- 505 (i) dismiss the appeal<sup>14</sup>;
- 506 (ii) allow the appeal and quash the relevant decision<sup>15</sup>;
- 507 (iii) substitute for the relevant decision any other decision which could have been made by the committee or other person concerned<sup>16</sup>; or
- 508 remit the case to the committee or other person concerned to dispose of the case in accordance with the directions of the court<sup>17</sup>.

The court may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit<sup>18</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'the Council' see PARA 294 note 1 ante.

2 Where all material evidence has been placed before the disciplinary tribunal and it has given due consideration to the relevant factors, the Council should place weight on the expertise brought to bear in evaluating how best the needs of the public and the profession should be protected; where, however, there has been a failure of process, or evidence is taken into account that was not placed before the disciplinary tribunal, the decision reached by that tribunal will inevitably need to be reassessed: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] EWCA Civ 1356.

If the Council is led to believe that a case has been 'under prosecuted' or that relevant evidence has not been put before the tribunal with the consequence that the tribunal's decision is flawed, the Council should, in the first instance, make inquiries of the relevant health care regulatory body as to what occurred, and the body in question should co-operate with the Council and make available any material that was not before the disciplinary tribunal, although arrangements protecting the interests of complainants and witnesses should not be disturbed without good reason; there will, however, be cases where it is in the public interest that additional evidence should be placed before the court: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra; and see also Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 1850 (Admin) at [15], [2004] All ER (D) 562 (Jul) at [15] per Collins J; Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Health Professions Council [2005] EWHC 93 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 64 (Feb). See also note 13 infra.

3 le a relevant decision falling within the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(1): see PARA 306 heads (1)-(8) ante. For the meaning of 'relevant decision' see PARA 306 note 1 ante.

4 As to the test of whether a penalty is unduly lenient see note 13 infra.

National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(4)(a). The Council may refer a case to the High Court under s 29(4)(a) if it is concerned that: (1) the decision in relation to the imposition of a penalty is unduly lenient, whether because the findings of professional misconduct are inadequate, or because the penalty does not adequately reflect the findings of professional misconduct that have been made, or both; and (2) it is desirable in the interests of the public to take action in respect that decision: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] EWCA Civ 1356.

The National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(4)(a) deals with all possible outcomes of a disciplinary hearing including acquittals: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra; Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 1850 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 562 (Jul).

It is important that the grounds of appeal specify clearly which of the provisions in the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(4) are being relied on. If it is intended to argue that any finding was unduly lenient, whether or not in addition to the contention that the penalty was unduly lenient, the particular finding must be identified and the matters relied on in support of the argument specified. In cases where relevant aggravating material was not put before the regulatory body, the material must be identified. If the appeal is based solely on a claim that the penalty was unduly lenient, the appellant can only rely on what was put before the regulatory body: Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra at [9] per Collins J.

6 le a relevant decision falling within the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(2): see PARA 306 ante.

7 Ibid s 29(4)(b). Although s 29(4)(b) says nothing about undue leniency, it is implicit that the Council will not refer a case to the High Court unless it considers that the failure of the disciplinary tribunal to impose any penalty is unduly lenient to the practitioner: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] EWCA Civ 1356. This principle also applies in relation to a decision to restore a practitioner to the register: Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Health Professions Council [2005] EWHC 93 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 64 (Feb). See also note 5 supra.

8 le under the National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29.

9 Ibid s 29(4). The 'relevant court', in the case of a person whose address in the register of practitioners in question is (or if he were registered would be) in Scotland, means the Court of Session; in the case of a person whose address in the register of practitioners in question is (or if he were registered would be) in Northern Ireland, means the High Court of Justice in Northern Ireland; and in the case of any other person (including one who is not registered and is not seeking registration or restoration to the register), means the High Court of Justice in England and Wales: s 29(5). As to the High Court of Justice in England and Wales see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 602 et seq.

The Council may exercise its right to refer a case to the court after a relevant disciplinary decision has been taken by the professional body notwithstanding an allegation that may lead to other disciplinary proceedings or any other such proceedings: Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v General Medical Council [2004] EWHC 527 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 541 (Mar).

10 National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(6).

11 Ibid s 29(7)(a).

12 Ibid s 29(7)(b). The person who was dealt with in the relevant decision should also be joined as respondent: Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] EWHC 585 (Admin) at [5], [2004] All ER (D) 581 (Mar) at [5] per Collins J.

13 On an appeal, the court is concerned with the decision as to the penalty, and its role is to consider whether the disciplinary tribunal has properly performed its task so as to reach a correct decision as to the imposition of a penalty. In doing this the court's role is no different from that of the Council in considering whether a relevant decision has been unduly lenient: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] EWCA Civ 1356. The test of whether a penalty is unduly lenient is whether it is one which a disciplinary tribunal, having regard to the relevant facts and to the object of the disciplinary proceedings, could reasonably have imposed, and in this context must involve considering whether, having regard to the material facts, the decision reached has due regard for the safety of the public and the reputation of the profession: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra. See also Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v General Medical Council [2005] EWHC 579 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 169 (Apr). Where all material evidence has been placed before the disciplinary tribunal and it has given due consideration to the relevant factors, the court should place weight on the expertise brought to bear in evaluating how best the needs of the public and the profession should be protected; where, however, there has been a failure of process, or evidence is taken into account on appeal that was not placed before the disciplinary tribunal, the decision reached by that tribunal will inevitably need to be reassessed: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra. The object of the scheme of the statutory provisions being the protection of the public, the principle of double jeopardy does not apply to cases referred to the court by the Council: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra. As to double jeopardy (otherwise known as the doctrines of autrefois acquit and autrefois convict) see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1272 et seq. Findings of fact may be attacked on appeal provided that the attack forms part of a challenge to the penalty imposed, but the court will exercise caution in such circumstances and is likely to interfere with underlying findings of fact only in exceptional cases and where a finding of fact is manifestly wrong: Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Medical Council [2005] EWHC 68 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 304 (Jan). A court may also quash a decision for inadequacy of reasons (Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Medical Council supra at [55] per Richards J); but inadequacy of reasons should not lead to remission to the disciplinary tribunal if the court may confidently reach its own decision on the merits (Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Dental Council [2005] EWHC 87 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 47 (Feb)).

As to appeals generally see CPR Pt 52; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1657 et seq. Where an application is made to the court to adduce additional evidence pursuant to CPR 52.11(2), the court should not apply the principle in Ladd v Marshall [1954] 3 All ER 745, [1954] 1 WLR 1489, CA (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1676). The fact that the evidence could have been, but was not, placed before the disciplinary tribunal can have no bearing on whether it should be admitted by the court. The court will, however, be concerned, just as the Council should be, to be sure that the introduction of such evidence is truly in the public interest: Ruscillo v Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals, Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council supra. It makes no difference whether it is the Council or the practitioner who seeks to adduce fresh evidence to the court on an appeal by the Council; the correct approach should depend on the nature of the case rather than the identity of the party and the test relates to whether it can properly be regarded as being in the public interest to admit further evidence on the appeal: Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals v Health Professions Council [2005] EWHC 93 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 64 (Feb).

14 National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(8)(a).

15 Ibid s 29(8)(b).

16 Ibid s 29(8)(c). See Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v General Dental Council [2005] EWHC 87 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 47 (Feb).

17 National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(8)(d). 18 National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Act 2002 s 29(8). Where the Council for the Regulation of Health Care Professionals is not successful on an appeal, two sets of costs may be awarded against it in respect of the costs of the regulatory body and any individual defendant: Council for the Regulation of Healthcare Professionals v Nursing and Midwifery Council [2004] All ER (D) 582 (Mar). As to the award of more than one set of costs in a claim see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 684. As to costs generally see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1729 et seq.

1 In the Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254 (as amended), the Health Professions Council is referred to as 'the Council': arts 2, 3(1), Sch 3 para 1.

2 Ibid art 3(1). As to bodies corporate see COMPANIES; CORPORATIONS.

3 Ibid art 3(8), Sch 1 para 1(1)(a) (Sch 1 paras 1(1)(a)-(c), 3 amended by SI 2004/2033). As to the election scheme see the text to notes 6-20 infra.

4 Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, Sch 1 para 1(1)(b) (as amended: see note 3 supra). 'Lay member' means, in relation to the Council or a statutory committee, any member who is not and never has been a registered member of one of the relevant professions: Sch 3 para 1. As to the statutory committees see PARA 313 post. For the meaning of 'relevant professions' see PARA 318 note 2 post.

Having consulted such persons as it considers appropriate, the Privy Council must appoint lay members from among persons who are not and never have been on the register or any of the registers kept under the Professions Supplementary to Medicine Act 1960 or Part 1 of the register of operating department practitioners maintained by the Association of Operating Department Practitioners and who have such qualifications, interests and experience as, in the opinion of the Privy Council, will be of value to the Council in the performance of its functions: Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, Sch 1 para 3 (as amended: see note 3 supra). Of the members appointed by the Privy Council, there must be at least one appointed from each country of the United Kingdom and that member must live or work wholly or mainly in the country concerned: Sch 1 para 4. If the Secretary of State has given a direction under the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 s 187 to a special health authority to exercise any function of a Minister of the Crown relating to the making of appointments to a body mentioned in s 187, the Privy Council may direct the special health authority to exercise to the extent specified in the direction its functions under the Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, Sch 1 paras 1-16A (as amended) in relation to the appointment, replacement and removal of members of the Council: Sch 1 para 16A (added by the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 s 187(8), Sch 12 para 8). As to special health authorities see HEALTH SERVICES vol 54 (2008) PARA 136 et seq.

5 Ibid Sch 1 para 1(1)(c) (as amended: see note 3 supra), Sch 3 para 1. The Council must appoint an alternate member for each registrant member: Sch 1 para 1(2). An alternate member has the same functions as a registrant member but he may attend a Council meeting in his capacity as an alternate member, and vote, only if his corresponding registrant member is unable to do so: Sch 1 para 1(3).

The Health Professions Council must now be constituted as provided for by order of the Privy Council, subject to SI 2002/254 Sch 1 Pt 1: SI 2002/254 art 3(7A) (added by SI 2009/1182). All Council members must now be appointed and the system of alternate members for the registrant members is discontinued: see SI 2002/254 Sch 1 paras 1A, 1B, 13 (substituted for Sch 1 paras 1-13 by SI 2009/1182). For transitional provisions and the cancellation of elections to the Council see Health Care and Associated Professions (Miscellaneous Amendments and Practitioner Psychologists) Order 2009, SI 2009/1182, art 8, Sch 2 paras 17, 18. In exercise of the power so conferred, the Privy Council has made the Health Professions Council (Constitution) Order 2009, SI 2009/1345. The order reduces the size of the Council to 20 members, consisting of 10 registrant members and 10 lay members (art 2), provides for the determination of members' terms of office (art 3), and empowers the Council to make provision for members' education and training (art 4). Specified categories of persons are disqualified from appointment as members (art 5) and the circumstances in which members can be removed or suspended from office are prescribed (arts 6, 7). Provision is also made for the appointment of the chair of the Council (art 8), deputising arrangements in the chair's absence (art 9), and the effect of vacancies and defects in the appointment of members on the validity of the Council's proceedings (art 11). The quorum of the Council is 11 persons: art 10.

313. Committees.

There are four statutory committees<sup>1</sup> of the Council<sup>2</sup> known as the education and training committee<sup>3</sup>, the investigating committee<sup>4</sup>, the conduct and competence committee<sup>5</sup>, and the health committee<sup>6</sup>. The Council may delegate any of its functions to such other committees, other than any power to make rules<sup>10</sup>. The Council must establish and maintain a system for the declaration and registration of private interests of members of its committees and sub-committees<sup>11</sup>, and publish entries recorded in a register of members' interests<sup>12</sup>.

1 The four committees are referred to as 'the statutory committees': Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, art 3(10). The Council must ensure that such members of the committee who are not Council members have such qualifications, interests or experience as, in the opinion of the Council, are relevant to the field with which the committee is mainly concerned: Sch 1 para 14(2). In exercising its functions, the Council must:

- 538 (1) have proper regard to the interests of all registrants, prospective registrants, and persons using or needing the services of registrants in each of the countries of the United Kingdom<sup>5</sup> and to any differing considerations applying to the relevant professions and to groups within them<sup>6</sup>; and

The Council must consult the Privy Council, or such person as the Privy Council may designate, at least once in each calendar year on the way in which it proposes to exercise its functions in respect of such period as the Privy Council or the designated person, as the case may be, may specify<sup>11</sup>. Before establishing any standards or giving any guidance, the Council must consult representatives<sup>12</sup> of registrants or classes of registrant<sup>13</sup>, employers of registrants<sup>14</sup>, users of the services of registrants<sup>15</sup>, and persons providing, assessing or funding education or training for registrants or prospective registrants<sup>16</sup>. The Council must publish any standards it establishes and any guidance it gives<sup>17</sup>, and must inform and educate registrants, and inform the public, about its work<sup>18</sup>.

The Council may: (i) make recommendations to the Secretary of State<sup>19</sup> concerning any profession which in its opinion should be regulated<sup>20</sup>; and (ii) give such guidance as it sees fit, to such persons as seem to it to have an interest in such regulation, on the criteria to be taken into account in determining whether a profession should be so regulated<sup>21</sup>.

Any person who refuses or deliberately fails to attend in obedience to such a summons, or to give evidence, or who deliberately alters, suppresses, conceals, destroys, or refuses to produce any book or other document which he is required or is liable to be required to produce, is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>16</sup>.

Where the Privy Council causes an inquiry to be held: (a) the costs or expenses incurred by it in relation to the inquiry, including such reasonable sum as it may determine for the services of any officer engaged in the inquiry, are to be paid by such party to the inquiry as it may direct<sup>17</sup>; and (b) it may cause the amount of the costs or expenses so incurred to be certified, and any amount so certified and directed to be paid by any person is recoverable from that person by the Privy Council summarily as a civil debt<sup>18</sup>. Where the Privy Council causes an inquiry to be held it may make orders as to the costs or expenses of the parties at the inquiry<sup>19</sup> and as to the parties by whom costs or expenses are to be paid<sup>20</sup>.

The Council must from time to time establish the standards of proficiency<sup>4</sup> necessary to be admitted to the different parts of the register, being the standards it considers necessary for safe and effective practice under that part of the register<sup>5</sup>; and prescribe the requirements to be met as to the evidence of good health and good character in order to satisfy the education and training committee<sup>6</sup> that an applicant is capable of safe and effective practice under that part of the register<sup>7</sup>. The register must show, in relation to each registrant<sup>8</sup>, such address and other details as the Council may prescribe<sup>9</sup>.

The register must be divided into such parts as the Privy Council<sup>10</sup> may by order determine, on a proposal by the Council<sup>11</sup> or otherwise<sup>12</sup>. There must be one or more designated titles for each part of the register indicative of different qualifications and different kinds of education or training and a registrant is entitled to use whichever of those titles, corresponding to the part of the register in which he is registered<sup>13</sup>, as is appropriate in his case<sup>14</sup>. Subject as otherwise provided<sup>15</sup>, the Privy Council may by order<sup>16</sup>, on a proposal by the Council or otherwise, make such other provision in connection with the register as it considers appropriate and in particular may provide for<sup>17</sup>:

- 548 (1) the register to include entries indicating the possession of qualifications, whether or not they are approved qualifications, or competence in a particular field or at a particular level of practice, or for the use of a particular category of entry to be discontinued<sup>18</sup>;
- 549 (2) persons to be registered in one or more parts of the register by virtue of having been included in the register maintained under the Professions Supplementary to Medicine Act 1960<sup>19</sup>;
- 550 (3) the recording of additional entries by virtue of their having been in the register maintained under the Professions Supplementary to Medicine Act 1960<sup>20</sup>;
- 551 (4) a specified part of the register to be closed, as from a date specified in the order, so that on or after that date no further person may become registered in that part<sup>21</sup>;
- 552 (5) a specified part of the register to be sub-divided into two or more parts, or for two or more parts to be combined into one<sup>22</sup>;
- 553 (6) persons to be registered in one or more parts of the register by virtue of having been registered in a part or parts of the register which have been closed, sub-divided or combined<sup>23</sup>;
- 554 (7) the recording in Welsh of titles, qualifications and other entries in respect of those members of the regulated professions whose registered address is in Wales<sup>24</sup>.

Having consulted the education and training committee, the Council must make rules in connection with registration and the register, and as to the payment of fees<sup>25</sup>. The rules must, in particular, make provision as to the form and keeping of the register<sup>26</sup>; the procedure for the making, alteration and deletion of entries in the register<sup>27</sup>; the form and manner in which applications are to be made and the fee to be charged for registration, renewal of registration and readmission to the register<sup>28</sup>, for the making of any additional entry in the register<sup>29</sup>, and for registration to lapse<sup>30</sup>; and the documentary and other evidence which is to accompany applications<sup>31</sup>.

Any such certificate remains the property of the Council and must be surrendered to the registrar by the person<sup>16</sup> if: (a) a striking-off order is made against him<sup>17</sup>; (b) his name is removed from the register<sup>18</sup>; or (c) for any other reason, the certificate no longer accurately reflects his entry in the register<sup>19</sup>.

Subject to certain exceptions<sup>1</sup>, the registrar<sup>2</sup> must not include a person's name in the register<sup>3</sup> on an application for registration<sup>4</sup>, readmission or restoration or, except as otherwise provided<sup>5</sup>, renew an entry in the register<sup>6</sup> relating to any person, unless he has paid the prescribed registration fee, readmission fee, restoration fee or renewal fee<sup>7</sup>. A person who satisfies the Council<sup>8</sup> that he has retired from the practice of his profession, leaving unused his registration for a complete year of a registration period, is, on written application to the Council, to be given a refund of half the fee paid by him in respect of that registration period<sup>9</sup>.

A person whose registration period<sup>10</sup> is not more than one year is only liable to pay half the registration fee, readmission fee or restoration fee which he would otherwise be liable to pay in respect of that registration period<sup>11</sup>. The Council may waive payment of or reduce any fee or part of a fee otherwise payable<sup>12</sup> or refund the whole or part of any such fee<sup>13</sup>.

1 A person may, with the agreement of the registrar (see note 2 infra), elect to pay any registration fee, readmission fee, restoration fee or renewal fee in four six-monthly instalments by direct debit and in that event: (1) the registrar may make, renew or restore a register entry once the first instalment of that fee has been paid by direct debit; and (2) references to an application being accompanied by any such fee are to be construed as if they were references to the application being accompanied by a direct debit mandate in respect of those fees: Health Professions Council (Registration and Fees) Rules Order of Council 2003, SI 2003/1572, r 18(2). Where it has been agreed that any fee is to be paid in instalments by direct debit and, following the payment of the first instalment and the making, renewal or restoration of a register entry, a subsequent payment is not made by the date on which it is due, the registrar must send a notice to the registrant stating that, if payment is not received within 14 days (beginning with the day on which the registrar sent the notice), the registrant's name may be removed from the register; and if no such payment is made, the registrar may remove the registrant's name from the register: r 18(3).

However, a person who, on the date of the coming into force of the first order made by the Privy Council under the Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, art 6, is transferred to the register from a register maintained under the Professions Supplementary to Medicine Act 1960 and whose first registration period is determined in accordance with the Health Professions Council (Registration and Fees) Rules Order of Council 2003, SI 2003/1572, r 10(2) (see PARA 332 note 3 ante) is not liable to pay a registration fee in respect of that first registration period: r 14(2). ### 339. Visitors.

The Council<sup>1</sup> may, at the request of the education and training committee<sup>2</sup> or otherwise, appoint persons, known as 'visitors', to visit any place at which or institution by which or under whose direction<sup>3</sup>: (1) any relevant course of education or training<sup>4</sup> is, or is proposed to be, given<sup>5</sup>; (2) any examination or other assessment is, or is proposed to be, held in connection with any such course<sup>6</sup>; (3) any test of competence<sup>7</sup> is, or is proposed to be, conducted in connection with any such course or for any other purposes<sup>8</sup>. Visitors are to be selected with due regard to the profession with which the education and training they are to report on is concerned, and at least one of the visitors must be registered<sup>9</sup> in that part of the register<sup>10</sup> which relates to that profession<sup>11</sup>. No visitor may exercise his functions<sup>12</sup> in relation to any place at which he regularly gives instruction in any subject<sup>13</sup>, or any institution with which he has a significant connection<sup>14</sup>. A person is not prevented from being a visitor merely because he is a member of the Council or any of its committees<sup>15</sup> or a screener<sup>16</sup>, but no person may be a visitor if he is employed by the Council<sup>17</sup>.

Where a visitor visits any place or institution in the exercise of his functions, he must report to the committee on the nature and quality of the instruction given, or to be given, and the facilities provided or to be provided, at that place or by that institution<sup>18</sup>, and on such other matters, if any, as it requires<sup>19</sup>. Where a visitor makes such a report to the committee, the committee must on receipt of the report send a copy of it to the institution concerned<sup>20</sup>, and notify that institution of the period within which it may make observations on the report<sup>21</sup>. The committee may not take any steps in the light of any such report before the end of the specified period<sup>22</sup>. The Council must publish such reports together with, on the request of the institution concerned, the response of that institution to the report<sup>23</sup>.

The Council may make such provision in respect of visitors as it may determine: (a) for the payment of fees and allowances, including the payment of allowances to employers of visitors for the purposes of enabling visitors to perform their functions<sup>24</sup>; (b) for the reimbursement of such expenses as visitors may reasonably have incurred in the course of carrying out such functions<sup>25</sup>.

340. Information to be given by institutions.

The following provisions apply to any institution in the United Kingdom<sup>1</sup> by which, or under whose direction, whether inside or outside the United Kingdom: (1) any relevant course of education or training<sup>2</sup> is, or is proposed to be, given<sup>3</sup>; or (2) any test of competence is, or is proposed to be, conducted in connection with any such course or for any other specified purpose<sup>4</sup>.

Whenever required to do so by the education and training committee<sup>5</sup> or the Council<sup>6</sup>, any such institution must give to the committee such information and assistance as the committee may reasonably require in connection with the exercise of its functions<sup>7</sup>. Where an institution refuses any such reasonable request for information made by the committee or the Council, then the committee, with the approval of the Council, may refuse<sup>8</sup> to approve or withdraw approval from, as the case may be, any education, training, qualification or institution to which the information relates<sup>9</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'relevant course of education or training' see PARA 339 note 4 ante: definition applied by the Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, art 17(2). For the purposes of art 17, a reference to education or training includes any course of education or training or test referred to in art 15(5) (see PARA 338 text to notes 14-18 ante): art 17(5).

341. Refusal or withdrawal of approval of courses, qualifications and institutions.

Where, as a result of any visitor's<sup>1</sup> report or other information acquired by the education and training committee<sup>2</sup> or the Council<sup>3</sup> and taking account of the observations received from the institution<sup>4</sup>, the committee is of the opinion that the established standards<sup>5</sup> are not, or will not be, met by particular education or training or that an institution is not observing the specified requirements<sup>6</sup>, it may refuse to approve, or withdraw approval from, as the case may be, any education, training, qualification or institution to which that opinion relates<sup>7</sup>.

In making any such decision to refuse or to withdraw approval, the committee must act in accordance with the following provisions<sup>8</sup>. The committee must notify the institution concerned, setting out its reasons<sup>9</sup>, and inform the institution of the period within which it may make observations on the matters raised<sup>10</sup>. The committee must take no further steps before such period specified has expired<sup>11</sup>. If, taking account of the specified matters<sup>12</sup> and any observations submitted by the institution<sup>13</sup>, the committee decides that it is appropriate to refuse or withdraw approval, it must notify the institution accordingly<sup>14</sup>. Where approval is withdrawn, the committee must use its best endeavours to secure that any person who is undertaking the education or training concerned or who is studying for the qualification concerned or who is studying at the institution concerned at the time when recognition is withdrawn is given the opportunity to follow approved education or training or to study for an approved qualification or at an approved institution<sup>15</sup>.

The withdrawal under these provisions of approval from any education or training, qualification or institution does not affect the entitlement of any person to be registered<sup>16</sup> on the basis of an award to him, before the date on which the decision withdrawing approval had effect, of: (1) the qualification concerned<sup>17</sup>; or (2) any qualification awarded in connection with any education or training<sup>18</sup>, or by an institution<sup>19</sup>, from which approval has been withdrawn<sup>20</sup>.

The Council<sup>1</sup> may make rules<sup>2</sup> requiring registrants<sup>3</sup> to undertake such continuing professional development as it may specify in standards<sup>4</sup>. The rules may, in particular, make provision with respect to registrants who fail to comply with any requirements of the rules, including making provision for their registration to cease to have effect<sup>5</sup>. The Council may by rules require persons who have not practised or who have not practised for or during a prescribed<sup>6</sup> period, to undertake such education or training or to gain such experience as it may specify in standards<sup>7</sup>. In respect of additional qualifications which may be recorded on the register<sup>8</sup>, the Council may establish standards of education and training<sup>9</sup>.

342 Post-registration training

TEXT AND NOTES--SI 2003/1572 r 11A added: SI 2005/1625. A registrant must (1) undertake continuing professional development in accordance with the standards specified by the Council which apply to him; and (2) maintain an up-to-date record, including any supporting documents or other evidence, of the continuing professional development he has undertaken: SI 2003/1572 r 11A(1) (r 11A as added). The committee may at any time send a notice to a registrant requiring him to (a) submit his continuing professional development record for inspection; and (b) provide the committee with such other evidence as it may reasonably require, within such time period as the committee may specify in the notice, which must be at least 21 days beginning with the day on which the notice was sent, for the purpose of determining whether the health professional has met the requirements under heads (1), (2) above: r 11A(2) (r 11A as added). Where, from the information supplied by the registrant, the committee is not satisfied that he has complied with a requirement imposed by head (1) or (2) above, the committee must send the registrant a notice (i) providing a statement of the reasons why the committee is not satisfied that the registrant has complied with the requirement; and (ii) inviting the registrant to submit his observations on the matter by the date specified in the notice, which must be at least 14 days beginning with the date on which the notice was sent: r 11A(3) (r 11A as added). If, after considering any observations, the committee is of the view that the registrant has not complied with a requirement imposed by head (1) or (2) above, the committee may instruct the registrar to remove the name of the registrant from the register: r 11A(4) (r 11A as added). If a registrant fails to respond to a notice sent to him by the committee which contains the requirements set out in heads (a), (b) above within the period specified in the notice, the committee must send him a further notice warning that, if he does not respond to the original notice before the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the further notice was sent, his name may be removed from the register: r 11A(5) (r 11A as added). If a registrant does not respond by the date specified in the notice which contains the requirements set out in heads (a), (b) above or the further notice warning that his name may be removed from the register, then the committee may instruct the registrar to remove the name of the registrant from the register: r 11A(6) (r 11A as added). #### 343. Council's functions in respect of fitness to practise.

The Council<sup>1</sup> must: (1) establish and keep under review the standards of conduct, performance and ethics expected of registrants<sup>2</sup> and prospective registrants and give them such guidance on these matters as it sees fit<sup>3</sup>; and (2) establish and keep under review effective arrangements to protect the public from persons whose fitness to practise is impaired<sup>4</sup>. The Council may also from time to time give guidance to registrants, employers and such other persons as it thinks appropriate in respect of standards for the education and training, supervision and performance of persons who provide services in connection with those provided by registrants<sup>5</sup>. The Council must, before establishing any standards or arrangements<sup>6</sup>, consult the conduct and competence committee<sup>7</sup> in addition to the specified persons<sup>8</sup>; and, before giving guidance<sup>9</sup>, it must consult the education and training committee<sup>10</sup> in addition to such persons<sup>11</sup>.

343 Council's functions in respect of fitness to practise

TEXT AND NOTE 8--The reference to standards is omitted and the Council no longer has to consult the conduct and competence committee before establishing any arrangements: SI 2002/254 art 21(3)(a) (amended by SI 2009/1182).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/2. THE REGULATION OF THE HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONS/(3) REGULATION BY THE HEALTH PROFESSIONS COUNCIL/(iv) Fitness to Practise/A. IN GENERAL/344. Allegations.

344. Allegations.

- 570 (1) his fitness to practise is impaired by reason of:
- 120
- 171. (a) misconduct<sup>3</sup>;
  - 172. (b) lack of competence<sup>4</sup>;
  - 173. (c) a conviction<sup>5</sup> or caution in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup> for a criminal offence, or a conviction elsewhere for an offence which, if committed in England and Wales, would constitute a criminal offence<sup>7</sup>;
  - 174. (d) his physical or mental health<sup>8</sup>; or
  - 175. (e) a determination by a body in the United Kingdom responsible under any enactment for the regulation of a health or social care profession to the effect that his fitness to practise is impaired, or a determination by a licensing body<sup>9</sup> elsewhere to the same effect<sup>10</sup>;
- 121
- 571 (2) an entry in the register<sup>11</sup> relating to him has been fraudulently procured or incorrectly made<sup>12</sup>.

When an allegation is made to the Council or any of its committees, as soon as reasonably practicable after receipt of the allegation in the form required by the Council, the Council must refer it: (i) where it is an allegation that an entry in the register has been fraudulently procured or incorrectly made, to the investigating committee<sup>13</sup>; and (ii) in any other case to persons appointed by the Council<sup>14</sup>, or to a practice committee<sup>15</sup>. Hearings and preliminary meetings of practice committees at which the person concerned<sup>16</sup> is entitled to be present or to be represented are to be held in the United Kingdom country<sup>17</sup> in which the registered address of the person concerned is situated<sup>18</sup>; or if he is not registered and resides in the United Kingdom, in the country in which he resides<sup>19</sup>; and in any other case, in England<sup>20</sup>. The Council must publish, as soon as reasonably practicable, particulars of any orders and decisions made by a practice committee<sup>21</sup> and of its reasons for them and of any decision given on appeal<sup>22</sup>. The Council may disclose to any person any information relating to a person's fitness to practise which it considers it to be in the public interest to disclose<sup>23</sup>.

While the registration of a registrant is suspended by virtue of a suspension order or an interim suspension order<sup>24</sup>, he must be treated as not being registered notwithstanding that his name still appears in the register<sup>25</sup>.

1 The Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, art 22 applies even if the allegation is based on a matter alleged to have occurred outside the United Kingdom or at a time when the person against whom the allegation is made was not registered: art 22(3). For the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 325 note 13 ante. Rules may provide that where a practice committee finds that a person has failed to comply with the standards mentioned in art 21(1) (see PARA 343 ante), such failure is not to be taken of itself to establish that his fitness to practise is impaired, but may be taken into account in any proceedings under the Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254 (as amended): art 22(4). As to the rules that have been made see the Health Professions Council (Investigating Committee) Procedure Rules Order of Council 2003, SI 2003/1574 (see PARA 351 et seq post); the Health Professions Council (Conduct and Competence Committee) (Procedure) Rules Order of Council 2003, SI 2003/1575 (see PARA 356 et seq post); and the Health Professions Council (Health Committee) (Procedure) Rules

Order of Council 2003, SI 2003/1576 (see PARA 362 et seq post). 7 Health Professions Order 2001, SI 2002/254, art 22(1)(a)(iii). Where a professional man has been convicted and punished for a criminal offence which also constitutes professional misconduct and the appropriate disciplinary body imposes what it decides is a proper disciplinary penalty, the court will not interfere on an appeal: Laud v General Medical Council (1980) Times, 8 March, PC. TEXT AND NOTE 32--Reference to the 'chairman' now to the 'chair': SI 2002/254 art 32(4) (amended by SI 2009/1182).

Halsbury's Laws of England/MEDICAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 30(1) (REISSUE))/2. THE REGULATION OF THE HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONS/(3) REGULATION BY THE HEALTH PROFESSIONS COUNCIL/(iv) Fitness to Practise/A. IN GENERAL/346. Screeners.

346. Screeners.

The Council<sup>1</sup> may by rules<sup>2</sup> provide for the appointment of persons, to be known as screeners<sup>3</sup>, to whom allegations may be referred<sup>4</sup>. A person is not prevented from being a screener merely because he is a member of the Council<sup>5</sup> or any of its committees<sup>6</sup> (other than a practice committee)<sup>7</sup>, or a visitor<sup>8</sup>. No person may be a screener if he is a member of a practice committee<sup>9</sup>, a legal, medical or registrant assessor<sup>10</sup>, or employed by the Council<sup>11</sup>. No person may act as a screener in respect of a particular case if he has been involved in that case in any other capacity<sup>12</sup>.

Any such rules must provide that<sup>13</sup>: (1) any matter referred to the screeners be considered by a panel of at least two screeners<sup>14</sup>; (2) the panel include at least one lay person<sup>15</sup> and one registrant<sup>16</sup> selected with due regard to the professional field of the person concerned and to the matter under consideration<sup>17</sup>; (3) the number of registrants on any panel may not exceed the number of lay persons<sup>18</sup>. Any such rules must also give screeners the functions<sup>19</sup>:

- 588 (a) of considering the allegation and establishing whether, in their opinion, power is given<sup>20</sup> to deal with it if it proves to be well founded<sup>21</sup>;
- 589 (b) if in their opinion such power is given, of referring the matter together with a report of the result of their consideration to such practice committee as they see fit<sup>22</sup>;
- 590 (c) if in their opinion such power is not given, of closing the case<sup>23</sup>, provided that:
122
- 176. (i) if there are two screeners, the lay person agrees<sup>23</sup>; or
- 177. (ii) if there are more than two screeners, it is the decision of the majority<sup>24</sup>, 123
- 591 and if head (i) or (ii) above, as the case may be, is not satisfied, of referring the matter to a practice committee<sup>25</sup>;
- 592 (d) where requested to do so by any practice committee, of mediating in any case with the aim of dealing with the allegation without it being necessary for the case to reach the stage at which the health committee<sup>26</sup> or conduct and competence committee<sup>27</sup>, as the case may be, would arrange a hearing<sup>28</sup>;
- 593 (e) in the event that mediation fails, of referring the matter back to the practice committee which referred it to the screeners<sup>29</sup>.

The Council may make such provision in respect of screeners as it may determine: (A) for the payment of fees and allowances, including the payment of allowances to employers of screeners for the purpose of enabling screeners to perform their functions<sup>30</sup>; and (B) for the reimbursement of such expenses as the screeners may reasonably have incurred in the course of carrying out such functions<sup>31</sup>.
